Start Co-operation to Help Depositors.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Attorneys for receivers appointed to liquidate the assets of closed banks in Chicago and Cook county yesterday held the first of a series of conferences with officials of the state auditor's staff for the purpose of coördinating their efforts to protect the depositors. The attorneys met to discuss legal procedure. Within a few days the receivers will hold a similar session, State Auditor Oscar Nelson announced.

In order to facilitate orderly liquidation and forestall any attempts to dispose of the banks' assets in a market affording no opportunity to sell real estate securities at other than sacrifice prices, the liquidating officials think it wise to get together and devise a plan of action.

Real Estate Is Big Problem.

The big problem confronting them can be summed up in two words: Real estate.

Figures in the auditor's office show that forty-nine banks in Chicago and Cook county that have closed in the last year had on their closing dates total resources valued at $118,256,345. Almost exactly half of that was represented by real estate.

Actual real estate loans totaled $36,-[illegible] banking houses, furniture, and fixtures were carried at $4,285,504. The real estate amounted to $3,046,-[illegible]

Real estate, according to Mr. Nelson, is back of from 25 to 35 per cent of "other loans and discounts" carried in the balance sheets of the closed banks. At 25 per cent this would amount to $11,892,228. Most of this is in the form of second mortgages and other junior paper taken in by banks to bolster up shaky loans. Including the last item at the estimated 35 per cent figure, real estate or real estate security makes up $59,-[illegible] of the $118,256,345 total resources of the closed banks.

Seek Favorable Market.

Both the receivers and the auditor have accepted the fact that it is hopeless to attempt to dissolve this large frozen mass of real estate and real estate paper in the present market.

Therefore, they have adopted the policy of urging depositors to be patient while they liquidate it slowly, waiting in each case a propitious moment to get a fair price rather than dump it all at once on a market already unduly depressed by panicky bondholders stampeding to sell their holdings at ridiculously low prices.

The decision to await more favorable market conditions is a tacit admission by the receivers and the auditor of their belief in a real estate market in the next year or two. Prices may go even further.

Time Stamp as Temporary.

"I believe," he says, "that real estate in Cook county and Chicago is worth as much now as it has been for several years past. It has no profitable market now, but that is a temporary condition.

"It is true that there has been overbuilding, but not to the extent indicated by present prices.

"Depositors have been inclined to be overpessimistic. They speak of their deposits as lost. I frankly believe that they will be surprised at the amount of return they will get if they will only be patient."

Not all of the assets are to be tied up awaiting a better market. Mr. Nelson says that marketable securities other than real estate loans, will be disposed of quickly despite low prices. The capital structure, undivided profits, etc., are being counted on to absorb most of the losses therein incurred.

Reports Loss on Buildings.

That portion of resources represented by fixtures and furniture he reports to be almost a total loss because of the absence of demand. Heavy losses are expected also on the buildings which are generally unsuited to any use than banking uses without extensive alterations.

Receivers plan to do just what the banks themselves would have done in the receding deposits caught them in the process—effect an orderly liquidation of assets over a long period.

As to the amount of attorneys' fees which in some cases have amounted to from $50,000 to $65,000, Mr. Nelson said that would depend on the condition of the bank's assets and the amount of litigation involved.

"The first months of receivership are the most expensive," he said. "During that time much service is required by depositors, there are papers to file, notices to send, and

Al Capone in Hands of Judge Today

The fate of Al Capone will rest today with Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who will decide on the length of the prison term the gang leader must serve at Leavenworth on his pleas of guilty to two indictments.

JUDGE WILKERSON

Whether Judge Wilkerson will sentence Capone immediately or take the case under advisement, is a matter for speculation, but the government will conclude its statement of evidence as to income tax dodging and conspiring against the prohibition laws before the end of today's session.

May Go to Prison Tomorrow.

If Capone is sentenced immediately and remanded to the custody of the marshal, he will be locked up in the county jail over night and taken to prison tomorrow night with a regular consignment of convicts. It is possible that Judge Wilkerson will order the gangster started on his way for the penitentiary at once.

Capone has pleaded guilty to eight counts of violating the income tax laws in attempting to evade payment of $215,080 on an income of $1,038,000 over a five year period, and to a blanket conspiracy charge in connection with his reputed $20,000,000 a year beer business.

Maximum Penalty Discounted.

He is subject to a possible maximum penalty of thirty-two years' imprisonment and fines of $80,000 on the income tax counts and two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine on the conspiracy charge. However, the magnitude of the punishment that might be imposed is regarded by the federal prosecuters as immaterial, for the gangster is pleading guilty and precedent decrees comparatively short sentences in such cases.

The highest sentence of record in an income tax case where the defendant pleaded guilty was two years. The highest of record where the defendant was found guilty by a jury—the case of Jack Guzik, Capone gangster—was five years and a day. Taking these facts into consideration, it is regarded as unlikely that Capone will receive a sentence of more than three years and a fine of $10,000.

He Hopes to Serve 11 Months.

The federal building and other quarters have been buzzing with rumors that Capone will have to serve little more than a year, because of the operation of the federal parole laws and the time off allowed for good behavior. A rumor being circulated among lawyers representing Capone hoodlums in the federal courts is that the gang leader is confident he will have to serve only eleven months.

Thomas S. Rice, a member of the New York state crime commission, writing in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, said of Capone:

"What sentence he receives will be a gross fraud upon the public unless, at the time it is imposed, the newspapers make clear that Capone will be entitled to apply for a parole at the end of the first third of his sentence, and should be at liberty within two to four months after he files his application."

Getting Out Is Different.

Officials here point out, however, that any federal prisoner may apply for parole when he has served one-third of his sentence, but that getting out is a different matter. These officials say that the federal parole board at Washington seldom acts on an application—and certainly would not in the case of the notorious Al Capone—without consulting the prosecuting attorney.

United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson has declared he would never recommend parole for a gangster, and in view of his three year struggle to rid Chicago of Capone, it is considered unlikely that he would make an exception for the most notorious gangster of them all.

It is also possible, lawyers said, that Capone will be sentenced in such a manner as to circumvent the parole

YOU'LL SEE SOME REAL SAVINGS WHEN THE ECONOMY PROGRAM REACHES THE BIG FELLOWS

ONLY A $50 FLIV, BUT THIEF IS TOO SMART FOR BOYS

When Arthur Engers, 3423 North Natoma avenue, and his chum, Andrew Keys, 530 North Elizabeth street, both 15 years old, parked their second hand flivver at Monroe and Halsted streets last night they took precautions against thieves. They had saved $50 to buy the car and they didn't want to lose it.

They removed the steering wheel, took out the coils and cut off the gas at the tank. They hid all of the parts in the rumble seat and went to a nearby theater. But some thief was smart enough to find the parts and reassemble them. When they returned the car was gone.

The boys hurried to the Des Plaines street station and told Sergt. Joseph Murrin of the theft.

"I will have the report put on the air right away," said Sergt. Murrin.

"Please wait for half an hour," said Keys. "I have a radio at home that takes the police wave length and we want to hear the broadcast."

ERNEST TAKES CAR RIDE WITH 444 NECKTIES

Ernest Lidskin, 15 years old, met a slicker yesterday and now his father, Morris, who operates a necktie manufacturing establishment at 320 South Franklin street, is out thirty-seven dozen ties.

The boy was taking the cravats to the Wieboldt department store at Ashland and Milwaukee avenues, and boarded a Halsted street car at Van Buren street.

As Ernest stepped into the car a well dressed young man approached him. "Well, well, sonny," the man exclaimed. "I had to run to catch you. I'm from Wieboldt's and I'll take those ties and save you a trip." Ernest handed the stranger the ties, alighted from the car at Madison street, and returned to his father's office. Communication with the department store revealed that the stranger was a slicker.

5 YEAR OLD GIRL ABANDONED ON GLENCOE BEACH

A five year old girl, who said her name was Patricia McDormond, was found abandoned late last night on the Glencoe beach and taken by other bathers to the Winnetka police station. She was later taken to the Glencoe station and placed in the care of Mrs. Mary Sullivan, village nurse.

The girl said she lived in Chicago with Mr. and Mrs. George McDormond. Her mother died when she was 2 years old, she said. According to her story, the McDormonds and George Barrett, whom she called her uncle, drove her to the Glencoe beach yesterday at 10 o'clock. They told her to play a while and that they would call for her, she said. They failed to return.

Pastor Signs Up Farmers to Feed Poor

BY PAUL POTTER.

The Rev. Dr. Johnston Myers, for 36 years pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, 23d street and Michigan avenue, has come forward with an offer to bring surplus food from the farms to the poor families of Chicago.

DR. JOHNSTON MYERS. [Kaufmann & Fabry Photo.]

In the country there are acres of fruit trees and vegetable fields whose products this year will not bring enough profit when sold to pay owners for harvesting the crops. Apples, peaches, potatoes, and beans—the very necessities of life for which Chicago's unemployed have no means of purchase may be had for the gathering.

In the city, thousands of families who have nursed frugal savings to the last few nickels, face the fall and winter with undernourished bodies and no prospect of relief.

Asks Why People Suffer.

Why, asks Dr. Myers, in this land of plenty must so many good and helpless people suffer? Why must the able bodied head of a family begin to conjure with his lot in life and wonder about the country that denies him, with willing hands, a day's meals for his wife and children?

"Not while I have the strength left to prevent it shall the helpless suffer," declared the 71 year old pastor, who for years has maintained bread lines to feed unemployed.

"This morning I found in our bread lines fathers of children who pleaded with me for a chance to work for the meager fare we offer them. Many of the men have driven trucks and are husky workers."

Then his mind went back to the farmers who live in western Michigan who last week came to him with the comment: "We just wish some of your poor people in Chicago could have these fields of beans. They won't pay their way to market, and we aren't even going to pick them."

Presents the Answer.

"I couldn't ask these farmers to pick them and deliver them to Chicago—they have their financial troubles, too," said Dr. Myers. "But I have the answer to the problem."

If enough farmers in a neighborhood, or perhaps one farmer with as much as a truckload of fruit or vegetables, will write at once to Dr. Johnston Myers, 2320 Michigan avenue, Chicago, telling him what he has available, Dr. Myers will send trucks and more men to the farms, have the foodstuffs picked if the farmer cannot do so, and deliver the produce into recognized charitable institutions in Chicago for distribution to worthy families.

The pastor already has assurance of unmarketed surplus from such Michigan counties as Berrien and Allegan. He has been offered the use of trucks without cost by Chicago contractors, some of whom were once in his bread lines. He has the willing man power—and, above all, the knowledge of how much good such foods can do in Chicago.

Farmers Willing to Help.

That the farmers and commercial gardeners of Cook and nearby Illinois counties, as well as those in northern Illinois or southern Wisconsin, are also willing to help, has been assured by the first responses to his offer.

The way has been found to bring together the farm supply and the needs of the hungry. All that remains is for those who have orchards or gardens running over to pass along the word to Dr. Myers.

LAKE BREEZE COOLS CHICAGO AS MOST OF THE U. S. SWELTERS

Chicago and its environs enjoyed the cooling breezes of Lake Michigan yesterday while most of the country from California to New England sweltered in temperatures ranging from 90 to 120 degrees. Fair and continued cool weather was forecast for Chicago today.

Ending a moderate heat spell of three days' duration, the lake breeze set in at 11:30 a. m., dropping the temperature from its morning mark of 82 degrees to 73 degrees in midafternoon. Strollers found it comfortable to wear wraps last night.

In southern California scattered rains and ocean breezes brought some relief from an intense midsummer heat wave which had caused 79 deaths and sent the mercury to a maximum of 120 degrees at Needles, Cal. In Los Angeles the respite was marked by a reading of 90 degrees, but the government forecaster predicted a renewal of the heat there today.

In the central states intense heat was recorded. At Galesburg, Ill., the mercury soared to 106. The reading was 98 at Des Moines, Ia., and 96 at Lincoln, Neb.

In New England temperatures above 90 degrees continued to break records. Boston saw the thermometer at 95 for the first time since 1894, and the humidity was so intense that workers in the Massachusetts statehouse got a holiday.

Cities reporting 100 degrees or higher in the last 24 hours were: Yuma, Ariz., 108; Phoenix, Ariz., 106; Concordia, Kas., 104; Columbia, Mo., 102; Goodland, Kas., 102; Kansas City, Mo., 102; Keokuk, Ia., 102.

Illness Makes Lloyd George a Hero Again

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 29.—All Great Britain was today figuratively sitting at the bedside of the "man who won the war." David Lloyd George, leader of the Liberal party, who two days ago was only a more or less discredited politician, again has become the idol of the British people. He underwent a severe operation this morning, and while everything went as well as can be expected for a man of his age, it will be two or three days before his condition can be pronounced safe.

The wartime premier was stricken two days ago with a disease which manifested itself in a condition known as haematuria, which is urinary bleeding, and which may be due to a variety of diseases. Two of the most serious are a stone in the bladder and a cancer, and after the operation this morning it was positively stated that there is no cancer. A bulletin also stated the cause of the haematuria had been completely removed, which indicates that a stone condition was found.

Home Made Hospital.

The former premier's home was turned into a hospital on short notice. Early this morning an ambulance drove up Addison road and unloaded tanks of oxygen, anesthetizing apparatus, stretchers and all the other equipment of a surgical sick room.

All the members of his family were in attendance. Dame Margaret Lloyd George, the statesman's wife, returned in a hurry from Wales, and his daughter, Megan, who is also a member of parliament, came back from the country. His two sons, Maj. G. Lloyd George and Richard George, were also present, as was his married daughter, Lady Cary Evans. Her husband, Sir Thomas Cary Evans, assisted at the operation.

King's Physician Present.

The actual operation was done by Dr. Swift Joly, an expert on urinary diseases, with Dr. Francis Howard Humphries, radiologist, and Sir Francis Shipway, anaesthetist. Lord Dawson of Penn, King George's physician, was also present.

A statement issued tonight by attending physicians said: "So far Mr. Lloyd George's condition continues satisfactory."

The "so far" was taken to mean that physicians were conservatively qualifying their statement.

The energtic little Welshman carried on his activities until a few hours before the operation. He dictated a message to the Liberal summer meeting, which opens at Cambridge Thursday, to his daughter, Megan, and he made corrections in it afterwards.

Herndon-Pangborn Plane in London.

BULLETIN.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 30.—(AP)—Russell Boardman and John Polando, who took off from New York at 5 o'clock (Chicago daylight saving time) on Tuesday morning, arrived here at 1:20 p. m. (6:20 a. m. Chicago time) today.

[From the time Boardman and Polando left Floyd Bennett Field, New York, until they came down at Istanbul, the only report that they had been sighted came from Newfoundland. The flight was conceived with the object of establishing a new long distance nonstop record for heavier-than-air machines, and in flying to Istanbul, Turkey, this object has been accomplished. The previous record was 4,901 miles, made in a flight from Paris to China by Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte. The distance from New York City to Istanbul is approximately 5,000 miles.]

BULLETIN.

CROYDON AIRFIELD, LONDON, England, July 30 (Thursday).—(AP)—Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, who completed their crossing of the Atlantic yesterday, arrived here from Moylgrove, Wales, at 8:15 a. m. today (2:15 a. m. Chicago daylight time.)

[Herndon and Pangborn will hop for Moscow later today in quest of a new round the world record.]

CARDIGAN, Wales, July 29.—Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, American aviators, who took off from New York at 5:18 a. m. [Chicago daylight saving time] yesterday for Moscow, the first leg of a race around the world, landed in a farmer's field at Moylgrove, about five miles southwest of here, at 7 o'clock tonight [2 p. m. Chicago time]. Both flyers were well and cheerful.

They said they had been forced to land because of fog, which they had fought all the way across the Atlantic. They completed the flight of 3,115 miles in 32 hours, 42 minutes, at an average speed of slightly under 100 miles per hour.

No Word of Second Plane.

Meanwhile, there was no word in Great Britain tonight of Russell Boardman and John Polando, two other candidates for trans-Atlantic flying honors. They took off in the race across the Atlantic from New York at 5 a. m. [Chicago time] yesterday, just 18 minutes before the Herndon-Pangborn plane. They are bound for Istanbul, Turkey, with the intention of breaking the long distance flying record held by Coste and Le Brix, French aces, who flew 4,913 miles without a stop.

Boardman and Polando, however, had intended to take a route to the south of England. Nevertheless, a watch was kept up along the British coast tonight on the chance that they might have been thrown off their route.

Flying men also pointed out that the Boardman-Polando plane had 713 gallons of gasoline in its tanks when it started from New York, sufficient to carry it some 7,000 miles. With good weather, it could stay aloft until 3 a. m. Friday [Chicago time]. Some experts here expressed the belief that the Turkey bound flyers might be well on their way, flying so high their plane would not be sighted.

Wabdered in Fog for Hours.

The Pangborn-Herndon flight has given the natives in this section something to talk about for some time to come. The flyers, after wandering about in the dense fog for hours, seeking a hole through which they might continue to Moscow, at last decided it was hopeless and came down. The field which they chose for their landing is on a hillside, and only skillful piloting prevented them damaging their plane.

The amazed farmers working nearby ran to the machine as the American airmen were climbing out. Their first words were:

Doubt Flyers are Americans.

They explained to the onlookers that they had just come from America. The farmers scoffed at this and it took considerable explaining to convince them.

"We apologized for landing on their field, and they said it was quite all right," Pangborn said. "They made much of us when they became convinced that we really had flown across the ocean."

Pangborn then told of the difficulties encountered all the way across the Atlantic, which, he said, they did not see from the time they left Newfoundland until they reached Ireland.

Never Out of the Fog.

"The flight was a trial throughout, because of the fog," he said. "We flew entirely by blind reckoning. We could not escape from the fog during any part of the crossing. Whatever we did was useless. We could not dodge it. We did not see a thing from the time we left Newfoundland until we caught a glimpse of Ireland.

"It was entirely due to the fog that we were forced to come down. We knew roughly where we were, and for four hours we cruised over the sea trying to find our way through. It was hopeless, so we had to come down.

"Our landing was perfect and the plane is absolutely all right. We had enough fuel to remain in the air another eight hours, but it was useless to try to fly further."

After seeing that their plane was safe for the night the flyers came to Cardigan for a few hours' sleep. They left a call at their hotel for 4:15 a. m. tomorrow, when they plan to return to Moylgrove and take off for Croydon, London's airport. From Croydon they will continue eastward in quest of a new round the world record. They are trying to lower the present mark set by Post and Gatty of eight and two-thirds days.

Herndon and Pangborn on landing at Moylgrove completed the fourth aerial crossing of the Atlantic this summer. Of these four, Post and Gatty made the most spectacular flight on their record breaking trip around the world. They left New York on June 24 and arrived back at the starting point on July 2. The trip also was interrupted in Great Britain when they brought their plane, the "Winnie Mae," down at Chester and asked what country they were in.

Danes and Hungarians Succeed.

The next pair to cross the Atlantic was Capts. Otto Hillig and Holger Hoftris, the two Danes, who flew the monoplane "Liberty" and landed in Germany.

The other flight was that of the two Hungarians, Lieut. Alexander Magyar and Capt. George Endres, who landed their monoplane, "Justice for Hungary," fourteen miles from their goal, Budapest, less than two weeks ago.

Herndon and Pangborn had planned to cross the British Isles, head straight for Moscow, and continue their journey from there around the world.

A plane believed to have been theirs was reported at 1:15 o'clock this afternoon (7:15 a. m. Chicago time) over Valencia, in County Kerry. An hour later an airplane motor was heard over Port Magee, and again it was heard over Valencia at 3:15 o'clock.

Identification of the plane was impossible, however, because of the mists.

The machine heard over Ireland was at a low altitude, which indicated that the airmen were attempting to find their bearings.

Flyers' Families Happy.

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Friends and relatives of Herndon and Pangborn, who were beginning to feel anxious at the lack of news concerning the flyers' progress, were overjoyed tonight when they received a cable from Herndon saying: "Crossed Atlantic safely. Inform family."

"That's good news," Herndon's father said. "I have no details. Are they all right to go on? They must have struck some bad weather to be forced down before their gas supply was gone. I think they will get along all right now."

Mr. Herndon then asked for reports of the other trans-Atlantic team, Russell Boardman and John Polando, from whom nothing had been heard since their plane was seen late on Tuesday over Newfoundland.

Amy Lands at Kazan.

MOSCOW, July 30.—(AP)—Amy Johnson, British aviatrix, who is en route from England to Tokio, took off from Kazan today for Sverdlovsk. She landed at Kazan last night after a flight from Moscow.

Making the flight in easy stages, with stops on an average of every 500 miles for fuel, the aviatrix expected to reach Tokio five days out of Moscow. She intends to remain in Tokio two weeks and return over the same route to London.

North Haven, Me., July 29.—(AP)—The flying Lindberghs tonight were at the summer home here of United States Senator and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, parents of Mrs. Lindbergh, for their last visit with their 13 month old son before continuing their vacation trip to the orient.

Col. Lindbergh set the pontoon equipped plane in the thoroughfare dividing the islands of Vinal Haven and North Haven at 3:20 p. m., eastern standard time, after a flight of two hours 50 minutes from North Beach, N. Y.

"While the colonel at first set no time for a hopoff from here, and indicated they might stop for several days, he announced later that he hoped to take off for Ottawa shortly before noon tomorrow.

Dips Over Estate.

A few minutes before landing, he sped twice over the Morrow estate, bringing the Morrow family and the Lindbergh baby out of the house. He then shot across the island and landed on the Vinal Haven side of the thoroughfare, where the plane was made fast to a yacht mooring.

It was two hours before the Mouette, Lindbergh's yacht, brought them to the yacht club landing here.

Senator and Mrs. Morrow, their youngest daughter, Constance, and a few friends, had gone out to the plane in the yacht some time before.

Col. Lindbergh said the flight from New York was uneventful, and that although the radio which delayed their start from New York had apparently functioned well, they might make a few tests with it tomorrow morning.

Tampering Revealed.

It was revealed that some unidentified person had tampered with the set last week. When the Lindberghs flew to Washington Monday they found it silent. Investigation showed that some one had removed three fuses.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were greeted by a few friends of the Morrows as they left the yacht, and Col. Lindbergh they picked up a large bundle wrapped in a blanket and Mrs. Lindbergh carried a large envelope of charts, maps, and flying data. They entered a small beach wagon, and with the Morrows were driven by Constance the few miles to the Morrow home.

Taxes Lag Despite Denial of Pleas to Halt Sales

Recent court decisions denying pleas of taxpayers for injunctions to halt the sale of property on which 1929 taxes are delinquent, had no effect in speeding up tax collections, according to County Treasurer McDonough. He stated in a letter to Joseph K. Brittain, chairman of the governor's tax conference, that collections of 1929 taxes from July 14 to 27 this year were only $4,022,789, as compared to $4,330,332 from September 2 to 15, the corresponding period for payment of delinquent taxes last year.

MUNICIPAL JUDGE M'INTYRE AGREES TO TAKE $383 PAY CUT

Municipal Judge George V. McIntyre yesterday voluntarily signed an agreement allowing the city to deduct 14 days' pay from his salary, in compliance with the economy plan of Mayor Cermak. Judge McIntyre sent the agreement to City Controller Szymczak. It provides that $27.40 shall be deducted from each pay check between now and Jan. 1, a total saving of $383.

Judge Samuel Heller, as well as Judge McIntyre, previously had announced his willingness to forfeit a part of his salary to cooperate in the mayor's economy program.

Complying with the mayor's order to suppress free telephoning in the city hall, as a means of economizing, Jeffrey A. O'Connor, commissioner of public service, yesterday ordered 242 of the 2,442 telephones in the hall removed. This is expected to save about $25,000.

At the mayor's request Commissioner O'Connor has been making a survey of all local and long distance calls from the city hall. In the department of public works during the month preceding the April election he discovered there were $950 worth of long distance telephone calls charged.

Blazing Garage Attracts Crowd; Broadway Blocked

A sixty car garage at 5850 Broadway, operated under the name of the Specialty Auto Equipment corporation, went up in flames last night following the reported explosion of a tank of gasoline. The glare in the sky attracted spectators for a wide area. Fire equipment, answering a 3-11 alarm, blocked Broadway traffic for several hours. The loss was estimated between $10,000 and $15,000, including the damage to six cars stored in the place when the fire started.

FIGHT TO EXHUME HUSBAND'S BODY IN DEATH INQUIRY

An order for the exhumation of the body of George Goich, 9025 Burley avenue, from the Oak Hill cemetery at Hammond will be asked of Judge Clyde Cleveland of the Lake county [Ind.] Superior court this morning by Assistant State's Attorney John Hampton.

Grave diggers were shoveling dirt from the Goich grave yesterday when Judge Cleveland issued an injunction restraining the exhumation already begun by the authorities. The injunction was asked by Attorney Maurice R. Marchello, representing the widow, who objected to "the desecration of the grave." She denied there was anything unnatural about the death.

The state today, however, will present evidence intended to show that Goich died under suspicious circumstances and that his internal organs should be examined for traces of poison.

Chicago Girl Drowns at St. Joseph Beach

One Chicago girl was drowned yesterday and her sister narrowly escaped death when they ventured too far from shore and were caught in the undertow at Silver beach, St. Joseph, Mich. The girl who was drowned was Gertrude Ottens, 12 years old, 10550 Wentworth avenue. She and her sister, Grace, 14 years old, were on an excursion boat trip to St. Joseph with their granddaughter, Simon Hidemeyer, 217 West 106th place. Coast guards recovered Gertrude's body.

ZEPPELIN PASSES LENINGRAD ON ITS HOMEWARD TRIP

BULLETIN.

LENINGRAD, July 30.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin passed over Leningrad at 5:40 a. m. today (10:40 p. m. Wednesday, Chicago daylight saving time), flying southward on the return from her Arctic expedition. The dirigible did not land, as had been intended, because of unfavorable weather, but continued on the route to Germany, where she was expected to arrive late today.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 29.—The Graf Zeppelin, returning from a flight of scientific exploration into the far north, passed over Archangel at 8 p. m. [1 p. m., Chicago time] today, according to a message received from the airship by a ship of the Hamburg-American line. Earlier in the day the same line received a report that the Zeppelin was over Novaya Zemlya and it is expected to reach Leningrad tomorrow.

Throughout the day, European radio stations listening for word of the Zeppelin had been unable to establish communication. Little concern was felt, however, as it was recalled that long periods of silence were also encountered during the world circling flight of the ship. Experts pointed out, too, that it was possible the airship had encountered one of the "zones of silence" common to the arctic, from which wireless messages cannot be sent to distant stations.

Weather Shortens Flight.

The report that the Zeppelin had turned back toward home was taken here to mean that unfavorable weather was encountered.

The Graf Zeppelin, carrying German, Russian and American scientists, went into the arctic to study weather conditions, and to test the upper stratas of the air through use of small balloons. It had expected to be absent from Leningrad six days, when it left that place Sunday.

It was announced today that the Graf Zeppelin's cruise to England, originally scheduled for July 16 but canceled because of the economic crisis, will take place on Aug. 18. The airship will take passengers from London on a 24 hour flight around England.

Encounters Dense Fog.

MOSCOW, July 29.—(AP)—The Tass agency today received the following message from the Graf Zeppelin, now on its way back to Leningrad from the arctic:

"We are flying under favorable weather conditions. We passed Northernland July 24. It was covered with dense fog. We were unable to get in touch with the chief of the soviet scientific expedition there.

"We plan to arrive at Leningrad between 5 and 6 o'clock in the morning, July 30."

LONE BANDIT ROBS BANK IN MICHIGAN TOWN; GETS $8,500

Buchanan, Mich., July 29.—[Special.]—A lone bandit held up the First National bank here during the noon hour today and escaped from the town with $8,500 in cash.

George Roe, assistant cashier, and Miss Kathryn Allen, a clerk were the only persons in the bank at the time of the holdup. The bandit first ordered Roe to surrender $1,000 which was in the teller's cage, and then forced him and Miss Allen back into the vault. There he took a bundle of seventy-five $100 bills.

He shut the vault door on the two employés, but did not lock it. They emerged and gave an alarm shortly after the bandit had driven away in a small automobile.

A posse of police and citizens took up the chase, following the bandit east on the state highway leading toward Niles, Mich., five miles from here. Two miles east of Buchanan a tourist told them that the bandit, driving at a high rate of speed, had narrowly avoided a collision as he swung onto a side road. That was the last trace found of the fugitive.

on wage reductions, culminating today in an official denial that President has relaxed in his efforts to maintain wage levels, were forced today by a conference between President Hoover and Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross.

The conference with Mr. Payne was said, would inaugurate a series of consultations in which the state of unemployment, the question of wages, and the problem of relief during the coming winter would be taken up.

Doak Favors 5 Day Week.

At least one member of the cabinet believes in what organized labor has been advocating, that a solution to the problem of unemployment may be found in a shorter working day and a shorter working week.

This cabinet officer is Secretary of Labor Doak, who declared today following a conference with the president on departmental matters, that he favored a six hour day and a five day week.

"We have done just as much as we can just as efficiently in the department of labor since the adoption of the five and a half day week," he said, "as I believe we would do just as well on a five day week. Before becoming secretary of labor I was in favor of a six hour day and a five day week for industry and I am still of that opinion."

Would Dodge Federal Aid.

In the light of the steps already taken and the announcements that have been made, it is clear that Mr. Hoover is trying to forestall such an effort as was made during the last congress to force the government to extend federal aid to the jobless.

Through F. C. Croxton, acting chairman of the President's committee on unemployment, the work of more than 1,000 community chest associations and other local relief agencies has already been begun.

And the gist of Mr. Payne's remarks when he emerged from the executive offices today was that relief was essentially a matter for the various states and communities and that any such means a dole must be avoided.

A backfire, therefore, has already been started in anticipation of any drive for large federal relief appropriations which is sure to be touched off as soon as congress convenes next winter.

Optimistic Factors Lacking.

Though refusing to call the present unemployment situation alarming, Mr. Payne admitted that definitely optimistic factors were lacking in the present time.

He emphasized the importance of pressing upon the states, counties and municipalities the need for speedy operation in meeting the situation.

"The federal government should not lend what assistance it properly can be," he declared, "but the primary responsibility belongs to the state and the community."

He expressed himself as bitterly opposed to anything bordering on the dole.

Bearing out the seriousness of the unemployment situation and the far more pessimistic than any other vision that has come from an official station source, was the statement issued today by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor in which he predicted that during the remaining six months of the year will show the usual seasonal decrease in employment 7,000,000 workers will be without jobs next winter.

Unemployment Increases.

Unemployment in industry, Green declared, had increased from 1,000,000 out of work in May to 3,000,000 out of work in June to 4,000,000 out of work in July.

Efforts to keep men at part time work had not succeeded, said Green, the figures showing that increase in part time work this year is 13 per cent of organized labor now being on a short schedule.

Since June, according to the federation's estimates 175,000 industrial workers have lost their jobs, reducing the level of employment in industry almost down to that of February. The harvesting season, however, has helped somewhat, it pointed out, giving work to 275,000 persons. Altogether an

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—With the trans-Atlantic phases of the depression disposed of for the time being, the White House has reverted to a consideration of domestic economic conditions.

In the light of the steps already taken and the announcements already made, it is clear that Mr. Hoover is trying to forestall such an effort as was made during the last congress to force the government to extend direct financial aid to the jobless.

Though F. C. Croxton, acting chairman of the President's committee on unemployment, the work of mobilizing community chest associations and other local relief agencies has already been begun.

Optimistic Factors Lacking.

He emphasized the importance of imposing upon the states, counties and municipalities the need for cooperation in meeting the situation.

"The federal government should extend what assistance it properly can," he declared, "but the primary responsibility belongs to the state and the community."

He expressed himself as bitterly opposed to anything bordering upon a dole.

Bearing out the seriousness of the unemployment situation and frankly in more pessimistic than any admission that has come from an administration source, was the statement issued today by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor in which he predicted that if the remaining six months of the year show the usual seasonal decrease in employment 7,000,000 workers will be without jobs next winter.

Unemployment Increases.

Unemployment in industry, he declared, had increased from 17.1 per cent out of work in May to 18.2 per cent out of work in June to 18.9 per cent out of work in July.

Efforts to keep men at part time work had not succeeded, said Mr. Green, the figures showing no increase in part time work this month, 31 per cent of organized labor still working on a short schedule.

Since June, according to the federation's estimates 175,000 industrial workers have lost their jobs, bringing the level of employment in industry almost down to that of last February. The harvesting season, however, has helped somewhat, it was pointed out, giving work to perhaps 100,000 persons. Altogether said President Green's statement, reports show that about 5,200,000 workers are now jobless as against about 6,300,000 during the January peak.

"The unemployment situation is growing steadily more critical," Mr. Green declared. "Farm employment will only last for the summer season and into October. This year, with the small spring wheat crop, there probably will not be many more farm jobs than those already filled.

"We must look forward to a worse unemployment problem next winter than last. The National Association of Community Chests, after a survey of 184 American cities, expects that relief needs will probably be twice as great. Here is a problem which requires immediate action.

Favors Shorter Hours.

"First is the crucial need of shortening work hours. This is the only permanent solution to the unemployment problem; other measures are mere palliatives. When we consider that with modern machines in our factories work which took the average man 52 hours in 1919 he can now do in 34 hours, and that average work hours have only been reduced from 52 to 50 a week, we understand why spare time has become unemployment instead of leisure. Hundreds of thousands have permanently lost their jobs. Shortening work hours this winter for all workers in the plant would distribute available work so that none now at work need be laid off.

"Second, employment guarantees. Practically every employer can assure employment to the minimum force he will need from November through April. If the 20,000,000 wage earners who will probably have fairly regular work through the winter knew now that they were to keep their jobs their mental attitude would be reversed. Instead of hoarding every possible cent they would release millions of dollars to buy goods.

Create Work, He Urges.

"The third and fourth points in a program for next winter are emergency measures: 3. Create work. Public work in parks and on public buildings and roads where possible; private work in homes; work for welfare organizations. 4. Secure funds for relief, both municipal and private."

Justification for the administration's fears that its policy on labor and wages would be the target of attack in the next congress as it was in the last has already appeared. Through the medium of the Democratic national committee Representative John N. Garner, minority leader of the house, was quick to seize the political opportunity offered by the recent letter of Secretary of Commerce Lamont, in which he admitted that some concerns, rather than shut down altogether, might have had to lower wages.

Mr. Garner suggested that the administration was trying to play both sides.

FORD MOTOR PLANTS TO SHUT DOWN AUG. 1; 75,000 TO BE IDLE

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—[Special.]—A practically complete shutdown of all Ford Motor company plants Aug. 1 will throw approximately 75,000 men out of work here for an indefinite period.

Confirming rumors of the shutdown, Ford officials today refused to give any reason for it and said no definite time had been set for reopening, although it would be within a few weeks.

A few thousand men will be kept on the assembly line in Detroit and eleven of the thirty-six assembly branches throughout the country will continue on curtailed schedules, it was said.

CITY WILL SEEK STATE FUNDS TO CARE FOR POOR

Hope for Action at Special Session.

Gov. Emmerson's revenue commission will be urged by the city to request the governor to include in his call for a special session of the legislature the subject of legislation to provide poor relief funds next winter.

MRS. CONKEY. [Rayhuff Richter.]

Mayor Cermak urged the appeal to the governor yesterday at a meeting of the special city council committee on unemployment. The committee adopted a resolution instructing its chairman, Ald. James B. Waller [43d] and Corporation Counsel Sexton to draft a program for presentation to the governor's commission.

Order Shelter Survey.

The subcommittee also directed Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, head of the department of public welfare, to make a survey of all vacant city buildings to determine which can be used for housing and feeding destitute persons during the cold weather.

Mayor Cermak told the alderman that he is alarmed over the prospect of thousands of unemployed men and women relying for food and shelter upon the charitable agencies whose treasuries were depleted last winter. He cited two disturbances recently in the colored section over evictions of families unable to pay rent as evidence of conditions. Plans should be made at once, he said, to handle the problem.

Charities to Ask State Aid.

"I talked with Gov. Roosevelt in New York about this problem and he is going to ask for legislation to help his city," said the mayor. "It might be a luxury tax could be assessed or a part of the gasoline tax diverted for this purpose. The money must come from some place."

Mrs. Conkey said she understood that the charitable organizations which last year raised a fund of $5,000,000 by private subscription hope to obtain $7,000,000 or more this winter through legislation. The $5,000,000 fund was distributed by the governor's unemployment commission. Mayor Cermak suggested that the same group should distribute the money raised this year.

NEW STYLES RECALL BUSTLES OF 1870 AT LATEST PARIS SHOW

PARIS, July 29.—(AP)—Silhouettes recalling grandmother's bustle and basque apeared at the style show today as dressmakers displayed fall evening and daytime dresses with snug bodices and puffs in the back over the hips.

Although the new bustle effects did not follow the exaggerated lines of 1870, they showed a marked tendency to draw the fullness away from the front of the gown and accent the back over the hips with ruffles, loops, and puffs.

One white satin evening gown with plain skirt in front had a series of three 4 inch puffs over the back of the hips finished with a bouquet of half a dozen crimson roses above.

A black and saphire blue printed lace had a plain front and a cluster of full ruffles covering the hips in back. Many evening gowns thus designed gathered the fullness together just behind the knees and held it in place with a bow or a heavy rolled cord.

15,000 DROWN IN CHINESE FLOODS; CITIES INUNDATED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 29.—More than 15,000 persons have been drowned in floods which threaten destruction to the entire Yangtse valley, and more than 100,000 homes have been destroyed.

The flood is the worst known in central China in more than 50 years. The flood has finally overwhelmed the city of Hankow, with all except the Japanese concession now under at least three feet of water, and over an area of more than 1,500 miles precipitation still is above normal, although the weather today was clearing slightly.

Three-fourths of the province of Anhwei, which has a population of 20,000,000, is under water. The city of Wuhu is inundated and the city of Wuchang, opposite of Hankow, was flooded when an embankment collapsed. Still higher river levels are a certainty.

Crop damage has already resulted in a sharp increase in rice and flour prices, and there is a disquieting effect on exchange because of the certainty that China will be forced to export silver in order to secure food.

Envoy Leaves Train Minus Trousers; TheyWere Stolen

BUDAPEST, Hungary, July 29—(AP)—Members of the ministers staff and other diplomats were astounded today when M. Pallier, Czechoslovakian minister to Hungary, descended from the train at the Central station here clad only in pajamas. He hurried to explain his trousers had been stolen. The trousers were found later in a cornfield along the right of way, minus M. Pallier's pocketbook.

Bion J. Arnold, noted authority on electrical and railway engineering, is in the Highland hospital at Belvidere with injuries sustained last Friday when he leaped from a gasoline railroad speeder just before it was demolished by a locomotive, it was learned last night.

The accident took place on the Elgin and Belvidere electric railroad, between Marengo and Belvidere. Mr. Arnold has owned the road for thirty years, and on it he gave a number of his inventions in the electrical railway field their first tryouts. Operation of the line proved unprofitable in recent years, and it was shut down last year.

Workmen Salvaging Rails.

More recently workmen have been engaged in tearing up the rails to salvage them. On Friday Mr. Arnold, who will celebrate his seventieth birthday in a few weeks, started out from Marengo in charge of a party engaged in this work. The party used a steam locomotive, to which was attached a flat car for hauling the rails.

When they reached the spot where they were to start work, they discovered that the scythes necessary to cut down the high weeds which had overgrown the tracks had been left at Marengo. Mr. Arnold went back on a gasoline speeder to get them.

While he was gone the engineer of the locomotive started down the single track to a nearby creek, to fill the tank of the tender. Mr. Arnold, on his return trip, rounded a curve at a considerable rate of speed to see the locomotive steaming toward him, a thousand feet away.

Speeder Brake Fouled.

Both he and the locomotive engineer slammed on their brakes, but the speeder brake had been fouled by weed stems picked up along the right of way, and the locomotive was traveling too fast to be stopped in time.

When the two vehicles were thirty feet apart, Mr. Arnold jumped, falling heavily on the ballast of the right of way. The speeder was destroyed by the collision. Mr. Arnold was taken to the home of friends nearby, and from there to a hospital. It was found that his back had been wrenched, that he had suffered a number of severe bruises, and sustained a slight fracture of the atlas, the juncture of the spinal column with the skull.

Dr. Alden Alguire, who is attending Mr. Arnold at the hospital, said late last night that the fracture of the neck vertebrae was not of a serious nature and that, although his patient was severely shaken up, there was no apprehension felt for his condition. The physician added that Mr. Arnold probably would be confined to his bed for some time. The injured man, his friends say, has improved steadily since the accident.

Built World's Fair Line.

Mr. Arnold gained his first recognition in the engineering world by the construction of the intramural railroad at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, which was the first commercial installation of the third rail on a large scale.

He devised the plan for electrification of the Grand Central terminal of the New York Central railroad in New York, and was a member of the commission which carried out the work. As consulting engineer he advised the city of Chicago in working out the solution of the traction situation embodied in the 1907 ordinance, and since that time has been chairman of the board of supervising engineers of the surface lines.

He also had a prominent part in preparing some of the early subway plans for Chicago, and plans for the unification of railroad terminals in the city. He has been consulting engineer on dozens of important railroad projects throughout the country, particularly the electrification of steam lines.

Mr. Read was 53, married and socially prominent.

COHAN SONG TO WIN FAME FOR G. WASHINGTON!

White House Reporters Hear It Sung.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—Representative Sol Bloom, congressional champion of George Washington, took George M. Cohan over to the White House today and introduced him to President Hoover. Mr. Cohan gave the President the first copy of his new song, "Father of the Land We Love."

GEORGE M. COHAN.

Of course the father in the song is George Washington, whose big bicentennial celebration next year is Representative Bloom's pet project.

So no wonder Mr. Bloom was smiling when the photographers lined up the trio for a picture in front of the White House. Mr. Cohan was smiling because it was his song. Mr. Hoover was smiling, maybe because it was his house they were standing near.

As soon as the cameras had clicked and the President had gone back to less lyric considerations, Mr. Bloom and Mr. Cohan went into the executive ante room and told the press about the song, which is not to be sold, but which is to be distributed, through the bicentennial commissions to schools, clubs and organizations throughout the country.

"Nope," said Cohan. "My trade's tap-dancing."

And he did.

Here's the way the chorus goes:

"First in war,
First in peace,
First in the hearts of his countrymen.
That is the story of Washington, that is the glory of Washington, his spirit is here.
His spirit is here.
He's standing, commanding above.
In word and deed we follow the lead
Of the Father of the land we love."

The song will be published with a special color cover design made by James Montgomery Flagg.

U. S. AND BRITISH BANKERS AGREE TO HELP GERMANY

Will Renew All Credits; Win Greater Security.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, July 29.—Negotiations of the Reichsbank with British and American bankers for the prevention of further withdrawals of short term credits were successfully concluded tonight. The foreign bankers agreed they would leave their credits in Germany.

In order to give the creditors additional security, it was agreed that their credits shall be transferred from German debtors to the Gold Discount bank, which, by virtue of a $119,000,000 deficiency guaranty pledge of German industry, is in an especially strong position.

While the agreement pledges only American and English bankers, it is hoped that Dutch and Swiss bankers will join their ranks, thereby securing for Germany by far the largest part of the short term credits that were not withdrawn before the moratorium was declared on July 12.

STORMY SESSION IN BERLIN

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 29.—Prime Minister MacDonald, clad in a leather suit, goggles, and a parachute, today was strapped into a British military airplane, shook hands with Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius and then took off for London. Immediately after he had left, Bruening and Curtius hastened to Wilhelmstrasse and a rumor spread that they would soon start for Rome to visit Premier Mussolini. Officials declared, however, that the date of their Italian trip has not yet been set.

The cabinet had a stormy all day session, at which it tried to devise a general "self-help" program. The ministers agreed on measures to finance the German harvest, authorizing the Reichsbank to use $24,000,000 to help the farmers handle their crops, but otherwise they were unable to agree on what should be done to surmount the financial and economic crisis.

Demand Ban on Imports.

Martin Schiele, minister of agriculture, and Reinhold Treviranus, minister without portfolio, are agitating for the prohibition of almost all imports and for a systematic increase in the export of manufactured goods, which would be reduced in price through cuts in wages and by national subsidies to industrialists.

Bruening, Curtius and other ministers are opposed to this policy. Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson during their visit here warned Germany against the danger of dumping, and the German statesmen also realize that a further reduction in the standard of living of German workers would bring new conflicts between labor and employers. The cabinet is thus in the throes of a struggle between the reactionary and Liberal elements.

Farmers Adopt Program.

The National Association of German Farmers is the first organization to announce its "self-help" program. It ordains that the farmer shall not sell 113 pounds of wheat [one hundred weight] for less than $1.90 nor one hundred weight of rye for less than $2.25. The price of cattle is also regulated. The members were warned that all deals will be watched closely.

Meanwhile the Reichsbank and the finance ministry are seeking to have funds in readiness to pay wages and part of the salaries of the nation on Friday, July 31. Officials assert that it will be possible. The state authorities have received instructions to postpone payments on all goods purchased until all salaries are paid.

Tax Receipts Dwindle.

The government today published figures on its tax receipts for April, May, and June, when $430,000,000, or $80,000,000 less than the previous quarter, was collected. The receipts from income tax alone dropped $21,000,000. The lessened consumption of beer and tobacco cost the treasury a loss of $25,000,000. July receipts, owing to the business crisis, dropped still lower, but the authorities still hope that the stringent penalties decreed for delayed payments will induce the taxpayers to pay up.

Detailed figures on tax receipts were submitted today. Oliver M. Sprague, American adviser to the Bank of England; Fred Hall Gannon of the Chase National bank of New York; Frank Cyril Tiarks of Great Britain, and Marcus Wallenburg, Swedish industrialist, are working on a report of German finances. Herman Schmitz, managing director of the German dye trust, and Carl Melchor, Hamburg banker, are representing Germany in the investigation.

MacDonald Is Optimistic.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 29.—Prime Minister MacDonald arrived by airplane from Berlin this evening and expressed himself as pleased with the results of his conversations with Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius. Asked if there would be any further international conversations, and if so, where would they take place, Mr. MacDonald replied:

"I cannot say at present. The work we have done will have to be carried through several stages yet. It is impossible to say just now what course events will take, but the first thing is to get a report from the banking experts."

U. S. Commissioner Jailed on Charge of Intoxication

Cincinnati, O., July 29.—(AP)—August A. Siemon, United States commissioner here, was arrested on a charge of intoxication tonight, and William Sullivan, registered as lieutenant commander, United States navy, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving. Police allege an auto containing the two men was being driven in a zigzag fashion through a Cincinnati suburb. They will be given a hearing in Municipal court tomorrow.

FINED FOR PISTOL TOTING.

Singer, his wife, Mary, and his brother, Herbert, were in deep water when the undertow reached them. Herbert, believing his brother could save himself, aided his sister-in-law and got her safely to shore. Meanwhile Julius, unable to help himself, called for help. Policeman Eugene Donahue of the Town Hall station, on beach duty, went after him fully clothed, but his efforts were futile. The body was recovered by the coast guard after three hours' dragging.

POLITICAL EXILES SAIL AWAY FROM ARGENTINE PORT

Former Officials 'Invited' to Go Abroad.

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, July 29.—Argentina's latest group of political exiles sailed this morning on the Royal Mail steamer Alcantara. Most important among those who had been "invited" by President Uriburu's government to leave the country were former President Marcelo T. Alvear; Honoré Pueyrredon, former ambassador to the United States and governor elect of the province of Buenos Aires; the vice governor elect, Mario Guido, and José Tamborini, former minister of the interior.

MARCELO T. ALVEAR.

Some of the politicians wept and all protested lustily that they had had no part in the recent Yrigoyenist revolt in Corrientes province and other plots to upset the Uriburu régime. Former President Arturo Alessandri of Chile was among those present to wish Señor Alvear a pleasant voyage. It is understood the exiles will disembark at Rio de Janeiro.

Chile Fights Gold Outflow.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 29.—Following two cabinet meetings, in which steps were taken to organize the new government, four bills were today sent to congress dealing with measures to alleviate the financial crisis and prevent the outflow of gold. The cabinet discussed a proposal said to have been received from United States bankers for a loan of $30,000,000, and also the offer of a loan by a Chilean firm of $2,433,000, with which to make urgent payments. The minister of finance told the press today that all went well at the cabinet meetings and congress is expected to act promptly.

The cabinet also studied the resignation sent in by the commander of the army, Gen. Blanche, who had command of the forces during the last days of the riots. The resignation of Gen. Vlaux, chief of the carabineers, will also be considered.

Police to Reappear.

Señor Gutierrez, minister of the interior, will pay a visit tomorrow to the carabineers and it is believed that after this courtesy visit the forces will appear in the streets, thus ending the public indignation against the police that fired against the students and people during the overthrow of Dictator Carlos Ibañez. The government will inquire into the affair and ascertain who was responsible for giving the orders to fire.

It is understood that the bill for fixing the date of the presidential election will be sent to congress within the next ten days, and 60 days after its approval the election is to be held. It is possible, according to political circles, that former President Alessandri and Senor Errazris, a former candidate, will agree to uphold the actual vice president, who is a radical, as a candidate. Calm prevails throughout the country.

RAIDERS SEIZE GANG ARSENAL; SIX ARRESTED

Captures Called Clew to Beer War Murders.

Three youths were captured and two submachine guns, two stolen police shotguns, two hand grenades, 100 feet of fuse, and some percussion caps were seized in a raid by detectives late yesterday on a basement hideout at 6737 South Paulina street.

After preliminary investigation the police announced last night that they hoped to link both the weapons and the prisoners with a series of recent murders, bombings, and shootings in the south side beer wars. Chief of Detectives Norton said he was convinced several murders would be solved through the arrests.

Prisoners' Clothing Ragged.

The captives are Michael Mattola, 20 years old, of the Paulina street address; William Archer, 21, of 5924 Bishop street, and Roy Anderson, 19, of 1219 West 71st street. The clothing of all three was ragged and their shoes showed their toes. They are not the usual type of gang killer, the police admitted.

Soon after these arrests two squads led by Deputy Chief of Detectives Lafferty and supposedly acting on information obtained from the prisoners, went on an expedition into the far district on the southwest side and traveled as far as Joliet. They returned late at night with three young men in handcuffs. The new prisoners were held incommunicado. Lafferty refused to give their names or tell why they were arrested.

Find Three Youths Asleep.

The raid in which Mattola, Archer, and Anderson were taken was made by two squads commanded by Sergts. Frank Corcoran of the Woodlawn station and Al Lauderdale of the detective bureau. They broke in on the three youths asleep in makeshift beds.

Search of the basement disclosed the arsenal. The police guns were stolen recently from a squad car. The sub machine gun numbers had been obliterated by filing.

It is through the story of Paul Spera, 18 years old, 6804 South Hermitage avenue, that Chief Norton and Capt. William Stapleton of the Woodlawn district said they hoped to connect the prisoners and guns with south side beer battles. Spera, arrested for stealing accessories from automobiles, offered "information about some murderers" in exchange for his liberty. The raid followed.

The Story of Spera.

Spera said that he was with Dominick Latronica and Joel Bartel several months ago when the two men were seized by hoodlums of the Frank McErlane gang. This was shortly after the murder of Edward Fitzgerald, McErlane's chauffeur. Subsequently the mutilated bodies of Bartel and Latronica were found in a prairie near Willow Springs.

The men who seized Latronica and Bartel were named by Spera as Ed Polaski, alias Zalinsky, and Harding, whose first name the police did not learn. Spera said he told Latronica's brother of the capture, and the brother appealed to Archer, Mattola and Anderson for help. The latter three, Spera alleged, were members of the newly formed McGeoghegan-Bolton gang, rivals of McErlane and Spike O'Donnell.

Mattola, Anderson and Archer, Spera declared, are the men who last April sprayed with machine gun bullets the home of Robert Marvis at 7116 Crandon avenue, supposedly in an attempt to kill McErlane, brother-in-law of Marvis.

O'Donnell's Home Shot Up.

They are also the men, it is alleged, who turned their machine guns on O'Donnell's home about six weeks ago, and on the home of James Quigley, once a suspect in the Fitzgerald murder.

Spera informed the police where the automobile of Pulaski and Harding could be found, and detectives seized it last night. Pulaski and Harding could not be found, however.

According to Spera's story, they and Archer, Mattola and Anderson were members of rival gangs. The three prisoners insisted, however, that Pulaski and Harding were their friends. The guns found in their hideout, the three said, belonged to Harding and Pulaski.

OPPIE, IOWA'S SIX TOED CAT, KILLED BY AUTO

Centerville, Ia., July 29.—(AP)—Oppie is dead, and Centerville, mourns.

The cat, distinguished at first among Centervillians because of six toes on each foot and unusual size, stepped into the path of an automobile and lost all his nine lives at once today.

Oppie lived on the popcorn, potato chips, pickled beets, and cream puffs with which friends inveigled his friendship.

His visits to business houses here were regular—as regular as time itself. Some admirers said that was his outstanding characteristic, this knowledge of passage of time.

PAINTS FLESH OF PESTERING BOYS; LIVES IN DANGER

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 29.—[Special.]—Roy Coziahr, 28, admitted today to his employers he smeared aluminum paint on two small boys whom he had seized as they passed the manufacturing plant.

Ralph Ellsworth Jr., 9, required twenty ounces of paint remover and a doctor's attention before he was declared out of immediate danger of poisoning or suffocation due to stoppage of the pores of the skin. Almost half his body was covered with paint. Clark White, 8, received a thorough painting over both arms.

Coziahr said the boys had been annoying employes by throwing stones and making themselves objectionable about the building. The boys denied the accusations.

The attending physician said closing of the pores in the skin constituted a more serious menace to the boys' lives than did danger of metal poisoning.

SUSPECT FREED IN GANG SLAYING OF GOTHAM CHILD

An Alleged Beer Runner Proves Alibi.

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—The police dragnet thrown out in this city for the purpose of apprehending the gangster "execution squad" which mowed down five children at play in Harlem street yesterday caught a suspect tonight, but he proved an alibi. The most promising lead yet obtained by the police was thereby destroyed.

Following a conference of high police officials headed by Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney, it was revealed that Harry Bruno, alleged beer runner, who was taken into custody and the owner of the automobile seen near the scene of the shooting Tuesday, had proved to their satisfaction that he had been in Staten Island with his car at the time. He was released tonight.

Commissioner Mulrooney said his men are now anxious to question an Italian known as "Nigger Mike" and his wife, who are believed to have been on the block when the shooting occurred.

City and state officials, who appear more aroused by last night's shooting than over any other recent gangster outrage, had conferences today, and all the available detectives in Manhattan were turned loose on the case. Police Commissioner Mulrooney issued the order, "go to the limit—bring in the killer."

Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan, who assumed personal charge of the investigation, and Acting Captain Louis B. Hyams, in charge of the sixth detective district, both said they were being handicapped by the tight-lipped attitude of the Sicilians who live near the scene of the shooting. Acting District Attorney Thomas F. Kane assigned Assistant District Attorney Benjamin Dyett to work with the police on the case.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Albany characterized the shooting as a "damnable" outrage, but added that "righteous indignation won't catch gangsters."

While the relatives of five year old Michael Vangalli, who was fatally wounded while he and four of his playmates were playing in the street where the gunmen's attack occurred, made plans for the child's funeral, anxious mothers of the other victims were told their children were out of danger. The block where the shooting occurred was strangly quiet today and the street, usually thronged with screaming children, held only a silent, shuffling crowd of Sicilians and curious persons looking at the bullet pocked walls.

Yesterday the street was thronged at the time of the shooting, and out of each shabby five story tenement leaned shirt sleeved men and perspiring women, but today scarcely any witnesses could be found who would admit they had seen an open touring car drive west down the block and open fire when opposite the Helmar Social club.

CALLS A MORTICIAN, KILLS HOUSEKEEPER, THEN ENDS OWN LIFE

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Paul J. Jackson, 49 years old, called an undertaker from his apartment on Haven avenue this afternoon. "I'm going to make a good job of it. You'd better come right around," Jackson said. Then he hung up the receiver and killed his housekeeper and himself.

The undertaker, Charles Brunnell, drove to the house as fast as he could. He got an attendant to let him into Jackson's apartment. In the north bedroom they found Jackson with a bullet through his brain. In the south bedroom they found the housekeeper, Mrs. Kate Millet. She had been shot through the head.

VILLAGE POLICE CHIEFS CALLED IN SPEED TRAP QUIZ

Two Officials Refuse to Sign Waivers.

BY HAL FOUST.

The grand jury, in its investigation of speed traps, yesterday subpoenaed chiefs of police, justices of peace and police magistrates of Niles, Melrose Park, and Midlothian, directing them to appear with their records of arrests and trials.

Chief Warren Gunther of Niles and Chief A. H. Lessberg of Melrose Park responded late in the afternoon. They were requested by the state's attorney's office and by Attorney Joseph Braun of the Chicago Motor club to sign immunity waivers before testifying before the grand jury. They refused to sign, and the grand jury didn't question them.

Chief Terry Not Questioned.

Chief A. A. Terry of Midlothian also appeared with his record of arrests but he wasn't questioned by the grand jury because an indictment was voted against him a couple of days ago, charging him with blank jacking Dr. C. E. Steckhauer of the Illinois Eye and Ear hospital after the surgeon had failed to stop at a sign at 147th street and Crawford avenue.

Police Magistrates Peter Johnson of Midlothian and Louis Senese Jr. of Melrose Park went before the grand jury with their records. The records, showing the names of defendants, the charges and the disposition of the cases, were kept by the jury for study by the prosecutors.

Call Evanston Justice of the Peace.

Subpoenas were also issued for Justice of the Peace James G. Barber of Evanston and Justice of the Peace Alexander Falk of Niles. They are expected to appear today.

The state's attorney's office and the Chicago Motor club have had speed trap complaints against Niles, Melrose Park and Midlothian. Justice of the Peace Barber of Evanston is reported to have issued an unusual number of theft by bailee warrants against automobile owners who were behind in their payments and then, according to the reports, the justice dismissed the felony warrants when the automobile purchasers made their payments.

INTRUDER FATALLY SHOT.

Logansport, Ind., July 29.—(AP)—A man believed to be Clyde Miller, about 24 years old, son of George Miller, Whiting, Ind., died in Cass county hospital tonight from a shotgun wound in the face inflicted as he attempted to enter a home eight miles north of Winamac this afternoon.

Cyrus H. McCormick Honored on Reaper's 100th Birthday

Blacksburg, Va., July 29.—[Special.]—The memory of Cyrus Hall McCormick, pioneer in harvesting machinery, was honored today at pageant, barbecue, speaking exercises, and luncheon, held at Virginia Polytechnic institute, state agricultural and mechanical college of the inventor's native state. More than 7,000 persons took part in the celebration, which was in connection with the one-hundredth anniversary of the introduction of the mechanical reaper into farms.

E. Lee Trinkle, former governor of Virginia, declared at a special luncheon attended by 500 specially invited guests, that memory of the developer of the reaper would live longer than any military leader. He characterized the reaper as "the romance of the emancipation of farm labor."

Legge Makes Speech.

Alexander Legge, former chairman of the federal farm board, said that the great trouble with American agriculture is its intense individualism and that "any group which produces without regard for its market is foredoomed to failure." He believed, however, he said, that the farmer is beginning to realize "that his true course toward parity with other business lies through collective action, or coöperation. In coöperative undertakings, there are comparatively few failures, he added.

Comparing declines of approximately 66 per cent in the last two years in industrial, railroad, and utility stocks to a 3 per cent drop in farm land values, Mr. Legge said that the reaper centennial finds the financial position of agriculture better than any other industry and the farmer facing a brighter outlook. He added that only about one-half the farm lands carry any encumbrance and the total farm mortgage debt is only about 32 per cent of the value of farm land and buildings.

Home Market Opening Up.

"The better outlook for the farmer is based on the fact that the long promised home market for our farm products has at last arrived," Mr. Legge said. "Under normal business conditions our own people can consume practically all of the products of our farm lands that are really capable of being farmed at a profit.

"If the farmer is not deprived of protection under the tariff system, which he has so long helped to maintain, and if he will reasonably regulate the amount and kind of what he produces, he can look confidently for prices that will yield him a fair return on his capital and labor."

More than 200 persons took part in the pageant which depicted the evolution of grain harvesting from ancient days to present. There were special costumes and lighting effects.

Harold McCormick, son of the inventor, Cyrus McCormick Jr., and Fowler McCormick, grandsons, were introduced at the luncheon. Cyrus McCormick Jr. gave a history of reaper development at the afternoon meeting.

Civil Service Board Discharges 2 Policemen

The civil service commission ordered two patrolmen discharged from the police force following hearings yesterday, making thirty policemen that the present commission has discharged since its members took office. Ira O'Neal, assigned to the Pekin station, was discharged because of his recent conviction in federal court of sending obscene matter through the mails. Harry J. O'Connor of the Grand Crossing station was discharged for becoming intoxicated while on duty, and disobeying orders.

NORGE ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR

What make of electric refrigerator should they buy for a thousand metropolitan apartments? Consideration of obvious features . . . shelf arrangement, general construction, prestige of the maker . . . narrowed the choice to Norge and three others.

Then an unprejudiced engineer was employed to find out, in his own way, which of these four would stand up best under apartment usage.

He found out . . . chose Norge.

He might have saved himself a lot of work. For the methods employed by this impartial investigator were not nearly as exacting as the standard Norge factory test.

Certainly Norge makes good in comparative tests. It has to make good before it ever carries the Norge nameplate. And it has to keep on making good through long years of hard service. When you're ready to select your electric refrigerator—see the Norge before you buy.

Norge is manufactured by Norge Corporation, Detroit, a Division of Borg-Warner, one of the world's largest makers of automotive parts, including free wheeling.

YORKTOWN ASKS HISTORY NOT TO REPEAT ITSELF

About Cornwallis It May Only Stutter.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—History is going to have a dickens of a time repeating itself if the local boys at Yorktown, Va., compel the congressional sesquicentennial commission to forbid Cornwallis to come to Yorktown next October and hand over his historic sword to George Washington in the big pageant that is to close the four day celebration.

BRAM BINGHAM. (Fotograms.)

This congressional commission, or at least the five of its eleven members who are in town (Senators Bingham and Townsend and Representatives Bland of Virginia, Fitzgerald of Ohio, and Stobbs of Massachusetts), went into the meeting this morning all prepared to give Cornwallis a free ticket to Yorktown.

Then Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, a minister from Williamsburg, Va., and the president of the Yorktown Sesquicentennial association, a local citizens' organization, went into the meeting and for the three secret hours the two groups argued. Dr. Goodwin and his group don't want that part about Cornwallis surrendering to Washington included in the pageant. The reasons?

Well, the doctor was a little reluctant to discuss them.

Reasons Rather Opposing.

They boil down to two rather opposing ones: First, the surrender scene would be too definite and therefore "contrary to the military and ethical code of the United States army."

Second, it would be too indefinite, because an entire surrender scene couldn't be staged. But the best line the minister pulled was when he argued that this culminating pageant was to celebrate the birth of a nation, not the severance of a colony from the mother country.

"Now gentlemen," he asked, "if you were giving a birthday party, would you want the obstetrical instruments to come in with the birthday cake?"

Judge General's Part in Protest.

"No indeed," Dr. Goodwin retorted. "Hamlet will be there. Er, that is, President Hoover is to make an address that morning."

When it came to that question of "contrary to the military and ethical code of the United States army," the interviewers wanted to know if it wasn't true that Gen. Embick of Fort Hoyle of the Third corps area had written the original protest against including the Cornwallis incident. Dr. Goodwin refused to discuss that except to say that whatever objection the general had made must have been based on military precedent. And Gen. Otis Bland got very angry when questioned about the Embick document, and declined to comment on it.

So after hours of discussion the commission adopted a resolution in which it said:

"In view of the representation made to the commission by Dr. Goodwin it was voted to postpone action with regard to the deletion of the surrender scene from the pageant, until an opportunity has been given to the Yorktown Sesquicentennial association to express its opinion by formal vote."

"Understand," Dr. Goodwin insisted, "we local people aren't trying to cheat the commission; not at all."

Representative Fitzgerald, who is a prominent American Legion man back in Ohio, said he and all the commission present were in favor of retaining Mr. Cornwallis and his surrendering the sword.

He Wasn't There Any Way.

"But at the same time we do not want to run counter to the wishes of the people in whose territory this pageant is to be staged. So we will wait until they can make their protests formal."

A decision is looked for about the middle of August.

Albert R. Rogers, director of the entire celebration, gave Mr. Goodwin's idea a lift when he took the newspaper writers off into the corner for a lecture on history and told them solemnly that it would be a mistake to include Cornwallis in the surrender scene because, "as a matter of fact, the best historians agree that he never showed up then, but was absent with a pain; and sent his sword to Gen. Lincoln by Gen. O'Hara."

ARREST 35 FOR PICKETING SILK MILLS IN STRIKE

Men and Women Taken by Police.

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Thirty-five men and women, picketers for the united front committee of the National Textile Workers directing the Paterson, N. J., silk mill strike, were arrested today as the police started to enforce their new rule against "unlawful" picketing.

The prisoners were detained for several hours, until arrangements were made for the payment of $10 bail for each prisoner. They will be tried before Recorder Harry Joelson in police court tomorrow on charges of loitering.

Picket Rule Violated?

The arrests were made at the Rosen silk mills after police had been informed that no strike was in progress there. Under New York rules of "legal picketing" picketing is permitted only where a plant is on strike, and then is to consist merely of strikers in pairs, ten paces apart, walking by the place. The National Textile Workers say that strike conditions exist at all mills in the city.

Among those arrested were Sophie Melvin, well known organizer among communistic labor circles, and Joseph Walker, 13 year old grocery clerk, who proclaimed himself a member of the Pioneers of American, communistic organization for youths.

30,000 Garment Strikers.

Meanwhile the strike fever spread to the garment factory district of the greater city, when 20,000 to 25,000 members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America quit their machines and benches as a protest against "sweat shop conditions" and intimidation. Leaders of the union agreed, however, to attend a conference in the office of Mayor James J. Walker tomorrow to discuss a renewal of the union's contract with the manufacturers which expired on July 1. If an agreement is reached, as seems likely, the strikers will return to work.

Honored by King

Frank Ghiselli, 50 years old, 124 North Parkside avenue, who worked his way from messenger boy to a membership on the Chicago Board of Trade, has just received the title and decoration of Chevalier of the Royal Crown of Italy from King Victor Emmanuel. The decoration was in recognition of his work among the Italian-Americans of Chicago. Mr. Ghiselli is a broker in the wheat pit, clearing trades through Lamson Brothers.

JOLIET CONVICT HURLS ANOTHER 35 FT. TO DEATH

Joseph Green, 48 years old, a Chicago Negro serving a robbery sentence at Joliet penitentiary, was killed yesterday when a fellow prisoner, Eugene Blunt, 18 years old, another Chicago Negro, struck him with an iron bar and pitched him over the rail on the fifth tier in the west cell house. Green plunged 35 feet, suffering a skull fracture as his head struck the concrete floor.

Blunt was placed in solitary confinement, pending an inquest to be held this morning. He refused to tell prison officials how he smuggled the iron bar into his cell. State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn indicated Blunt would be indicted and tried for murder.

Meanwhile keepers at the new Stateville prison, continuing the cell to cell search begun last week when a riot was threatened among the 2,100 inmates, found another gasoline bomb, the ninth found since the search began. Warden Henry Hill, who has all inmates locked constantly in their cells since the search began, announced that the regular routine of daily tasks and visiting privileges would be restored probably next Monday.

BAIL FOR PAIR SET AT $200,000.

Leland Harland, alias Harvey, alias Kelly, 28 years old, of Hot Springs, Ark., and Richard Roland, 30 years old, of Knoxville, Tenn., were held to the grand jury in $100,000 bonds each by Judge Matthew D. Horigan yesterday on charges of robbery with a gun.

DOG TRACKS ASK WRIT UNTIL COURT APPEAL IS HEARD

Continue Attack on Horse Race Betting.

Notice that the struggle to legalize dog racing will continue was given yesterday when petitions for two injunctions to restrain State's Attorney Swanson and Sheriff Meyering from interfering with the operation of the Thornton Coursing club and the Sportsmen's Park clubs, were filed in the Circuit court. Attorney Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court, is representing the dog racing interests.

Hearing on the petitions will be held today in one of the two emergency courts now in session. Judge Olson asks that the state's attorney and the sheriff be enjoined pending the hearing in the Illinois Supreme court in October, of a suit in which the constitutionality of the state law which permits horse racing and betting on the pari-mutual system, is challenged.

Charges Law Discriminates.

In his petitions Judge Olson charges that the law which legalizes the "contribution" system of betting only when in connection with a horse track, is unjust and arbitrary discrimination. He also charges that the law is unconstitutional because it delegates legislative powers to an executive official in that the state director of agriculture is authorized to license and require bonds from the tracks, exercising his own discretion within certain limits.

Attorney Olson has said that the hoodlums and gangsters, headed by Al Capone, have been ousted from control of the tracks and that a group of respectable business men has taken them over. He refused, however, to reveal any of the names of the stockholders yesterday.

Make Long Court Fight.

Dog racing in Cook county was stopped last year after long litigation. The Appellate court finally ruled that the state law prohibited betting on dog races although it allowed betting in horse racing plants.

Not until the dog tracks opened "under new management" in May this year was there more conflict. The sheriff and the state's attorney raided both tracks two successive nights. The prisoners appealed fines imposed by justices of the peace. Two days after the raids a bill legalizing dog racing was presented at Springfield but it was killed.

200 U. S. DRY AGENTS RAID 66 PLACES IN LA SALLE COUNTY

Ottawa, Ill., July 29.—[Special.]—Nearly 200 federal prohibition agents swept through La Salle county tonight and raided sixty-six alleged speakeasies in the biggest dry drive ever conducted in this district.

The agents were in charge of A. E. Hamilton and A. E. Aman of Chicago and were mobilized from Chicago, Springfield, Milwaukee, Madison, South Bend, and Indianapolis.

They were armed with sixty-six warrants, two of them for homes and the rest for soft drink parlors. The warrants were signed by Commissioner Edwin Walker of Chicago. The huge force left Chicago at 1 p. m. with instructions to strike simultaneously at 5:20 p. m. One warrant was issued to every three agents. At 5:20 the raids were made, and from that hour on groups of prisoners began arriving at the county jail here.

Places raided were in Ottawa, La Salle, Streator, Utica, Marseilles, Seneca, and Peru. Evidence had been obtained at each speakeasy by undercover agents during the last three weeks, it was said.

CHICAGO YOUTHS RESCUED FROM MOUNTAIN PEAK

Longs Peak, Colo., July 29.—[Special.]—Two Chicago youths, who were marooned on the rocky, wind and rain swept slope of Longs peak for twelve hours, were rescued today by a searching party organized after their cries for help were heard at a shelter cabin.

The youths, Robert G. Attick, 17, and Russell E. Schoetz, 18, started up the peak yesterday without a guide. Darkness found them part way up the barren east face of the mountain. They had been drenched by a heavy rain, and lightning played around them for several hours, endangering their lives.

At night a group of mountain climbers in the Boulder field shelter cabin heard faint cries for help and, led by George Greeley, an expert guide, a party set out to seach. Their mission was dangerous, as a misstep might have meant death.

Attick and Schoetz were found huddled beside a huge boulder, shivering from the cold. They said that several times during the night snow flurries swept the 14,000 foot peak.

Receivers' Attorneys Meet to Plan Liquidation.

more clerical help is required. After that a skeleton staff, consisting of a receiver, attorney, bookkeeper and stenographer can carry on

"Dividends will be paid as soon as possible and will be as large as justified by receipts. Preferred claims must be satisfied first. These are largely loans due other banks. Depositors not well informed on banking matters often fail to understand why such bills are preferred. They are secured by collateral belonging to the defunct institution."

If there are cash assets in the failed bank these must go first to the preferred creditor

The Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, with $1,713,254 preferred debts, was cited as an illustration and the North-Western Trust and Savings, with $1,000,000, was another.

The Debtors' Responsibility.

Auditor Nelson emphasized the responsibility resting on debtors of the closed banks.

"We talk a lot about what the depositors will get, but that all depends on what the debtor pays, or what the assets securing his loans can be made to produce in the courts. Many debtors are in a position now to pay their borrowings or to refinance their property.

"Many things bob up in liquidating a bank that do not appear on the surface, but lately we have been getting a good reaction from the depositors. Their attitude has changed and they are now working with the receivers."

Receivers Are Hopeful.

Evidence supporting this was seen yesterday in comments made by receivers and depositors' representatives.

S. B. Herbison, chairman of the depositors' executive committee of the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, who is working with Ernest Ridgeway, the receiver, was hopeful that if the bank's assets are liquidated in a slow, careful manner, the outcome will be satisfactory.

"The assets of our bank consist mainly of real estate bonds and mortgages," he said. "If there should be an improvement in the real estate market during the coming year, the bank will be able to liquidate on a very satisfactory basis.

Sees Dividend in October.

Carl Antonsen, receiver for the Humboldt State bank and the Second Humboldt State bank, is hopeful that a dividend will be paid in October.

"Most of the assets of the two Humboldt banks consist of real estate paper," Mr. Antonsen said. "However, we believe that the real estate situation is touching bottom and that we shall see an improvement in a few months."

Frank M. McKee, receiver for the Cheltenham Trust and Savings bank, said that since receivership was assumed on June 24 more than $100,000, or one-third the deposit liabilities, had been collected.

Dr. E. Byron Kelly, member of a depositor's committee of the Stony Island State Savings bank, said that his committee is working with Irwin T. Gilruth, general receiver for the Bain bank group, and is well pleased with the coöperation extended to the committee by the receiver.

Will H. Wade, receiver for the Builders and Merchants Bank and Trust company, expects to pay a 10 per cent dividend to all depositors who have filed claims as of Aug. 12.

"Owing to the present situation in real estate we feel that it would be a great mistake to dump our securities on the market now," he said.

Edward M. Olson, receiver for the Ridgeway State bank, expressed his intention to pay a 10 or 15 per cent dividend in September or October.

13 Millionaires Create Village at De Luxe Polls

Brookville, L. I., July 29.—[Special.]—Creating the incorporated village of Brookville, to include 2.8 square miles of landed estates, by ballot, proved a pleasant social duty today for 13 Brookville millionaires.

There were cooling drinks, with ice tinkling in the glasses, mild perfectos and easy chairs for each voter, provided by David Dows, banker and multi-millionaire, election day host.

Charlton hall, the country seat of Mr. and Mrs. Dows, was the polling place and Charles E. Ransom, clerk of the township of Oyster Bay, was in charge of the election.

Mr. Ransom, sitting at a mahogany desk in the study of Mr. Dows, and Winslow S. Coates, attorney for the incorporators, sipped occasionally from tall glasses while they waited the arrival of the straggling baker's dozen of resident freeholders eligible to vote.

There should have been thirty-five voters, but most of them are in Europe, at their mountain cabins or on their yachts. Mrs. Dows was having a bridge luncheon in an adjoining room. The host was posing for photographs to be used in his forthcoming campaign as Republican nominee for sheriff of Nassau county.

Among the wealthy members of the colony who voted were: Howard C. Brokaw, Reginald Townsend, Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, Charles H. Thieriot, Carroll B. Alker, George Brewster, John F. Bermingham, Benjamin Moore, and George C. Heck.

Brookville has a population of 282 persons, counting servants and children, and an assessed valuation of about $5,000,000. The landowners are prominent socially and in professional and business realms and their object in incorporating is to keep the area a residential section free from commercial encroachment.

When Brookville becomes an incorporated town it will give Centre Island, L. I., a good run for the honor of being the smallest and wealthiest village in the state. Centre Island has thirty citizens, all millionaires, but the Brookvillians claim that their total wealth is greater.

The election of officers will not take place for more than ten days, and in the interim it is possible to appeal from the decision of the voters. After that the town clerk will appoint a temporary clerk and a board of elections, and the date will be set. It seems likely that there will be nearly enough offices to go around among the voters.

SOUTHERN ROAD DENIES PLAN TO REDUCE WAGES

But Salaries of Officers Are Trimmed.

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—The Southern Railway system today said it had no present intention of cutting wages and accompanied this with an announcement of a voluntary reduction in salaries by its officers. Meanwhile, Ezra Brainerd, chairman of the interstate commerce commission reiterated that railroad wages would not enter into the proceedings on the plea of the railroads for a 15 per cent freight rate increase.

The Southern's statement said: "This company does not contemplate any movement for the reduction of wage scales covered by contracts with organized labor at this time.

Refer to Salaries.

"The press story to that effect doubtless had its origin in a recent voluntary reduction of salaries by officers of which no publicity was intended."

A Washington newspaper today said Southern directors had approved a cut in the pay of "white collar" workers above the $2,550 class. It added that organized labor was not involved in the reduction.

Southern officials said the majority of their workers were union members, but added it was felt no move should be made to cut the pay of unorganized wage earners without including the organized employés.

Officials Only Affected.

It was explained that wage earners were ordinarily classified as those who have an hourly pay scale, but that the voluntary reduction would not apply to salaried men who were not company officials.

The amount of the reduction was not announced, but it was said the saving would be very little. Officials said that since Southern shopmen were on a five day week and many other employés were on a part time basis, it was felt the officers should contribute toward the economy program.

Another Road Follows Suit.

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Officers of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad corporation of which L. F. Loree is president, will accept reductions of salaries by 10 per cent on Aug. 1, the company announced today.

The following resolution embodying this action was adopted by the directors:

"Whereas, the president for himself and for officers of the corporation has presented to the board a voluntary proposal for a reduction of salaries on a basis of 10 per cent, therefore

"Resolved, that the executive committee, acting for the board of directors duly appreciating the unselfish action of the officers, following as it does similar action taken in August, 1877, accepts the same with the belief that early elimination of maladjustment in industrial conditions will restore the orderly prosperity so essential to the comfort and security of all engaged in such enterprises."

RACINE POLICE CHIEF FIRED FOR REWARD MISUSE

Racine, Wis., July 29.—(AP)—The city fire and police commission tonight found Police Chief Henry C. Baker guilty of allowing policemen to keep rewards instead of turning them in to the pension fund, as required by state law, and the chief was immediately dismissed. Several officers are also to be tried by the commission for accepting the rewards. Arthur Muhlke, who has been next in command under Chief Baker, was ordered to take immediate charge of the department.

ASKS $40,000 FOR LOSS OF EYE; HIT BY GOLF BALL

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Forty thousand dollars for the loss of sight in his left eye after it had been struck by a golf ball was asked by Charles Di Noto, 15, of Jersey City, in a suit filed today in the Hudson county, N. J., Circuit court. Frank Dwyer of Jersey City is defendant. The incident occurred in Lincoln park, Jersey City, May 10. Dwyer was playing golf on a course in the park and drove a ball which struck the boy in the left eye. The complaint accuses Dwyer of negligence.

ARLINGTON PARK'S last race card next Saturday will be the biggest day of the meeting — in fact, total purses of the day set a new record for a Western track.

The third Post and Paddock, six furlongs, with 20 two-year-olds competing, will gross more than $53,000, and will be the richest two-year-old special ever staged in the West.

$100,000 in purses

The third Arlington Handicap, also Saturday, a gallop of one mile and a quarter for three-year-olds and over, will be a $39,350 race, if 16 start.

These big stakes and the overnight purses will make a total of more than $100,000.

It is expected that the Arlington Handicap will catch the older horses, such as Gallant Knight, Sun Beau, Caruso, Mike Hall, Hot Toddy, Morsel, Silverdale, Plucky Play, Her Grace, Paul Bunyan, The Nut, Spinach, Gone Away, Satin Spar, Ironsides and Valenciennes. Three-year-old probables are Spanish Play, Sun Meadow and Joey Bibb.

BURNS OATS CROP WHEN FIVE ACRES YIELD ONLY $2.09

Because he received only 11 cents a bushel for five acres of oats, Edward Herbert, 50 years old, farmer, of Elwood, 7 miles south of Joliet, set fire to the remaining seventy-five acres of his oats crop yesterday.

A threshing crew, working throughout the previous day, threshed only 19 bushels of oats from the five acres of cut grain. Hauling this yield to an elevator at Elwood, Herbert received a check for $2.09.

Deciding then that further harvesting would be a waste of money, Herbert paid off the threshing crew and set the remaining seventy-five acres afire with a torch.

SALES OF MALT SHOW FAVOR OF HOME BREWING

Dealers Report Increase in Business.

Family beer making, once as much a household art as bread making, is fast returning to the American home, according to malt extract dealers.

A dozen retail dealers and some manufacturers and wholesalers agreed yesterday that so many people are making home brew that it has been profitable for department stores, chain stores, and even neighborhood grocers to put malt products on the counter. Malt dealers said this rather mournfully, for the widespread sale in hundreds of establishments has cut their profits.

Malt extract first came into vogue with the advent of prohibition, say those who have made a specialty of selling it. One prominent loop dealer has seen his business increase from the day that beer became illegal and he says he has no cause for complaint now—even in the face of the depression.

Sales Above Year Ago.

A manufacturer in a position to know the malt market said that his observations lead him to believe that the 1931 business is "up" from 3 to 5 per cent above last year's.

When beer was readily accessible in the saloons or could be purchased cheaply in bottles for home consumption, there was little reason for the urban housewife to pursue the art of brewing, and it died in the cities save in a transplanted European families who preferred the fruits of ancient formulas handed down through generations.

Beermaking was thus largely a lowbrow trade in the boom times preceding Volsteadism. But when that law was passed the consumer was faced with following one of two courses—he could make his own or he could become a bootlegger or speakeasy patron; perhaps both. Each year an increasing number chose the first alternative, say the dealers, because, they reason, beermaking now is an extremely simple process.

Process Made Simple.

Beermaking, until half a century or so ago, was largely an arduous household task. The Victorian English farm woman, for example, grew her own barley, was her own maltster, extracting the maltose—the sugar—from the grain, adding hops after growing them, and carrying on the entire process of brewing unaided.

Consider then, say the malt purveyors, how simplified all this has become. Roughly speaking, a five pound can of malt extract, plus five gallons of water, a cake of brewing yeast, and a little sugar will produce five gallons of beer, if properly mixed.

"And I can't see why we aren't allowed to mix it," complained a malt dealer yesterday. "The grape grower can sell the juice, install it in jugs in the home, and tend it until it becomes wine—legally. If wine with more than one-half of one per cent alcohol is under the law, why isn't beer? The wine is juice when it comes into the home and our product is only water and yeast and malt extract at the inception and just as nonintoxicating. One process is sanctioned but the other isn't."

Some Points on the Law.

"If a man comes into my store," said a dealer yesterday, "and asks for a can of malt extract, I can sell it to him. If he says, 'I want to make some beer, give me some malt extract,' I can't sell it, for that, in the eyes of the law, shows that I know he is about to violate the Volstead act and I would become a party to the violation."

A local case in point is that against City Sealer Joe Grein, who sells malt extract, hops, tomato juice and other beverages and beverage making materials at 210 West Madison street. Prohibition agents followed up a Supreme court decision barring the sale of beer making equipment if the dealer knew its purpose, by raiding Mr. Grein's establishment and confiscating about $50,000 worth of stock, including tomato juice. The case came before Federal Judge Carpenter who quashed the warrant on which the raid was made and is now considering whether the government request that the confiscated goods be libeled, should be granted.

A near northside dealer remarked that his store is being patronized increasingly by gold coast butlers, now brewmasters as well as servants. The gold coasters are becoming "home brew conscious," the dealer believes.

Enjoys "Seasonal" Trade.

Another dealer on the west side is enjoying a "seasonal" trade, as she described it.

"What do you mean, 'seasonal'?" he was asked.

"I make my money selling this stuff," he replied, "not by speculating on why people buy it. All I know is that about this time of year they buy lots of malt extract; what they do with it is none of my business unless they say they are going to make beer, and then I can't let them buy it."

Joseph Dubin, editor of Malt Age, said the per capita consumption of malt extra is greater than it has ever been before, although the profits are not as high as formerly.

Competition Is Growing.

Mr. Dubin and the dealers interviewed were unanimous on another point, the growing competition. The editor stated that "95 per cent of Chicago's department stores, all the big chain stores, and the bulk of independent grocers and food merchants" are now selling malt extract.

While the malt merchants have been benefiting from the increased use of their product, the near-beer manufacturers are seeing better times with the growing consumption of "spiked" beer. A $2 case of near-beer, a quart of alcohol for another $4, an eye dropper, and a capping machine at a cost of $1.50 can be used to produce a case of high-powered brew in thirty minutes' time, if haste is desired.

SEIZE TRUCKLOAD OF DOC TILTON'S CANCER MEDICINE

A truckload, 1,800 bottles of so-called cancer specific, distributed by Lester Tilton, who is under investigation by federal agents of the food and drug administration, was seized by a deputy United States marshal yesterday at the Felician Sisters convent, 3800 Peterson avenue. The seizure was made on a court order obtained by Assistant United States Attorney Alfred Bosworth. Tilton is alleged to have shipped the stuff from Clinton, Ia., in interstate commerce.

PEER ON TRIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 29.—While a battery of England's finest lawyers today were winding up their arguments in the trial of Lord Kylsant, chairman of the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, who is charged with issuing false balance sheets and company prospecti, Sir Arthur Wheeler, another big figure in the British financial world, went on trial for the fraudulent conversion of money entrusted to his company.

Sir Arthur, who is 70 years old, was formerly the head of one of the largest firms of outside brokers in England. Last March receivership orders were made against Wheeler and his partner, George Victor Smith, 44 years old, who is also on trial.

According to the prosecutor in the Leicester police court, where the trial opened, Wheeler's clients were invited to convert their old war bonds into a conversion loan, and many handed over their stock but did not receive new certificates.

The closing arguments of the attorneys in the case against Kylsant, whose co-defendant is H. J. Morland, an accountant, occupied today's session. Tomorrow the judge will sum up the case, which will then go to the jury.

HULL DECLARES FINLAND'S DRY LAW IS FAILURE

Says Sweden Has Best Liquor System.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, July 29.—Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria, Ill., is spending some time in Finland studying this country's prohibition problem, his visit coinciding with the International Temperance congress in Helsingfors, which opposes all efforts to repeal the prohibition law.

The official leader of the Finnish teetotalers, Counselor Liakka, in his opening speech declared that the nation must be equally strong in its fight against the wets as against communists, as wets and communists are equally dangerous to the community.

Congressman Hull in an interview said:

"In my study of Finnish prohibition I find it is the same problem we have in the United States, and, while the Finnish are a quiet and industrious people, they rebel against dictation regarding what they may eat and drink.

Calls Finnish Law Failure.

"I have made inquiries among different classes, and, from all I can see, the law isn't as well enforced in Finland as in America. You can go into practically any Finnish hotel and most restaurants and buy liquor by paying a very high price. The poor man secures through a bootlegger 96 per cent alcohol, imported mostly from countries south of the Baltic. I am convinced from statement by officials and the general public that prohibition will not succeed, and that shortly there probably will be modification of the law.

Says People Want Liquor.

"I am also convinced that it would be greatly advantageous if Finland could introduce similar alcohol legislation as in Sweden. Under present conditions liquor is easy to get. Consequently a poor many buys what he pleases, gets drunk, and is put in prison. I understand the law was passed for the benefit of the poor, but I am under the impression, from what I have seen, that it has been just to the contrary. The poor man seems to suffer most."

CHINESE REBELS SEIZE CITY IN DRIVE ON PEIPING

TIENTSIN, China, July 29.—(AP)—The rebel forces of Gen. Shih Yu-san, reinforced from Shansi province, launched a general attack today upon Manchurian allies of the Nationalist government and captured the city of Paotingfu. Shih was reported to have taken 8,000 prisoners in a drive toward Peiping, 80 miles northward.

Simultaneously, Tsangchow, a town 60 miles southeast of Paotingfu, was attacked by plain clothes soldiers of Shih Yu-san. The Manchurian defenders, surprised, fled toward Tientsin, 60 miles to the north.

In their movement northward through Chihli province, the rebels are advancing in two columns. One force, with Peiping its objective, is following the Peiping-Hankow railway. The other army is moving along the Tientsin-Pukow railway toward Tientsin.

CRUSADERS OPEN SCHOOL TO TRAIN WET DIRECTORS

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The Crusaders announced yesterday that they had established a training school to prepare state directors to take charge of their anti-prohibition organization in the ten states of the north central division, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Nebraska, the two Dakotas and Missouri.

IRA L. REEVES.

The school, established at headquarters, 221 North La Salle street, is under the direction of Col. Ira L. Reeves, regional manager for the Crusaders, and the first graduates are to be assigned to Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri.

Four men are now taking the course in directorship and six more have been picked for training as soon as the first four are graduated. The diplomas confer a new degree of B. B. A. [bachelor of bigotry annihilation].

Pick Natives of States.

"We are picking natives of the states to which they are assigned," said Col. Reeves, "in order that we shall not be accused of the carpet bagging tactics employed by the Anti-Saloon league.

"We expect to send our Iowa graduate into Des Moines about the middle of August. In the last 60 days we have received letters from 213 former drys asking us for help. We expect to land several congressmen.

"In dry Kansas a dry revolt is in progress. Some of our letters from former drys who want to return to the old state prohibition law without federal interference. We now have in training a native Kansan, who served with me overseas and who is convinced the ex-service men of Kansas will do all they can to get rid of Volsteadism and the 18th amendment."

Anderson Seen Candidate.

Indications were given yesterday that Ald. Louis B. Anderson, one of the two Negro members of the city council, might run for congress against Congressman Oscar DePriest, the only Negro in congress. The new remap of the congressional districts extends the old 1st district until it embraces all the Negro population of the south side. It now runs as far south as 67th street, and of its 345 precincts, 260 are dominated by the Negro vote. Ald. Anderson, who has been looking the ground over, says if the situation continues to look as it does, he may enter as a candidate later.

Democratic headquarters reiterated yesterday that the Illinois delegation to the Democratic national convention would be instructed for Senator James Hamilton Lewis. It will be headed by Mayor Cermak. Yesterday the leaders met with the mayor to straighten out the overlapping ward committeeships caused by the recent adoption of the new wards.

FIND WOMAN DEAD IN HOME.

Police who broke into the home of Kate Doddy, 60 years old, 5221 South Halsted street, yesterday after neighbors reported that they had not seen her for several days, found her dead from heart disease.

COPS ON PRIVATE DUTY IN SPITE OF CERMAK'S ORDER

Ettelson Complains of Four Guards.

Former Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettelson visits his south side home at 1028 East 46th street only three or four times a week. During these visits Mr. Ettelson says he has at times been puzzled to observe a man standing in front of his home. He also noticed a man standing in front of the home of his nephew, Ald. Bert A. Cronson, at 1036 East 46th street, two doors away.

Mr. Ettelson never gave the matter much thought until he was informed last night that the two men were policemen in plain clothes assigned to guard his home and that of his nephew every day during the daytime. Moreover, Mr. Ettelson was astounded to learn, two uniformed policemen stand guard over the two houses every night, under orders from Capt. John A. Hogan of the Hyde Park police station.

Doesn't Want Guards.

"Why, I'm astonished to hear that," Mr. Ettelson declared. "I don't need a guard over my house. I only go out there from Mondays to Fridays. If there are policemen on guard there, I don't want them."

These four policemen standing guard over two private homes are not the only patrolmen of the Hyde Park district assigned to nonessential police details, an examination of the station records showed. Mayor Cermak has ordered these unnecessary details to be abolished and Acting Police Commissioner Alcock declared some time ago that he would follow the mayor's orders.

The Zouh drug store at 4501 Cottage Grove avenue has a special police guard every Thursday from 9 a. m. to midnight, the record revealed. The store was held up a year and a half ago and the detail has been assigned there since then.

Claim Protection Needed.

"A police guard is needed," it was explained at the drug store. "Employés at the Drexel telephone exchange office next door get their checks cashed at the store on Thursdays and protection is needed for the large amount of money in the store."

The same reason was given as an excuse by the proprietor of the restaurant at 5201 Cottage Grove avenue who refused to give his name. He has a police guard every Thursday because, he explained, he cashes checks on that day for employés of the Chicago Motor Coach company.

Six policemen from the Hyde Park district, divided into shifts of two each every eight hours, maintain constant watch over a building under construction at 59th street and Blackstone avenue by the Wilson Construction company.

An official of the Kenwood State bank, 1159 East 47th street, who refused to give his name, curtly dismissed a reporter who sought to learn why a policeman, detailed for traffic duty at the corner, spends time in the bank.

U. S. MAY PERMIT EX-SOVIET FIRM OFFICIAL TO STAY

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—A former official of soviet Russia's trading corporation, Amtorg, today was involved in American immigration laws, but indications were he would be permitted to remain in the country.

The labor department was engaged in a study of the status of Ivan Matveef, who entered the United States as a machine tool buyer for a Russian company and later became vice president of Amtorg.

PERRY JURORS VIEW MURDER SCENE OF WIFE

State Opens Case Against Bigamist Today.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Eagle River, Wis., July 29.—[Special.]—A mottled puppy snuffled at the heels of George W. E. Perry, polygamous Milwaukee brakeman, as he stood beside a patch of brush under the towering birches along a swamp road bordering the Lac du Flambeau reservation of the Chippewa Indians. There the body of Cora Belle Hackett, his third and bigamous bride, for whose murder he is being tried, was found last Oct. 1 three months after she was felled with a rifle bullet in the base of her skull.

Beside Perry edged twelve solemn men—the jurymen who are to hear the tale of his courtship of the 50 year old former Milwaukee school teacher and saleswoman for the subscription department of the Chicago Art institute, and her slaying during an ideal honeymoon on July 6, 1930. They are to hear, too, of his flight leaving a trail of wives until his arrest last May in San Francisco, where he found a seventh mate.

Perry's Hand Trembles.

As the jury shuffled for a better view of the plot, thick with marsh grasses, one stepped on a paw of the dog. The puppy emitted a shrill yelp. Perry started, and then reached to pat the pup. His hand trembled.

The visit to the scene of the crime was made at the request of Attorney John Dolan of Milwaukee on the completion of the selection of the jury shortly before noon. Judge C. M. Davison of Beaver Dam, Wis., presiding at the trial, accompanied the jurors with Special Prosecutor A. J. Omelia of Rhinelander, who is assisting District Attorney Edmund H. Drager and Attorney Dolan.

Call Witnesses Today.

The jurors filed into a neat room with a brass bed, two chairs, dresser and a wash stand. A breeze rustled the curtain of a window overlooking Crawlin' Stone lake. Perry displayed no emotion during the ride, remaining silent throughout the drive beside Sheriff Thomas McGregor. At the cottage he wiped his bald head continuously with a silk handkerchief.

From the cottage the party drove to the reservation, leaving their cars and pushing through the brush to the scene. The jurors were returned to the courthouse where they were locked up for the night. The state is to put on its first witnesses tomorrow morning. Fifteen witnesses are to present a chain of evidence aimed to send Perry to Waupun penitentiary for life—there is no capital punishment in Wisconsin.

Attorney Dolan has indicated Perry will not take the stand. The defense counsel said he has two or three witnesses, who may not be called. The defense is to offer argument that Mrs. Hackett may have been killed by an Indian on the reservation.

Jury Is Selected.

The jury was selected after Judge Davison called a second panel of veniremen. Eight of these were qualified and sat beside the twelve tentative jurors chosen yesterday. Four peremptory challenges were made by both the state and defense. Each has employed seven of the allotted twelve. After a short conference attorneys announced they were ready to proceed.

In the challenging, Mrs. Abbie Gloyd, mother of seven, and the lone woman tentative juror, was dismissed. Another was dismissed yesterday. The jury includes five farmers, three merchants, two carpenters, a retired salesman, and a laborer.

FILE LANDON WILL HERE TO PROTECT TITLES TO REALTY

In order to perfect title to Illinois real estate valued at $901,120, the will of the late Mrs. Jessie Spalding Landon of Indianapolis was filed for probate in the court of Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Henry Horner, yesterday. Mrs. Landon, daughter of the late Jesse Spalding, Chicago lumberman and capitalist, died at Seal Harbor, Me., on June 26, 1930.

Mrs. Landon's will, filed in Indiana shortly after her death, left $345,000 to charitable organizations here, and another $300,000 for charity in Indianapolis. Her husband, Hugh McK. Landon, Indianapolis banker, received $300,000, and the remainder of the estate, valued in all at $1,750,000, was divided between four nieces and nephews.

ROBBERY SUSPECTS RELEASED.

Dominick Brancato, 24 years old, 1154 Sedgwick street and Samuel Lucy, 28 years old, 618 Sigel street, arrested Monday as robbery suspects, were freed by Judge Francis Borrelli in the South State street court yesterday on the failure of their supposed victims to identify them.

INJUNCTION TO HALT WARD REMAP ASKED BY WOODLAWN MEN

The Woodlawn Business Men's association filed a petition yesterday in the Superior court asking an injunction to restrain the city from carrying out the ward redistricting plan recently approved by the city council.

The bill filed by Attorney Charles F. Burke charges that the redistricting plan does not fulfill the provisions of the state law on the subject, which requires that the wards be compact and contiguous, and of approximately equal population.

The bill says that the redistricted First ward contains a population of only 56,000, while the seventh has 83,000. It also charges that for political reasons the Woodlawn community has been split between three different wards.

FATE OF CAPONE RESTS IN HANDS OF JUDGE TODAY

possibilities. If he were sentenced to three years in the penitentiary on one or more of the felony counts, the sentences to run concurrently, and a year and a day each on three other felony counts, these sentences to run consecutively, the total sentence would be three years and three days, but Capone would not be eligible for parole after a year and a day. He would not be eligible until he had served four months of the third term.

Case of Brother Ralph.

Capone's brother, Ralph, was sentenced in this manner by Judge Wilkerson. Ralph received a total prison sentence of three years and three consecutive jail sentences of one year each. The defense on appeal objected to this, contending that it rendered void the parole provisions, but the Appellate court ruled that the manner of sentence rests with the District court.

Six days a month would be allowed Capone for good behavior, if he were sentenced to three years in prison, so that he would have to serve approximately 29 months, assuming a parole were not forthcoming, on a straight sentence of that length.

Another possibility is that Capone, in addition to a penitentiary sentence, will be placed on probation for a stated period, to begin upon his release from prison.

Say Gangs Dread Probation.

This was done by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley in sentencing "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn, Capone henchman. Federal officials declare that hoodlums dread probation almost as much as a prison sentence, because of the drastic provisions of the federal probation laws.

Even after the expiration of the stated probationary period, and at any time within the period to which the defendant might originally have been sentenced, he is subject to arrest if caught violating any federal or state law. Moreover, he may be taken before the court and resentenced to the maximum of his original possible punishment.

In Capone's case this would mean if at any time within thirty-four years he were caught violating the law—say, carrying a gun—he could be arrested and sentenced to thirty-four years, less his original sentence.

Due in Court at 10 A. M.

Capone yesterday was reported holding final conferences with his hoodlum retainers at the Lexington hotel, while federal officials were putting the finishing touches on their summary of the evidence.

Capone is to appear in court at 10 o'clock this morning, and the prosecutors, Dwight H. Green, for income tax, and Victor E. La Rue, for the conspiracy charge, will make their statements to the court. The principal government agents in each case are expected to be called, and at the conclusion of the testimony District Attorney Johnson will make his recommendations to the court.

Government agents from all branches of service will be on hand to handle the crowds expected at the federal building. Chief of Detectives John Norton has delegated a squad of ten policemen, under Lieut. William McCarthy, to report to Charles Nagle, assistant custodian of the building.

Dawes' Daughter, Camera Shy, Gets a Continuance

Apparently aware of the photographers awaiting her appearance at the Evanston police court to answer a charge of speeding, Miss Virginia Dawes, 17 years old, Northwestern university student and daughter of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, telephoned Magistrate Harry H. Porter that she was "indisposed" and requested him to continue the case a week. The magistrate set the case for Saturday.

CERMAK TO ACT TODAY ON NEW PHONE FRANCHISE

Ordinance Expected to Be Put Into Effect.

Mayor Cermak will act today upon the franchise grant to the Illinois Bell Telephone company which the city council adopted ten days ago by a vote of 37 to 12.

W. H. SEXTON.

The mayor at this afternoon's meeting of the council has four alternatives in dealing with the franchise. He may sign or veto it, permit it to go into effect without his signature, or send it back to the council with a request for alterations. He declined last night to announce his decision, although it was the general belief that he would not veto the measure.

Sexton Completes Analysis.

Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton yesterday completed an analysis of the franchise ordinance for submission to the mayor, who has indicated that he will be governed largely by the corporation counsel's recommendations.

Should the franchise go into effect, according to Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the committee which drafted the ordinance, the company immediately will pay to the city $4,250,000 back compensation, due since the expiration of the old ordinance in January, 1929.

Several other important ordinances are scheduled to come before the council for final passage today, among them that of Ald. John Massen [48th] requiring all contractors to keep a uniform system of books and accounts. This ordinance has been indorsed by the Citizens' association as a measure which should trim millions of dollars in excess profits from city contracts.

Will Act on Traffic Code.

The council also will act upon the model traffic code ordinance submitted by its traffic committee and probably upon a new ordinance providing for the creation of a central purchasing department. Corporation Counsel Sexton expects to have the purchasing department ordinance ready for submission so it can be considered under a suspension of the rules.

Mayor Cermak announced that he would submit at the council meeting the appointment of George F. Getz, chairman of the board of the Globe Coal company, as a member of the police pension fund board.

Today's meeting of the council will be its last before adjournment for the summer vacation. An adjournment is expected to be taken until September.

SHE APOLOGIZES TO POLICE FOR LOSING TEMPER

Two fellow members of the Park Ridge Country club faced each other across the judicial bench of the Shakespeare Avenue court yesterday. They were Judge Edgar A. Jonas and Mrs. Pearl Potter, 30 years old, 831 Crescent avenue, Park Ridge, who was charged with disorderly conduct. Mrs. Potter, it was charged, kicked and struck at two policemen after they recovered a $1,500 diamond ring which she had reported stolen.

Mrs. Potter told Judge Jonas that she had been held up by two men while she was fixing a flat tire at 6500 Milwaukee avenue while on her way home from the club. She said she lost her temper after the police found the ring in the car because she thought they were trying to "put something over."

She apologized to the policemen and the judge discharged her after warning her against too frequent trips to the nineteenth hole after her rounds of golf.

CALL ON MAYOR TO VETO TWO TAG DAY ORDINANCES

Proposals Up Today in Council.

Mayor Cermak yesterday was reported to have received dozens of telegrams and letters urging him to veto the two ordinances for tag days pending before the city council should the council pass them at its meeting today. The mayor declined to say in advance what action he would take.

One of the ordinances would allow a tag day on Aug. 15 for the Chicago Babies' Free Milk fund, sponsored by Mrs. W. R. Hearst of New York, while the other would permit the sale of forget-me-nots on Sept. 26 by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

Foes Attack Proposals.

Opponents of the ordinance say their passage would shatter the precedent established by the council in the past of limiting tag days to four a year. The groups to which the tag sales have been limited are the Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult Charities, the Chicago Federated Charities, the Children's Benefit league, and a "poppy day" group of veterans' organizations.

Efforts were made to include the Disabled American Veterans in the "poppy day" group but after a disagreement over division of the tag profits the organization decided to demand a separate flower day, which has been granted to it from year to year by special ordinances.

State Commander Replies.

Howard F. O'Brien, state commander of the Disabled American Veterans, yesterday sent letters to the aldermen replying to letters sent out by the Handicaped Ex-Service Men's league urging defeat of the separate tag day ordinance. O'Brien charged that the league is without official standing.

The council also will act today upon an order authorizing the chairman of its finance committee to pick the organizations allowed to participate in the Chicago Federated Charities tag day on Sept. 14. Miss L. Ellen Babcock, president of the federated group, has opposed this order on the ground that it might result in abuses.

Executive Ordered to Pay Wife $100 a Week Alimony

James B. Mosher, a director of the Sterling Public Finance company at Sterling, Ill., was ordered by Judge E. I. Frankhauser yesterday to pay temporary alimony of $100 a week to Mrs. Florence Phelps Mosher. She is suing him for divorce, charging cruelty, drunkenness, and adultery. In her bill she asserts that he is worth $250,000, and receives a salary of $25,000 a year from the finance company.

14 times as much for YOUR MONEY as you got just after the war

Few, if any, articles you buy represent such a tremendous value today as a Goodyear Tire.

You can get these tires now at the lowest prices in history—but even that does not clearly tell the whole story.

You also get greater mileage than you ever received before.

Take just one size—the commonest size—for instance. In 1918 the price of a 30 x 3½ cord tire was $41.65. Today, a Goodyear balloon for the same make of car (size 28x4.75-19) sells for $8.55. And it is conservative to say that this modern Goodyear will travel three times as far.

Three times the mileage—for scarcely more than one-fifth the cost!

Other sizes range in almost the same proportion.

With prices and values where they are today—no one can afford to take a chance with worn-out rubber. So buy as many tires as you need—buy Goodyears since this first-choice tire costs no more than less popular standard makes—at prices like the ones quoted.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A TALE OF TWO CITIES.

Two stories on the front page on Wednesday belong together. One of them told the half hearted and wholly inadequate measures taken by the Chicago school board in the direction of economy. The other reported the soundness of municipal finances in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee has money in the bank and has no difficulty in borrowing such sums as are needed in anticipation of taxes. In five years, so says Deputy Controller Wendt, Milwaukee will be on a cash basis. If it can be done in Milwaukee it can be done in Chicago. If Chicago's finances are chaotic and Chicago's credit is virtually exhausted it is because of waste and bad management. If Chicago is ever to be restored to a sound condition it must come through careful economy and good management.

It is plain that the board of education, with its present holdover majority from the previous administration, is both unable and unwilling to undertake a rigorous retrenchment. The board refuses to consider action based on the belief that the soft spots in its budget are the items for school maintenance and for building and other contracts. The board has shown little ability to discriminate between essentials and nonessentials in a school system. To the majority of the trustees, a school janitor is as important a figure in the educational world as a teacher. One consequence of this doctrine as practiced in the past has been that the teachers today are not paid. A continuance of the board's refusal to live within its means can only result in a prolonging of the present gross injustice to the teaching force.

The members of the school board in 1931 face a task of unexampled difficulty in the annals of Chicago's schools. They must make up for the follies and extravagances of previous years without wrecking the school system. The difficulties are enormous and they will not be solved as long as the school board is dominated by second rate minds and political objectives. There will be no substantial improvement in the condition of the schools until the holdover members of the board get out of the way. As they seem unwilling to retire of their own accord, pressure must be applied.

SOCIALIZATION.

The Wisconsin Federation of Labor has indorsed a plan for the socialization of industry in that state as the ultimate solution of the problems of unemployment. This is an addendum to the remark so popular these days that capitalism is on trial. The leaders of Wisconsin organized labor have already tried capitalism and brought a verdict against it. Under the most consistent and thorough system of capitalism in the world Wisconsin labor enjoys the highest standard of living in the world. It has had more independence, more comforts more progress and better prospects of continued progress than the labor of any other country, including that of the most socialised countries. But it wants to tear up the road it has traveled so far. In Æsop's Fables there is the story of a dog crossing a stream. He had a large piece of meat in his mouth and, looking into the mirrored surface of the stream, he saw a dog with a large piece of meat in his mouth. So he dropped his meat and leaped at the other dog. When he came up, his meat had gone. Perhaps Wisconsin labor might consider that fable with profit.

Capitalist society is indeed on trial. It always is. So is socialism on trial all over the world. Capitalism has no apologies to make to socialism. If Wisconsin labor will use its common sense, it will think of its gains and its condition under the economic, social, and political system of the United States and ask itself if it wants to exchange it for that of labor in Russia, the most socialistic country in the world, or indeed in any of the countries of Europe which in varying degrees have adopted socialistic devices for solving their problems.

The people of the United States are going through a great trial, as they have before, and as all other peoples are. If because of this trial they desert the ideals and principles of freedom and turn to socialism they will not even have the excuse for their folly of experimenting with a new plan for socialism is no novelty, but is in its various devices contributing more to the obstruction of restoration and advance in Europe, and therefore to our own than any other cause.

Capitalism is not so much on trial as the intelligence of the American people. The Wisconsin Federation of Labor may be ready to repudiate the American faith in progress through freedom, its institutions and principles which have built the streamline of American life, distributing a wider prosperity and a larger hope of progress for the worker than have been enjoyed by any other people. But we do not think the passing tribulations of this hour will find the American nation so weak as to tempt them to barter their heritage for a system which wherever it has been or is being tried has failed.

OFFICERS OF THE FUTURE.

Today a great educational institution opens its doors for the season. It is the Citizens' Military Training camp, school of citizenship and patriotism, builder of health and character, of body and mind, a democratic academy open on equal terms to all, as far as congress has made provision, to the city boy and the country boy, the boy from a modest home and the boy of wealth.

The training camps offer an inspiring experience to American youth. For the nation they are making good citizens and supplying the material from which the officers of its army in any great emergency will be chosen. The graduates of the reserve officers' camps and the citizens' training camps are the combat officers of the future.

That American youth seeks this privilege eagerly is one of the most encouraging signs of our American life today. The pity is that congress makes an inadequate provision for them. In the 6th corps area, of which Chicago is the headquarters, there were 9,000 applicants and only provision for half that number to be distributed among camps at Fort Sheridan, Fort Brady at the Sault, Camp Custer in Michigan and Jefferson barracks at St. Louis. In the country there were 81,000 applicants, and only 37,500 provided for. Thus some 40,000 boys were disappointed of their honorable ambition this year. Twenty thousand of those trained this year will wish to return next year, so that to be sure of getting in boys will have to apply two years ahead.

We think congress should show a better appreciation of the service these camps are performing. It is not practicable to increase the numbers suddenly because training personnel is not ready. But the numbers should be increased by not less than 10 per cent or perhaps better up to 20 per cent year by year, until every American boy may have this experience.

Meanwhile, special appreciation should be expressed for two important contributors to the success of the camps. One of these is the reserve officers who are helping the regular army instructors in the training. It is a valuable experience for these young officers and congress should increase the appropriation needed for this assistance.

Another aid, and an essential one, is the Military Training Camps' association, a body of civilians which is helping to finance and administer the necessary preliminaries to the camps. There is a member of this citizens' organization in every county, who sees to the necessary announcements, registering of applications and other publicity. Thus the boys of remote counties have as good a chance as any other. The Military Training Camps' association is made up of leading men throughout the United States and its service has been and is essential to the success of this system of citizen training. It is a great agency of American morale.

WHITE SOX ADVERSITIES.

White Sox fans are the most loyal body of enthusiasts in the world. They can take adversity as if it were Santa Claus and make defeat a festival with flowers and music. They forever bob up serenely without a grouch and without despair. There's always a better day tomorrow. The good will of the south siders is traditional and profitable. They are with the team wherever it is.

The Sox are in seventh place, just barely out of the basement. The owner of the team is in the Wisconsin woods. The manager hasn't enough pitchers to play his games. The team has been in an embarrassment of double headers. It can play one of the two games and win, but the second would be better forfeited. Donie Bush sends in tired and unfit pitchers whose reputation is ruined when they are hopped by batters to whom everything pitched is money from home. Batting averages are fattened by the collapse of White Sox pitching. The Sox took the Yankees, 5 to 4, in the first game Sunday and then lost, 22 to 5. The second game came nearly being cricket. They beat New York, 8 to 7, in the first game Monday, and then lost, 12 to 3. Bush can't do anything about it. He can't rest his few pitchers and may have to bring in the outfielders for a turn on the mound whether they can find the plate or not.

The loyalties of this generation of Sox fans date back to the scrappy team which, as the hitless wonders, took the world's championship from the classy Cubs under Frank Chance. The Sox are now the pitchless wonders, but can't be expected to make the grade.

There seems to be a moral in the episode. Baseball for the most part is distinctly a business of success. Mr. Wrigley probably would give half his building for a team to set the Athletics back four straight, but most of the owners are in on a profit basis. If they give their towns poor teams they expect to make their money in the good ball towns. Usually a poor ball team makes a poor ball town. Chicago is a good ball town, but the cheerful enthusiasms of the White Sox loyalists have been cashed in by the White Sox owner as a profitable substitute for an adequate pay roll.

The moral is that it does not pay to be uncritical. A good natured, likable human quality of sticking in adversity has brought adversity as a companion. The fans will whoop for what they have and the management gives it to them. The thing has a larger application. An uncritical people is a soft one ripe for picking and usually picked.

Editorial of the Day

NO MORE WET HAYCOCKS.

[The New York Sun.]

The adage "Make hay while the sun shines" soon may lose much of its point. After many experiments an artificial hay dryer has been perfected and its practicality already has been proved. The first one in New York state is now in operation on the 700 acre farm of E. B. Ashton, near Saratoga. Green hay brought straight from the fields is run through a chopper which cuts it into suitable lengths. It then passes through a rotary cylinder, where the moisture is removed by heated gases. The dried hay is blown into the mow or storage bin, or it may even be packed in bags for storage or shipment.

A large volume of hay is required to justify investment in an artificial dryer. However, the economy effected is so great that in the near future hay dryers may be taken from farm to farm as were the old threshing machines. Hay cured artificially has an augmented food value through increase of protein content and digestible carbohydrates, improved flavor and aroma and a seven-fold increase of vitamin A content. The cutting process makes for easier storage of the cured hay, and the worry caused by whimsies of the sun is eliminated.

Improvements on the farm progress almost as steadily as they do in the industrial world. Electric hotbeds and soil heating and electric light traps for orchard pests are recent additions to a total of 225 agricultural devices involving the use of electricity.

TRAINING MOSQUITOES.

THE influence of Mussolini is so strong in Italy that it flavors the point of view and the proceedings of scientists and sanitarians, even as though they were politicians.

Malaria has long been a major economic problem in Italy. There are great historians who say that the glory that was Rome went up in smoke because malaria destroyed the vigor of the Romans. Of course, this is denied, but what theory about the cause of the fall of Rome is not denied?

About a generation ago Italy tried to stage a comeback. Among the procedures adopted by their statesmen was malaria control. A part of that control was what they termed "human bonification" and a part of their bonification plan was to have the state make and distribute quinine. The poor were given all they needed and the rich got it at cost. The scheme worked only fairly well.

Then came the spirit of Mussolini over the land. If a thing was good for man or beast it must be tried, regardless of opposition. The scientists decided that malaria control must center on the mosquito. Since control of mosquito breeding was difficult and costly they would change the taste of the mosquitoes. They must teach their mosquitoes to love the smell of cows, and the taste of cow's blood, and, conversely, to lose their appetite for human blood and to be nauseated by the odors of man.

The matter came to be talked about abroad. A great international scientific society sent two scientists, Drs. L. W. Hackett and A. Missiroli to investigate. They report that the plan is working. Some malarial regions have become more malarial. The malarial mosquitoes are now feeding on cows' blood and are letting human beings alone. This is resulting in control of human malaria in certain regions.

It was noted in the beginning of the experiment that mosquitoes could be trained to bite canaries. After a few generations the experimenters had a breed of mosquitoes that would not bite human beings. The experiment was extended to cows. After a few generations mosquitoes on trial had bills strong enough to penetrate a cow's hide readily and their appetite was altogether for cow blood. The plan, as applied, consists in screening malaria mosquitoes away from people as much as possible, but giving them the freest possible access to cows in warm stables. After a few generations there are no more mosquitoes that insist on human blood and the prevailing type is the cow blood variety. The control of mosquito breeding is of secondary importance in this plan.

CAUSES OF BOILS.

K. M. I. writes:

1. What causes boils and carbuncles?
2. Are they caused by poor blood, run-down condition, too rich a diet, or too much candy?
3. What is the treatment for them?
4. Are they contagious?

REPLY.

1. Infection of the skin, usually with a staphylococcus. Among the contributing causes are: Irritation of the skin, occupational exposures, diabetes.
2. Poor blood, whatever that is, is not the cause. The same answer as to rundown condition. Diet is not an important factor. Too much starch and sugar in the diet may contribute.
3. In the main, the treatment is local. It consists in keeping the skin very clean; avoiding occupational causes, in so far as that is possible; applying staphylococcus phage; attention to contributing causes, as treating diabetes, or changing diet.
4. Not in a proper sense. There are certain related skin conditions that are contagious.

ASK THE RAILROAD.

Chicago, July 22. — [Friend of the People.]—What is the reason for the delay in opening Augusta boulevard between Homan avenue and Grand avenue? Almost a year ago a sign was erected stating that the C., M. & St. P. railroad was proceeding with the work, but to date nothing has been accomplished. Anything that can be done to speed up this work will be appreciated by the thousands who use this thoroughfare every day. G. L. L.

The matter of hurrying the completion of the viaduct over Grand avenue at Augusta boulevard has been taken up with the C., M. & St. P. railroad on several occasions. We appreciate the inconvenience to the motoring public and to this end have done everything possible, officially and otherwise, to hurry this work, but as to the exact date as to when the same shall be completed, would prefer to let the railroad company answer for itself.

R. J. DALY, Secretary,
West Chicago Park Commissioners.

CANNOT RECOVER.

Chicago, July 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A lady buys a dress for cash and pays a deposit on another dress which wasn't taken from the store. For various reasons said lady is unable to pay the balance on the second dress. Can she get her deposit back? She asked for it the next day but was refused. What is the procedure? W. D. R.

She would not be entitled to recover the deposit on the bare facts stated, but as long as the storekeeper continues to hold the deposit they would have to be ready to deliver the dress.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A BIT VAGUE.

Chicago, July 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—First party buys and pays for a lot and two years after, second party builds the house on it. The property is mortgaged. Still two years later property is foreclosed for the sum of money due. The equity equals the mortgage. 1. Has the first party a legal right to claim the sum of money paid for the lot or the ownership of the same? 2. After the foreclosure proceeding is gone through and the house is rented, who has the legal right to collect the monthly rentals? M. K.

1. Money paid by whom and to whom? You do not state whether there was an agreement and, if so, what its terms were between the first party and the second party. If the facts were such that the mortgage was valid, then the foreclosure could cut off all the rights of both parties.
2. During the 15 months for redemption, the defendant in the foreclosure proceedings will collect the rent unless a receiver is appointed.

SIR HUBERT WILKINS says his submarine, the Nautilus, will dive under the ice and come up and tie to the north pole Aug. 25. Lots of people are shaking their heads and saying he'll never do it. But they said that when Columbus sailed to discover a new world. And they said that trains would never be pulled by steam and that man would never fly in the air like a bird, and that the human voice would never be heard thousands of miles away without any wires or connections of any kind, and that buggies and wagons would never run around without horses hitched to 'em. People even said that U. S. Steel would never reduce its dividend to four dollars a share.

OX-CARTS VERSUS WINGS.

Indifferent to the obvious, we say,
"What of it?"
But ask of the intangible,
"Why?" "Where?" "When?" "Whither?"
"Whence?"
The obvious is a rusted coin we scour
To find its value in a sordid mart;
The intangible—a cobweb, gem-bespangled
Breaking its iridescence in our hands
But to be spun anew upon a loom
Whose flying shuttles go
Forever, to and fro,
In soundless weaving of the tenuous veil
Shrouding in swirling folds
Around our futile guessing.
Ah!—never may we insult the intangible
With a casual "What of it?"

THA DUKE GETS A LETTER FROM THA MAMA.

Dick: Tha B. an C. in sojourneying with her folks in tha wilds of Milwaukee. Today I gets a letter. Instead of her telling me what she's doing, she writes 6 pages tellin me what I'm gonna do. Seems she fergot to put a newspaper under our canary's cage on account tha Gally Curtchie spits seeds, take it from me, if that peroxide sparrow ever starts another Poet & Peasant at 2 o'clock in tha morning she's gonna spit blood instead of seed. Tha next chore is to empty tha pan under that ice box every night at 9 o'clock. Course if I happen to be shootin a little Kelly pool an tha clock strikes 9 I'm certainly gonna drop my cue an duck home (likehelliyam). If I open tha can of sardines I shood clean tha sink an put tha can in tha garbage cause tha Mama says fish is like strawberry short cake to a cockroach. I opened tha can last night an if a roach aint got any more brains than to eat that cod liver oil he deserves to be born a cockroach. Tha pleasant dootys next on tha list is to take back 3 empty bottles to tha grocery an get 14c. Also, to wrap up tha dirdy clothes in a bed sheet an deliver same to tha washwoman. This act I did an tha hell of it was I had to make a round trip cause M'lle. Shutzenkraut claims 2 previous massages aint yet paid fer. Ennyway this morning I took tha stuff to tha Chinaman who also had some sort of an argument of a financial trend, not being up on tha Chinese lingo, but having an inkling that tha queue bearer meant dirt when he says "Walla bout nynee tatata two cents flum lass wickee," I just used a little diplomacy and said "Sure, John, tha Russians an tha Japs are no good," an damned if he didn' dish me out a check. Tha B. an C. states that Aunt Sophie's varicose veins are now O. K. so it looks like there's at least one thing I don't have to fix. Also, Uncle Hennery wants to be remembered, this is unnecessary cause I'll always remember that sap. He's tha bird that wood win in any prize hog contest. Lass summer he sponged on us an I hands him a pint of red an he didn' come up for air fer 2 full minutes. Tha only instrument a Doc. wood need on him fer a lung tester would be a pint bottle. Just as I thought, tha 3 bucks pin money I gave tha Mama is dissipated an I'm to send 2 more berries. After writing our Congressman, he advises to declare a moratorium.

OH, HORRORS! George M. Cohan has presented to President Hoover a song he has written especially for the George Washington bicentennial. We know George's style and we much fear his song to the illustrious G. Washington will go something like this:

You're a grand old guy,
You're as high as the sky,
You're bigger than you was at Valley Forge;
Every hat off to you,
Our Yankee Doodle Doo,
Three cheers for our good old George.

CHORUS:

Over there, over there, over there,
George is gone, but his fame here will stay;
So, cheer for his name. Remember the Maine,

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 30, 1915.

CHICAGO.—The relief fund for the Eastland sufferers received additions yesterday amounting to $35,239, swelling the total to $287,232, exclusive of the Western Electric company's $100,000 fund. TRIBUNE readers have contributed a total of $14,436 thus far. The toll now stands as follows: Identified bodies, 534; unidentified, 1; reported missing, 518.

OSSINING, N. Y.—Charles Becker, former police lieutenant in New York, went to his death in the electric chair in Sing Sing penitentiary shortly before 6 o'clock this morning. His was the fifth life which the state demanded for the conspiracy which resulted in the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, who was shot down in front of the Metropole hotel in New York on July 16, 1912. Becker had been convicted of hiring a band of thugs to do away with Rosenthal to prevent the exposure of police graft in New York's tenderloin. The four gunmen who were convicted of the actual shooting — "Dago Frank," "Lefty" Louis, "Whitey" Lewis, and "Gyp the Blood"—were executed on April 13, 1914.

LONDON.—The speedy evacuation of Warsaw and all of Poland by the Russians is indicated in dispatches received from Petrograd. The Russians are reported retreating to defensive positions along the line of the fortresses of Kovno, Grodno, and Brest-Litovsk. These points lie just outside the Polish border on the east.

JULY 30, 1901.

NEW YORK.—"Wayman McCrerry was a victim of golf, a sacrifice to the golf fan." This was the declaration made by Dr. A. C. Bernays of St. Louis, one of the most eminent surgeons in this country, in reply to a question relative to the death of Wayman Crow McCerry, a wealthy St. Louis resident. Dr. Bernays continued: "I know that golf is a fad of the wealthy and is patronized by the best of society, and that doctors have advised indulgence in the game as an exercise, but it has objectionable and serious features. I can recall a dozen cases in my professional experience of fatal consequences of going over the links. The trips are too long and exhausting."

EL RENO, Okla, Ter.—The great lottery for the 13,000 land claims in the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache country, in which 165,000 persons hold chances, began this morning, and tonight the winners of 1,000 of the choicest claims, ranging in value from $2,000 to $40,000, have been determined. More than 30,000 persons stood in a blazing sun to view the drawings.

CHICAGO.—Work on the Chicago postoffice is likely to be delayed several months next spring and summer because congress failed to make any appropriation for the interior finish work at its last session. If Contractor John Peirce completes the exterior on Jan. 1 next there will be no funds on hand to continue the work.

JULY 30, 1881.

WASHINGTON. — The afternoon fever of the President was much less than any day since the shooting, and it quickly subsided, until at 11:30 p. m. it had entirely disappeared. The temperature at the last-named hour was nearly normal. The wound was in a very healthy condition, and the physicians were very hopeful of his ultimate recovery. The President expresses himself as feeling decidedly better, and asked for a larger allowance of solid food. He also asked permission to be allowed to sit up, and this request was granted. He sat up in bed propped by pillows for half an hour, and he felt very much refreshed thereby.

WASHINGTON.—Mr. White, the American minister to Berlin, has tendered his resignation, to take effect Aug. 15, at which date he will leave Berlin for the United States. No appointment of a successor can be made until the President has recovered.

THE EPISCOPAL CLERGY.

Chicago, July 24.—Some months ago you printed a very interesting article which was entitled "Church and State" which dealt with the question of pacifism and the church. This editorial was a criticism of a recent questionnaire put out by the editor of The World Tomorrow, Kerby Page.

May I call your attention to a very significant fact which I believe escaped the attention of your editorial writer?

Whereas the majority of the ministers of the religious denominations reported made answers which were out and out pacifistic, the answers made by the clergy of the Episcopal church were in direct contrast to them. For instance, question No. 6, regarding the refusal to sanction any future war, the average answers of the majority was 2 to 1 in the affirmative, and the answers of the majority of the clergy of the Episcopal church were in the negative, the only ones so doing. Similarly in the matter of serving as chaplains.

Rector, the Church of Our Saviour.

A STILL SHORTER NAME.

Chicago, July 24.—I wish to call your attention to an error in a recent TRIBUNE article wherein you state that a gentleman known as A. A has the shortest name in the world. While selling snow shovels at the Oak street beach a few weeks ago I encountered a man who gave his name as I. I, and in pronouncing his surname he sounded only one-half of the second I, but whether it was the top half or the bottom, I cannot say. When I tried to enunciate the name as he did I unintentionally gave the letter the full sound, whereat he waxed wroth, just as would a fellow named Toggle if you called him Toggletoggle.

You will readily admit that my friend I has a shorter name than your Mr. A if you start to utter the ninth letter of the alphabet and stop when you are half way through sounding it. And, besides, an I is much slimmer than an A any day in the week. GEO. E. AUGUSTINE.

FOR MORE GREETERS.

Chicago, July 24.—At last I have found a simple solution for the vexatious unemployment situation. It's this:

We need many more greeters. The city council should immediately pass an ordinance demanding:

1. That each railroad station and airport have several greeters to welcome home our weary travelers.
2. That each jail should have at least one greeter to welcome the new arrivals to their furnished apartments.
3. That each street and "L" car be supplied with a greeter to cheer our hardworking straphangers, as well as to pacify yelling infants.
4. That every factory and movie house employ greeters. [This will stimulate business enormously.]
5. That every apartment house have a greeter. [Tenants will pay their rent more promptly and cheerfully.]
6. That every closed bank have a greeter. [They will thereby win back their old customers.]

RICHARD H. BAUER.

COMMUNIST PROPAGANDA IN THE TRIBUNE.

Chicago, July 26.—Does your paper subscribe to the capitalistic or the communistic system for society? I know that you occasionally profess to the former, but I would like to call three important items in this morning's issue to your attention which might lead many a reader toward communistic thought and conclusions.

First, your eight column headline reporting the rapid movement of gold from London to Paris, and the unusual method transporting it, implied that the Bank of England is tottering. Also, the weird details of the almost ridiculous safeguards of the vaults of the Bank of France hints at the potential uprising that alone could warrant such safeguards.

Second—McCutcheon's cartoon greatly overstresses America's interest in news emanating from Russia. She may be worked at high speed while the rest of the world is slowed down, but she is so many years behind the procession industrially that by the time she catches up (if that ever happens) she will have learned more from others than will be the case of the reverse situation which McCutcheon infers.

Third—On the second page of the edition is a picture of a disgruntled crowd of depositors in front of a closed Berlin bank. It is a wonder you have not printed photos of angry crowds in front of the various closed banks in Chicago. Maybe you desisted from the latter because Chicago banks have advertised more with you than have German institutions.

Presumably you print all this disquieting news in your paper to increase the circulation. When that goes up, then you add to your advertising rates. But suppose that continued unrest makes more and more advertisers insolvent? Are you not throwing a boomerang which may strike you from behind?

ALAN D. WHITNEY.

MOSQUITOES IN EVANSTON.

Evanston, Ill., July 16.—Can you advise what is being done towards mosquito abatement in Evanston? The canal is breeding mosquitoes so fast we can hardly go into our yards day or night. There is a vegetable growth that makes an ideal breeding place and this growth grows out of the water high enough to keep the young mosquitoes from being washed away. Our neighbors are all complaining and we must soon present an organized protest if something is not done soon.

A. C. STEELE.

MAIN STREET.

Chicago, Ill., July 24.—I see where one of your correspondents kicks because our greeter gives the hicks the grind hand. Well, I've been trying to tell you for years that Chicago is a hick town. Both the greeter and the mayor are ex-hicks. Nine out of ten people you pass on the streets are ex-yokels. That is one of the things that is wrong with the town. New York is a big foreign city, but Chicago is a big farmer town. PLUTO.

Those old neighbors, Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Philip Snowden, have fallen out so badly over the land tax that this time, we are assured, no compromise is possible, and the government is faced with defeat unless they climb down.

Latest Complexes Ignored in This Book.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

THE granddaughter of George du Maurier, whose Trilby and Peter Ibbetson belong in the halls of fame of fictional characters, and the daughter of Gerald du Maurier, actor, has written her first novel, "The Loving Spirit" [Doubleday Doran], and its birthday is today. If it were not trite one would say that her grandfather's mantle has fallen on the shoulders of Daphne du Maurier, for her book is as romantic in tone as anything that author ever wrote. It is the exact antithesis of the realistic method of story writing which seems now to be decidedly on the wane.

DAPHNE DU MAURIER.

Looking back over the summer's list of novels, it is very evident that the successes have almost all been books written in the old, more or less romantic style. "Dwarf's Blood" combined fantasy with romance; "The Windmill on the Dune" was the interesting conventionally told tale of the artistic soul in search of beauty and peace; "The Garden" was an exquisite story related with the consummate skill and the touch of sentiment so popular before the war; and "Castle Island," "Hatter's Castle," and "Dermotts Rampant," three of the newest novels, are closer akin to Galsworthy than to Ernest Hemingway.

Miss du Maurier takes her stand with the antirealist group. She tells a story because it's a good story, because it has something of beauty in it, and therefore of truth. She pictures life itself rather than all the dark and tortuous currents that twist below its surface. "The Loving Spirit" does not attempt to set the world on fire. It is not a huge and stupendous work like, for instance, "Hatter's Castle." But it is painted on a large canvas nevertheless, and with an understanding and skillful hand. It is an excellent first novel.

To those of us who enjoy reading about an entire family, for a change, instead of poring over the inmost thoughts, feelings, and desires of a single individual, Miss du Maurier's book is a grand one. She starts with Janet and Thomas Coombe in 1830 and she ends with their great-grandchildren in 1930. For the reader's interest there is a complete family tree of the Coombes in the front of the book, showing Janet's children, her grandchildren, their children, and finally little Bill, born in 1928. This genealogical chart gives a nice feeling of solidity and reality to the story.

The author has created a figure you will long remember in Janet. Native of a small seacoast town in Cornwall, called Flyn, she was born with the love of far flung adventure in her soul. Her childish prayer was "Please, God make me a lad afore I'm grown," and her greatest desire was to be a sailor. She wanted to go out with the ships, to feel the salt spray in her face, the racing wind in her hair, and the slanting, rocking deck of a boat under her feet.

Instead she married one of the steady, plodding men of the village and bore him six children. But always in her heart was the restless, roving spirit, and the dauntless courage of the sea rover. And this she passed on to one of her sons, her favorite child, Joseph. There was a bond between Janet and Joseph that nothing in the world could break.

Janet said once, "I'll not bide in heaven nor rest here in my grave. My spirit will linger with the ones I love—an' when they're sorrowful and scared in themselves, I'll come to them; and God himself won't keep me." And she kept her word.

You'll remember her children, you'll not forget many of the Coombes: Samuel, Christopher and the rest, but head and shoulders above them all is Janet. And next, perhaps, is Jennifer, because she looked like Janet, although she lived 100 years later, and because she had the spirit of Janet, too.

"Janet, Joseph, Christopher, Jennifer, all bound together in some strange and thwarted love for one another, handing down this strain of restlessness and suffering, this intolerable longing for beauty and freedom; all searching for the nameless things, the untrod ways, but finding peace only in Flyn and in each other; each one born apart from his beloved by the physical separation of death, yet remaining part of them forever, bound by countless links that none could break, uniting in one another the living presence of a wise and loving spirit."

Good morning!

Ramon Novarro's work in this movie will cause his admirers to toot a horn of triumph. Never has the young actor given a more ingratiating performance.

"Son of India" is a mildly entertaining blend of adventure and romance. It is an adaptation of an old-time novel—"Mr. Isaacs"—by F. Marion Crawford and, while the yarn is none too credible and rather slow in tempo, it is colorfully staged and intelligently directed. Playing opposite the beguiling hero is Miss Madge Evans. One contemplates with interest this girl who, such a few short years ago, was one of the best known of the child players. From a bright and talented tot she has developed into a young woman of charm and ability, and her scenes with the star are delightful. Both play with a certain spontaneousness and honesty that gets you. Both deliver their lines pleasingly. Especially does Novarro invest what he has to say with directness and a quaint humor that is intriguing.

The story is, with variations, the old east-is-east-west-is-west one. Indian chap loves white girl. White girl loves Indian boy. White girl's brother objects and has an ace in the hole. Once, you see, he saved his sister's worshiper from, well—the picture will show you from what. The action all takes place in India.

Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau and C. Aubrey Smith contribute clever bits of portrayal. A tiger hunt and a murder by an elephant bring—shall we say tang?—to the production?

For old times' sake, for curiosity's sake, for your own sake and for goodness sake do trek over to the Cinema and re-see "The Birth of a Nation."

I drifted into the theater to cock an ear at the sound. Press notes had declared the film to be an "all sound" production now, and I was curious to know if by some hocus pocus dialogue had been inserted convincingly into the mouths of these mummers of the long ago. There is no dialogue, but the picture has been splendidly synchronized with music and the sorts of noises that accompany battles, galloping horses, etc. Effective!

I hadn't intended to sit through the [illegible] but I did, held, as [illegible] by and artistry; marveling at the way a movie of a decade and a half ago could still command a smile; a tear; and, throughout, keep me excited; keyed up with suspense.

And these dear familiar faces! Mae Marsh! Miriam Cooper! Henry B. Walthall! Wallace Reid. . . .!

The film was a little jerky in spots, but that, I imagine, was due to projection, which was fast owing to the fact that the picture is a long one. Technically, how it holds its own with present day cinemas! Motion picture cameras and lighting devices have known many improvements since Griffith made "The Birth of a Nation," shown first here in 1915, but it has some panoramic shots, some vividly realistic battle scenes, some beautiful incidental bits that can make a modern camera man envious.

All in all this reissue of Griffith's masterpiece comes as manna from heaven to a public that has been sated with gangster melodramas and deluged with miscellaneous mediocrities.

On Way to Ranch

MRS. EVELYN FIELD.

With her three children, her brother and his two children, and three friends Mrs. Evelyn Marshall Field arrived at the Blackstone hotel yesterday on the way to a ranch in Wyoming. Of course, the Field children can ride, for their father, Marshall Field III., can cross his stirrups, stand in them and ride Cossack fashion. Their mother obtained a divorce in Reno last year, and their father has remarried.

Barbara Field, 13 years old, announced during her short stay in Chicago that she was going to ride a real cow-pony. "I have been riding since I was 10 years old," she remarked.

Mrs. Field's other children are, the eldest, Marshall Jr., and Bettine. Her brother is Charles H. Marshall and his two children are Peter and Peggy, the former 12 years old, the latter 10.

"We all enjoy fishing and riding," Mrs. Field declared, adding that when seeking trout they all used flies.

They are going to the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Riddle at Cody, Wyo. Besides the Marshalls, the other members of the party are Mrs. Averill Dougherty, Mrs. Nancy Fincke, and Mrs. Curzon Taylor of New York.

After the divorce, Marshall Field married Mrs. Dudley Coats.

Both the army and navy bands will be there, too, and you may expect a thrilling program of military music.

It's to be such a lovely party I hope not one of you who has been invited will find anything to deter you from coming. You know our plans for meeting by this time because invitations have been sent to all of you. Please be on time for our private cars which Mr. Rudd of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad is providing for us must leave promptly on schedule.

More Mothers to Enjoy Camp at Algonquin

Added Funds Provide for 12 Additional.

Twelve mothers whose chief talent is managing for a family of five or six children on little more than a shoestring, will start smiling today. A United Charities worker will bring the news that they can have vacations at Camp Algonquin after all.

Financial aid in the form of gifts to the Camp Algonquin fund amounting to $119 arrived yesterday, assuring two weeks' vacations for twelve more tenement mothers. This was the largest day's total in a long while, and is indicative that friends of Algonquin are not going to tolerate disappointment among underprivileged families who had planned outings to the camp.

The most generous gift was a check for $75 from A. L. R., $50 of which was designated for Camp Algonquin and $25 for the free ice fund. The camp also received $25 from A. M. D. G. Smaller amounts, but just as important as far as both funds are concerned came from three children's benefits.

The children of the Shoreland hotel, Union Pier, Mich., had a play and sent $4 to the ice fund. Another $4 came for the camp fund from Michigan City, Ind., the proceeds of a play given by Rhoda Steon, Barbara and Morton Rossman, Richard and Albert Garnitz and J. Howard Simon. They hoped their small donation would "help a few children have a nice vacation."

DAYTON, TENN., CLERGY OPPOSE SHOWING OF DARROW MOVIE

Dayton, Tenn., July 29.—(AP)—The Ministerial Association of Dayton, the scene a few years ago of Tennessee's famous anti-evolution trial, has called upon the local theater to ban the showing of Clarence S. Darow's film, "The Mystery of Life."

Darrow was a principal figure in the trial, defending John T. Scopes, who taught the theory of evolution in the public schools, in defiance of state law.

In resolutions adopted by the pastors, protest was registered against the showing of what they termed "an anti-biblical and anti-Christian picture," and the people of Dayton were asked not to attend the showing of the film.

The resolutions were signed by W. H. Graves, president of the Ministerial association and pastor of the Methodist church; the Rev. C. A. Howell, pastor of the Baptist church; the Rev. T. O. Hall, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church; and the Rev. G. H. Arrow Wood, pastor of the Church of Christ.

Gifts from 400 Aid Treatment of Poor at St. Luke's Hospital

A group, known as the St. Luke's Hospital association, to provide funds for the care of worthy charity patients at that hospital, was organized yesterday. A. Watson Armour is president of the association.

Mr. Armour said it already has 400 members. Their contributions, in the form of membership dues, are the equivalent to the interest on a $400,000 endowment, according to him.

During the last year St. Luke's provided free hospital care to 3,380 patients, according to Charles A. Wordell, director of the hospital.

China Growing in Population Despite Hunger

Total 478,418,000 by Latest Census.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, July 29.—It is the opinion of many observers that China needs less babies and unless the fast-increasing population can be restricted and the export tariff reduced or abolished China—as far as farming and industrial classes go—get on its feet only through some great epidemic or like calamity.

When girls of twelve and fourteen are continually bringing children into the world adding to the burden of the grandfathers of thirty and the great-grandfathers of forty-five the outlook seems hopeless for China to make any economic headway through a foreign loan. Much of the money thus obtained is sure to be spent on military expansion, on constant warfare and the graft incidental thereto.

One has only to turn to the census statistics recently issued to see which way China is trending. The ministry of interior of the government at Nanking has just completed the compilation of the first census taken since 1910. The figures show that in twenty-one years the population of all China—including Sinkiang, Tibet and Manchuria—has increased by 140,000,000 to a total of 478,418,000 as of this year.

Unfortunately there is no record of infant mortality, but in that respect it is held that China leads the world, being far in excess of India.

Experts in vital statistics assert that unless sterilization is resorted to, China will be indeed a world problem by 1950.

Records show that China had a population of 143,125,255 in 1760. By 1868 this had increased to 404,946,514. But then there came a period of wars, famine and pestilence and much emigration to other lands, principally the south seas, but also to the United States as a result of the California gold rush and the building of the transcontinental railways. In 1935 the population of China had shrunk to 277,636,000, according to the China Year Book.

Uncle Sam, Wearing Top Hat, Bows to His Departing Guests

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—It was pretty hot here today but the social code of farewell gifts and welcoming words, of stiff cutaways and tall hats, was warmly adhered to by the White House and the state department as they said good-by to the Siamese royalty and how-do-you-do to the new Honduran minister.

The Siamese salutations were via telegram, and through the offices of Richard Southgate, the Greeter Gaw of our democracy, who, as acting chief of the state department's division of international conferences and protocol, went down to New York to ride with King Prajadhipok and Queen Rambai Brani up to the Canadian border.

As the royal party got on the train, the king sent a telegram to President Hoover, thanking him for the official welcome our nation had given the visiting Siamese and also for the royal welcome the citizens had given them.

And this reference to the successful operation for cataract which was performed on one of the king's eyes:

"In thanking you sincerely and the American people for these tokens of amity, it is a pleasure to assure you that I take with me, besides many pleasant memories, a gratifying impression of the enhancement of the previously happy relations between our two countries, and in addition a personal evidence of the skill of American physicians."

Then Mr. Southgate, speaking for President Hoover and the state department, told how happy the United States was to have been able to be host to such pleasant visitors, and how pleased the people of this nation were at the successful outcome of King Prajadhipok's operation.

After that there was brought into the car, filled with flowers from the White House conservatory, the Hoovers' parting gift, a tooled leather portfolio filled with Washington etchings.

Parents of Siamese Queen Visit Chicago; Will Attend Ravinia

Several weeks ago Prince Svasti, accompanied by the princess, hurriedly passed through Chicago eastward bound, their only concern that of rushing their son-in-law, King Prajadhipok, east for a delicate eye operation. All the royal party saw of Chicago was the view from their private railroad car. Now, while the king is inspecting Canada, the Prince and Princess Svasti and their son, Prince Srjuna, 20 year old Yale student, are doing likewise in the states.

The royal party was welcomed at the Park Row station of the Michigan Central by Brig. Gen. Nathan William MacChesney, consul for Siam in Chicago, and escorted first to the Adler planetarium. This was followed by lunch at the Tavern club for the princes and one for the princess at the Woman's Athletic club given by Mrs. MacChesney.

The visitors expect to leave tomorrow for Janesville, Wis., but will return to Chicago, leaving Tuesday for Denver.

British Party Delighted by Reception.

MOSCOW, July 29.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw and Joseph Stalin talked together for two hours tonight in the Russian leader's office in the Kremlin on the eve of Shaw's ending his visit to soviet Russia.

It was one of the longest interviews ever granted by the Russian chief to any foreigner who was not actually connected with some work for the soviet government. Also present at the interview were Lord and Lady Astor, the marquis of Lothian, former secretary to David Lloyd George and one of England's leading Liberals, and Maxim Litvinoff, soviet commissar for foreign affairs.

What was discussed at the meeting was not divulged. Members of Shaw's party refused to comment beyond saying it was a most enjoyable occasion.

The party returned to the hotel, only a few blocks from the Kremlin, at 10:30 p. m. and ate a late supper at Moscow's only exclusively bourgeois restaurant, where they were entertained by the group of gypsy singers and dancers, a regular feature of the restaurant's entertainment.

Shaw wore a red necktie to the interview, but a member of the party explained that it was not donned for the event because he had worn it all day.

Shaw returned here with his party today from a visit to a collective farm some hours distant by rail. There they had spent most of two days. All manifested great interest and enthusiasm in the work on the farm, which is tilled by a group of peasants who work on a communal basis.

The party also paid a visit to Maxim Gorky, noted Russian author, this afternoon. They expect to leave here tomorrow evening by train to return to London by way of Poland and Germany.

Jane Russell, She's 15, Will Sing Again in Chicago Music Fete

One of the youngest members to sing in the Hallelujah chorus on Saturday night, Aug. 22, at the second Chicagoland Music festival in Soldiers' field will be Jane Russell, 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Russell of Batavia, Ill.

Jane, who was a member of the chorus last summer, is known throughout the Fox river valley as the "child soprano." Besides being a radio star she teaches piano and is preparing her own voice-piano recital before she is 16. Interest in this feature of the concert is growing rapidly and Noble Cain, director of the chorus, will hold a rehearsal for all those entering via the entry blank which has been appearing in THE TRIBUNE on Thursday night, Aug. 20, at 8 o'clock in the gold ballroom of the Drake hotel.

Mothers and daughters, sisters, fathers, and daughters, and other family combinations are found in the chorus entries. A mother-daughter entry is that of Mrs. Peter Hendrickman and Miss Maria, both of 3325 Southport avenue, Chicago. La Porte, Ind., thus far, has enlisted the greatest number of single entries from Chicagoland. More than twenty-five cities of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan will be represented in "the Messiah chorus.

Change Your Tactics Substitute "Yes" for "No" in Child's Life

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Change your whole approach to the management of your children.

Instead of keeping your child from doing all those manifold things he shouldn't do—instead of keeping him within the many restrictions you decide are necessary—change your tactics.

Try this: Let him do everything he wants to do that you possibly can—that is, all within reason.

Try saying to yourself, "Is there any real honest to goodness reason why he shouldn't do it?" Then if there isn't, let him do it.

It will be quite a wrench for you and quite a surprise to him, too, at first. But do give the idea a fair trial.

Because what? O, I don't know—because they're inconvenient or upset the orderliness of the house, or get the baby or child himself dirty—" or somep'n'," as our old friend on the radio says.

Really, none of those is a reason when you understand that a child must live, learn, play, adventure, investigate, and observe to develop his five senses, his muscles, and his mind.

A child isn't a vegetable. He can't stay quietly put, and grow. Activity —motion—are his very life.

If he wants to squat down beside the kitchen cupboard and pull out the rest of saucepans and take them apart—if he wants to look at each pencil and eraser and clip and sealing wax and the other small things on your desk tray—if he wants a little cookie dough to knead and roll out till it's dark gray, and then cut—why shouldn't he?

What? O, yes I have—I've been just as busy as that and put it all into practice. It works. And when your "don'ts" and unnecessary restrictions disappear, you'll see lots of behavior problems disappear, too.

Accessories Dotted Over the Smart Scene

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris is taking up polka dotted materials in a big way. Everywhere you go you see dotted accessories, and dotted details on dresses and coats. A plain tailored suit is twice as smart when it has a polka dotted scarf. A polka dotted belt or sash on a plain crepe or chiffon frock for daytime adds quantities of pure chic. The Paris manufacturers are turning out polka dotted straw for summer hats and dotted slippers for evening. The smartest women in Europe are carrying huge polka dotted chiffon handkerchiefs with their one-color evening dresses.

A white dress or suit is worn here with a scarf and handkerchief of white dotted in any bright color you like, or in black, brown, or navy. A black coat, a brown coat, a navy coat is pepped up by a scarf in dotted stuff, the ground matching the coat, always. The effect is sparkling, and can be applied to any color, provided the ground or the dots match the dress, coat, or suit with which the accessory is worn.

Small handbags, made of polka dotted necktie silk, are very smart, and one from Germaine Guerin is shown in the center of the sketch. This is the newest handbag shape, like a satchel, but very, very much reduced. The one shown is made of black and white dotted silk and has a frame of silver. Below it is a new evening handkerchief that is half plain lemon yellow chiffon and half lemon and brown dotted chiffon. It could be made in any color, of course.

At the top is a bright green and white dotted evening scarf that I saw recently at the Ambassadeurs, worn with a white evening frock. A black and white dotted ribbon belt to wear with a white or black summer frock is also sketched.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Frederick S. Armstrong, Mrs. John W. Herbert, Mrs. John L. De Ruyter, and Mrs. Barclay K. Douglas were among those giving luncheons yesterday in the St. Regis roof garden.

Mrs. J. W. Fuller Potter gave a luncheon yesterday in the Japanese garden of the Ritz-Carlton for Mrs. Robert A. Scott, Mrs. Simmons Coleman, and Mrs. Stoddard Lovejoy.

Leave the Vagabond Lover to Stage and Screen, Says Doris

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"My parents disapprove of Bob and, in a way, I can't blame them. To be his wife surely might be a bad mistake on my part. Yet he is the perfect type of vagabond lover.

"He has no steady income and no position but is, as I stated, a vagabond rover. His actions have been honorable to me at all times and I am proud of him for that. . . . I will be his third wife and he's over ten years my senior. AURELIA."

Why shouldn't a man's actions be honorable? Why should a girl grovel for a favor that ought to be expected by any decent girl?

Vagabond lovers make grand stage, screen sights, and book reading. But as husbands—they'd better be left right on the stage and screen and between the book covers. I'm afraid that's where you've been getting your ideas.

Certainly you can't have been out much around homes where you see the actual marriage play enacted day after day. If so, you wouldn't have much heart for one of the roving variety with no taste for rent paying or for seeing that his wife has a nickel or two change in her pocket.

Just one brief marriage session with a man who had no income, could not hold a position—and you'd be cured of all that silly nonsense in your head, Aurelia. All the love he could make to you over a mean breakfast, luncheon, and dinner plate wouldn't quite balance the human need for food and shelter, or the equally strong female desire to look as decently clothed as her sisters.

Keep your vagabond lover's picture on your dresser, if you must, Aurelia, but pin a sign over the top of the frame: "Stay in there, brother. Marriage can't use you." And in this particular instance you might add to the sign: "Two women have tried you. Why should I be the third goat?"

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

She Ridicules Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am keeping company with a girl who seems to care for me, while at other times she seems to ridicule me in the presence of my friends. UNDECIDED."

The next time she offends let her know your feelings have been hurt, that she may be more careful in the future. If she persists you can only assume it is intentional.

THREE MEALS A DAY

From the Tribune Cook Book

Food Talk.

Mrs. L. M. asks: "Which liquid produces the best cake, milk or water?"

Although a good deal of time has been devoted to experimentation on the several ingredients used in a cake and the proportions, little has been said about the liquid. Yet scores of women ask: "Why do some cakes call for water and others for milk? Which will make a better cake?"

The government office of Home Economics has taken up the question and subjected it to research. They find that milk is the most desirable liquid in cakes, cookies, and quick breads because of the finer flavor and texture and the increased food value. A cake made with milk also acquires a richer colored crust in baking. Whole milk, skimmed, powdered, or evaporated, may be used with practically the same results, except for variations in the food value. In some cases a mixture of milk and water or even water alone may be used with no great loss in flavor of texture.

Butter cakes depend upon the shortening and the liquid for flavor. Therefore, milk and butter must be included in the list of ingredients if superior flavor is the goal. The omission of either will affect the tastiness of the finished cake. In highly flavored cakes, such as spice or chocolate, it has been found that water may be substituted for milk with no appreciable change in the results, such as volume, texture, and color. However, richer in food value, it is advisable to use it as the liquid ingredient, unless there is some specific direction to the contrary.

STUFFED BEAT SALAD.

1 large cucumber
1 stalk celery
1 hard cooked egg
French dressing
Lettuce leaves
Mayonnaise

Select beets of uniform size, good shape, and fine red color. Leave about 4 or 5 inches of stems on. Wash carefully and cook in boiling water until tender, about 40 to 45 minutes. Drain off the water and add cold water to cool. Drain again and rub off the skin, being sure to keep the beet shapely. Prepare a diluted vinegar solution to cover beets, using the following proportions: One-half cup cider vinegar, ½ cup water, 1½ tablespoons sugar, a little salt and pepper.

When ready to make the salad scoop out the beets to form cups. Drain well. Peel and chop the cucumber fine and cut the celery fine. Mix and add the French dressing. Fill the vegetable mixture into the beet cups neatly. Arrange attractively on lettuce leaves. Garnish with mayonnaise and a slice of hard cooked egg.

Yield: Six servings.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and suicide of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. She opens a hot dog stand on the Dixie highway. The estate of Jim Winstead, of carpet-bagging stock, adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, is a great help to Sally, although she doesn't know his real identity until the stand is successfully started. Sally falls in love with Lowndes Jennings and believes herself to be his promised wife. Sam forces Lowndes to admit, in front of Sally, that he is engaged to the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally decides to accept his offer.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

AN UNHAPPY BRIDE.

Sally couldn't overcome her aversion to Henry Winstead, try as she would. Sam adored his father, was proud of him, showed him deference and respect; the relations between this father and son were touchingly close. When she had to meet the man she was coldly polite. Henry, sensing it, was painfully shy, which gave him the appearance of being casual and cold. He had been startled when Sam told him, composedly, of his engagement.

"Well, son, if you are happy——" he began, "God bless you—and her! The—the Rutherfords are very proud, son. The colonel was a rather wonderful person. I think he was the handsomest, courtliest gentleman I ever saw."

"O, he was a fine enough old fellow. I admire him myself, in a way," said Sam, and put an arm around Henry's shoulder. "But I was raised by a man I consider worth a dozen Col. Rutherfords—my own father." The arm around Henry's shoulder tightened its clasp. "Now you see here, dad. I love and respect the girl I intend to marry because she's herself, not because she's a Rutherford. If she's happy to be a Rutherford I'm glad she's a Rutherford, because I want her to be happy, but I never was an ancestor worshiper. I'm more interested in grandsons than in grandfathers."

Anne Cochrane gayly danced into Sally's bedroom in her bridesmaid's dress. Owing to the tragic bereavement in the bride's family there was to be but one bridesmaid. The ceremony was to be as quiet as could be managed and in the presence of a few intimate friends only.

Sally wore her graduation dress, that beautiful last dress that grandpapa had given her, and grandmamma's wedding veil, and the string of pearls which was the bridegroom's gift. Anne thought that she resembled a snow maiden, she was so pale and so lovely.

Once again the great parlors of Oakleigh were to be the scene of a wedding, though neither grandmamma nor the colonel would be present to witness Sally's marriage. The house had a subdued rustling, the hushed expectancy of something about to happen. Mr. Herbert Sinclair, who was to give the bride away, went about looking dazedly pleased. He was delighted. Rupert's girl, God bless her, couldn't have done better than this! Henceforth all was safe, Rupert's widow was safe, Oakleigh was safe.

The minister had arrived, the cars had come from Winsteads—the bridegroom, his father, and his best man, who was that one of his foremen who had been his best liked classmate. The bride and her bridesmaid came downstairs, to be met at the foot of the stairs by Mr. Sinclair. They moved into the drawing room, and the pale girl took her place beside her bridegroom—who wasn't Lowndes, but Sam Winstead.

—she was so pale and so lovely.

The flower scented room, the dear familiar old room, the interested, smiling faces all turned to her, swam before Sally's eyes. Her heart was trying to leap out of her breast, it bounded and panted so.

Her voice was clear and unfaltering as she uttered her "I will," although the room, the faces were still swimming in a haze, and the minister's voice was a thin, reedy sound as of winter wind in the marshes. The ring was slipped on her finger, "I pronounce you man and wife." She wasn't Sally Rutherford any more. She was Mrs. Samuel Forman Winstead. She belonged to the Winsteads.

Mr. Sinclair was speaking to her, the minister was shaking hands with the people, kindly people, were crowding close. People were shaking hands with him, too, congratulating him, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Winstead happiness, long years of happiness. Then Henry Winstead came near her, shyly. As he spoke she gave him a limp hand, a cold cheek, which he brushed with his gray mustache. Hateful old man! She wondered if he had any compunction about his dealings with poor guileless grandpapa, and if he was remembering the ruined man tonight? He should be satisfied! Oakleigh would pass to the Winsteads; even the last Rutherford would pass to the Winsteads! Her eyes met Henry with a hostile challenge. He shrank back. Wasn't Sam's pretty wife going to like him, after all? If she didn't, Henry saw nothing but unhappiness ahead for him.

Anne Cochrane was wearing the beautiful bracelet the bridegroom had given her, Sally's finger gleamed with her wedding ring and its flashing diamond guard, and the pearls he had given her were around her throat. The crown of orange blossoms felt like a crown of thorns on her forehead. Presently Sam made a sign, and she nodded. Arm in arm they went upstairs to grandmamma's room.

The pale girl at his side couldn't but note, with something of dull surprise, how handsome Sam Winstead was tonight. He had turned white to the lips when he had placed the wedding ring on his bride's finger, but now his color had returned. His lips were red, his eyes were blue depths, his hair was riotously alive, the clasp of his hand firm and warm. She had never seen any one so vital, so virile, so dynamic. And he was her husband. Sam Winstead—Sarah de Saussure . . . Winstead.

Wearing her daintiest, laciest nightgown, her finest lace cap, the lovely lace shawl around her shoulders fastened with a pink rosebud, grandmamma, sitting up among her snowy pillows, was waiting to receive them. The pale little bride of tonight looked at her with pride, and love, and gratitude—the beautiful old lady was safe now and secure in her own home until the end. Her remaining years were protected—loss, disaster, poverty could never touch her. Sally would suffer no more anguished fears for grandmamma! Surely, that made everything all right, that was worth any sacrifice. She had kept her promise to poor grandpapa.

Mrs. Rutherford looked at Sally in her bridal white, kissed her, and held out her hand to the bridegroom, who stood beside her bed and looking down at her with eyes that reminded her of Rupert's. His heart had long since gone out to the colonel's ghostly wife, living in her merciful illusion.

"Sally's husband!—You will take care of my child, you will make her happy! I am so glad that Sally has chosen you, dear boy. You would make any girl happy—your eyes say so."

"My chief aim in life is to make your girl happy. Your Sally is my baby, too, grandmamma," he told her.

"She is such a darling girl, Sam! You don't know how dear, how good she is to her old grandmother!" There were tears in her eyes, and, seeing them, Sam sat on the edge of the bed and gathered her in his arms. The old arms went about his shoulder, the old cheek leaned against his ruddy one.

"I am so glad to have a grandson!" she sighed. "Grandson, I have but one grief—that her dear grandfather couldn't be here to give her in marriage—to you. But he will come home tomorrow morning. How surprised he will be when I tell him, Sally!"

"Not surprised, dear grandmamma. But satisfied and happy, I hope."

"No, not surprised—I am sure he will understand," said the bridegroom.

"I feel that he would have chosen you for Sally, grandson, had the choice been his. As I would had it been mine," said she sweetly. "I consider the whole affair as a lovely surprise for Rupert! What a happy time after the wedding when he comes home! She added: "Sally, see, I shall have tomorrow when he comes home! She added: "Sally, see, I shall have put my piece of wedding cake aside. I shall put it under my pillow, and dream of my own bridegroom, and how happy we've been together."

Rufe, in a bright new frock in honor of Miss Sally's wedding, now brought a small table to Miss Sarah's bedside, spread it with a cobwebby lace cover, placed on it two tall silver candlesticks and a vase of red roses, a silver basket of wedding cake, a decanter of wedding wine, and three of the tall wine glasses that had been used at Grandmamma's own wedding. The candles were lighted, and the old lady was prepared to toast the bridal pair. The bridegroom poured the wine, and Mrs. Rutherford lifted her glass, "To the last Rutherford—the last bride of our house! The sweetest and dearest girl in the whole world!" said she. The bride touched the rim of her glass with her lips, but the bridegroom and grandmamma drank.

"And to Sally Rutherford's bridegroom!" Again the old hand lifted the glass. "Long, long years of health and happiness, of peace and prosperity to him and his, and may the blessing of God our Father rest upon his house!" Sally touched the rim of the glass again. Sam looked at her steadily, then deliberately raised his glass, bowed to Mrs. Rutherford, and drank. Grandmamma was much too excited to notice that Sally's glass remained full.

"Now sit down beside me, my children," commanded the old lady. "So I can touch you both, so I can hold a hand of each." She drew them both nearer. Sally avoided her bridegroom's eyes. She was married to Sam Winstead. When the mild old eyes met hers lovingly she smiled as best she could, hiding her sick despair.

Her new wedding ring burned her finger. She had a sense of panic when her eyes fell upon it.

Presently, because grandmamma mustn't be allowed to exhaust her slim strength, the bridegroom laid her back among her pillows, bidding her sleep well. Then he offered his arm to his bride. They should rejoin their guests.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Disturbed Devoirs.

I was called on short notice to substitute for a church organist. The first part of the service went fine, and during the prayer I conceived the idea of an impromptu response on the organ, since there was no choir during the summer. But I unconsciously stepped on the "full organ" pedal, and instead of the tender, spiritual response I expected there came a thunderous staccato chord, startling not only to the worshipers but to me as well.

Society Group Studying Art at Aldis Place

BY THALIA

SUCH a season of social doldrums as THIS is! Ask any one what's going on and they announce unequivocally, "Nothing at all." "Well," you challenge them plaintively, "people can't just do nothing at all." "O, they go to the races, but that's about all." An argument on the subject gets nowhere.

There is one group that isn't doing nothing, though. That is the art class that is meeting regularly every Tuesday and Thursday morning this summer in Mrs. Arthur Aldis' studio. The studio is a large and airy atelier that used to be the stable under the hayloft, and it's been all done over for its new purpose. Hubert Rott of the National Academy of Art is the instructor and his pupils include Mrs. Aldis, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Duncan Hodges, Mrs. William Martin, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mrs. Clay Judson, her sister, Miss Theodora Shaw, who is to be a debutante next winter, Mrs. Milo Winter, and Miss Mary Archer, Mrs. Ernest Kilroe's daughter. They are engaged in drawing from life models, and they've been working very hard and intently at their work, and find it a most interesting study.

"Peter Ibbetson" Opera Plot Told for Ravinia Listeners.

If you want to hear the story of the opera "Peter Ibbetson" to be given its first performance at Ravinia next Monday night, about its exciting premiere at the Metropolitan opera last February, and some other information about it, you can attend either one of the two interpretive talks to be given by Carleton Smith on Friday and Saturday morning. The one on Friday [at 11 o'clock at the James Lawrence Houghteling residence in Winnetka] was scheduled in Mr. Smith's series of talks, but the one on Saturday morning, to be given at Mrs. Arthur Byfield's in Highland Park, was added because the interest in the opera was so great. Mr. Smith has interviewed the various singers [all of them but Lawrence Tibbets who appeared in the premiere are to sing here] during rehearsals in preparation for his talk. Deems Taylor, the composer, is to be here for Monday night, and will be Mr. Eckstein's guest at the performance.

Indiana Group to Display Gowns of Historic Interest.

The exhibition of early Indiana crafts and antiques to be held at the Ross J. Beatty residence in Highland Park on Sunday for the benefit of the Hoosier Patrons' association sounds very interesting. Among other things on display will be a gown worn at the inaugural reception given for the Ulysses S. Grants in Washington, D. C.; some documents including a land grant signed by Andrew Jackson, a showing of Indiana coverlets, and a collection of gowns, hats, and bonnets of various periods. Many of the things have been loaned by historical societies in different parts of Indiana. The Van Wagenen Allings, Col. and Mrs. George Buckingham, and the Lucius Teters are among those who are to assist. Veronese Beatty and some of her young friends will preside at the punch bowls in the garden.

The names of Palmer and McCormick continue to figure prominently in the Bar Harbor, Me., social dispatches. Mrs. Potter Palmer and Eleanor McCormick were members of a committee for an evening of games held on Tuesday evening at the Bar Harbor club. It was announced that the occasion was "for temperance and the repeal of the eighteenth amendment." Bridge, backgammon, mahjong, ping pong, and other games were provided. Patty McCormick had a party at the Sunday evening buffet supper at the Bar Harbor club and lost a boat race. Mrs. Vance McCormick, mother of Betsey Johnston's fiancé, Conway H. Olmsted, departed recently for New York.

Little pieces—Mrs. Stanley Field, just back from England, was out at the races at Arlington yesterday with the A. Watson Armours and William V. Clegg of London. . . . Others of the "regulars" at the Post and Paddock were the Benjamin Leslie Behrs, Silas H. Strawn, Laurance Armour, the Schuttler girls, the Ben Marshalls, the Warren Wrights, E. J. Mrs. "Monnie" Waller is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Given, at Manchester-in-the-Mountains, Vermont. . . . Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Haines arrive from New York a week from Saturday to visit Mrs. Haines' sister, Mrs. William P. Martin, in Lake Forest until after Labor day.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 29.—[Special.]—The Belgian ambassador, Paul May, has leased a cottage on Chesapeake bay near Annapolis. He spent the last week end as the guest of the young Countess Beatrice de Buisseret, daughter of the late count and former minister from Belgium to Washington, who is occupying the cottage on the former estate of her maternal grandparents, the late Gen. and Mrs. John P. Story. John P. Story Jr. now owns the cottage, but has sold the main part of the estate.

The secretary of war and Mrs. Hurley are in their Washington home for a few days making final preparations for their trip to the Philippines.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 29.—[Special.]—Dick Grace, stunt aviator who put on a uniform and doubled for Richard Arlen, to break his neck in cracking up a plane in "Wings," and who cracked up other planes for Ben Lyon, Buddy Rogers and half a dozen other actors in "Lilac Times," "Young Eagles" and similar air thrillers, is going to enact himself dare devil flyer in the film story he wrote, "Lost Squadron," for Radio pictures.

Grace sold the story to the studio last week. Today it was announced that he will play the thrilling main rôle, that of the movie stunt aviator who crashes planes on purpose. Eric Von Stroheim will have the featured story lead and Dorothy Lee the feminine lead. This is one film in which Von Stroheim will serve as only an actor, and not an actor-director, although the studio has not yet announced who the director will be.

Alf Reeves, business manager and local spokesman for Charlie Chaplin, today asserted that reports of Charlie's engagement to marry Marie [Mitzi] Muller, Czecho-Slovakian girl, were erroneous.

What caused the rift between John McCormick and his bride of two months, the former Mrs. Janet Gattis, was revealed as Mrs. Gattis McCormick packed her duds to leave for Reno, Nev., today. "Mr. McCormick got very moody," she said. "Every time he happened to see a photograph of Miss Moore [Colleen Moore, McCormick's ex-wife] he would become very melancholy and go away from me to brood alone for hours at a time." The couple have completed a property settlement.

Due to the slump in oil and other investments, Mrs. Wallace Reid [Dorothy Davenport] has lost the big house which was left to her since her husband's death. She has taken a smaller place in Hollywood with her son, adopted daughter and her mother. Miss Davenport still acts in, directs and writes for motion pictures. Until two years ago, she was a producer in her own right.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Folkert Posthuma of 1108 North Shore avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Marjorie, to Addison Brown Cater, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cater. The wedding is to take place in October.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Throughout Chicagoland and even over the entire country individual trees on home sites and in woodlands can be found this summer shedding their leaves. As a result persons are wondering what may cause this and if there is any treatment beneficial.

A tree cannot support more leaves than it can supply with water and in most cases the trees are dropping leaves as an adjustment between the number which it has in its foliage and the amount of moisture which the roots are able to gather from the soil. Weak trees in poor soils are the first ones to adopt this measure of economy.

Although in some cases this leaf fall has followed spraying, too frequently the loss of foliage is attributed to the spray, says Dr. E. Porter Felt, editor of a journal on economic entomology. He advises persons to blame the spraying process or materials only on authority of some one qualified to determine spray injury.

The loss of a large proportion of the leaves means, in any event, that the tree is a weak one, according to Dr. Felt. The best possible treatment, he has found, is feeding to stimulate better root development and thus aid the tree to regain a more nearly normal condition. Applying water in considerable amounts, but at intervals of several days, is recommended. The water should be sufficient to soak into the soil to a depth of several inches and the diameter of the watering area should be about as great as the height of the tree.

Slim, Supple Waist Is an Outstanding Feature of Youth

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Blessed are the bathing suit public exponents whose diaphragms curve in instead of out, and whose mid-section can be tied up with a white belt that looks as if it belonged. Incidentally, a tip for all those whose waist circumference is in an expansive state is to avoid white bands tied around the middle—unless they belong with an all-white frock. If you want to give the illusion of greater waist girth just tie a white belt around a colored frock.

One thing you must hand the American woman, looking the beaches over, is her good natured acceptance of a silhouette that could stand a lot of improvement. You, too, no doubt have been sitting on the sidelines and gasping now and then: "How could she ever show herself in a bathing suit?" Well, it is something to be able to forget oneself sufficiently not to mind the looks and nudges that come from the side lines when the over plump one passes by. It's better, I mean, to get out and swim with such a shape than to stay home and pamper it into further shapelessness. Now, isn't it?

But the great fat malady of bloated diaphragms is what strikes this observer as even more omnipresent in woman of a certain age than the protruding abdomen or even the extraordinary girth of thigh seen commonly enough. That diaphragm bloat is something, too, that can be eliminated with comparatively little effort and the single posture feature that puts the diaphragm back in place will automatically pull the abdominal muscles back closer to the wall, so to speak.

The erect posture trick, though important, isn't enough. Diet may be necessary, but exercise is imperative to strengthen the part against fat poaching. Any good bending forward and back exercise will suffice if done with vigor and constancy. And I believe that that particular solid tire of flesh does more to pronounce the figure aged than any other fat burdened section. You can swim it off—if you swim and breathe properly in the water. Anyway, it can be got off readily enough. The profile view of the silhouette is recommended as the best possible urge to be up and doing something about it.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I. R.: BRILLIANTINES ARE made of good oilstuffs, so may be used on the hair daily. However, they should be used sparingly—just enough to give the hair a slight sheen.

C. A.: IN THE EARLY STAGES of acne the well known lotion called lotio alba is effective. In having the lotion prepared ask that the ingredients be dissolved separately before mixing them. The formula is 1 dram each of potassium sulphuret and zinc sulphate to four ounces of distilled water. Apply enough of the lotion so that there will be a film of powder visible on the skin.

THE STAGE

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

(In The Tribune, July 27)

CHICAGO'S Rialto may be in the depths of its summer-long sleep, but out on the northwest highways there are shows to be seen. There is, for example, the Villa Venice, eighteen acres of Elysian lawns and groves on the Milwaukee road near Wheeling. It is presided over by Albert Bouche, who might lay claim to the title of "Ziegfeld of the floor shows"—a man with a fine eye for landscape gardening as well as for chorus girls' costumes. Mr. Bouche calls his place "America's smartest theater restaurant," and there is no reason to smile at the boast. There may be other pretenders to the title, but they lack a river and a fleet of gondolas with which to support the claim.

Three times a night Mr. Bouche's restaurant becomes a theater, offering a program of cosmopolitan entertainment. It differs from the typical floor show of American custom. Its audience is never urged to give this or that little girl a hand. Its performers make their entrances from a stage with a well decorated background, their numbers are carefully "produced," and their performances are crisply and alertly professional in manner. A Bouche revue belongs to the theater arts, not to the realm of "whoopee." It might be added, to trace this individuality to its source, that the host of the Villa Venice is his own stage director.

The program changes with each performance, and those who like to stay up late assert that it gets better as it marches along through the smaller hours. Mr. Bouche's twelve principals are versatile, his wardrobe of costumes is extensive, and his zeal to keep the customers amused is unflagging. If you should sit with Mr. Bouche from nine in the evening until three in the morning, dining or dancing or riding in gondolas between shows, you will have seen the equivalent of a Broadway revue minus the reprehensible sketches.

This summer the Villa Venice is specializing upon a presentation of the languorous, provocative rhumba for its chief chorus number. It has Cuban authenticity, although the little brown-skin girl who rhumbles most effectively comes from China, not Havana.

A Japanese girl, called a princess, illustrates the ceremonial dances of the East Indies. She reminds you of Ruth St. Denis—and also the ill-fated Mata Hari. An adagio team also practices oriental dancing, of the whirling Arabian variety, and Mildred contrives to be the most naked little girl of the year, without giving offense.

And so the Bouche revue brings amusement, with a genuine, unstrained air of sophistication, to the summer night riders. It is a show that compensates for the dullness of the "loop."

TUG TRANSFER OF LINERS' MAIL IS TIME LOSER

Costs Incoming Passengers Two Hours.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—When an ocean liner reaches quarantine out past the narrows between Brooklyn and Staten Island things begin to happen—but they happen too slowly. One of the incidents is the transfer of incoming mail to tugs. This bit of government collecting delays homeward bound travelers two hours and sometimes longer.

THE TRIBUNE reporter today undertook to find out about the mail tugs and why the mail could not be unloaded at the pier just as quickly and easily. He discovered that:

The ocean mails are getting heavier and the staffs on the mail carrying liners are growing smaller and consequently the delays at quarantine are growing longer.

No Compulsion on Liner.

The liner is under no compulsion to stand by or unload the mail after the customs men release her, but the captains usually remain in quarantine until the last mail sack is unloaded. He sticks because his company has to unload and cart the mail to the postoffice and foot the entire bill if the mail is dumped at the pier.

"This matter has come up before," said one of the postal agents in charge of the sea post service who declined to permit his name to be used, "but we have nothing to do with holding up the ships. It is up to the skipper to decide whether to unload or run for the dock. Sometimes he stands by rather than run up an unloading bill for his company. We pay for unloading down the bay. His company pays for unloading on the pier.

"We figure on two hours to unload the mail from a big liner. Sometimes it takes longer. Maybe the passengers lose time, but we save a lot.

System in Effect 30 Years.

"The present system has been in effect for the last thirty years and has speeded up ocean mail service. When for various reasons—tide, incoming fog or the desire of some hard-boiled skipper to make port immediately—the mail is brought to the pier to be unloaded we find that several hours are lost before the ship's crew can start unloading. Then the outbound mail has to go through the New York postoffice to be sorted."

Outside of postal circles, men familiar with the transfer of the mail were of the opinion that it could just as easily be unloaded on the pier. They agreed that when ships came into quarantine too late in the afternoon to dock, twelve hours or more could be saved by unloading the mail down the bay, but when a heavily loaded liner dropped anchor at quarantine in the morning and hit the tide right, the best thing for both passengers and mail would be to speed on into port.

Sometimes Use Chute.

At the postoffice it was explained that frequently a mail boat would tie on to an incoming liner and take on its load of mail through the canvas chute as both vessels were moving down the bay. In that way neither the mail nor the passengers were delayed.

Recently, however, the mail carrying liners have been standing hitched at quarantine, passengers impatiently gazing at the New York skyline, while sailors laboriously dumped four and five thousand mail sacks into the tug roped on to its side.

No one available at the postoffice this afternoon could say how much the government paid the New York Central to collect its mail. It was explained that the contract was let by competitive bidding and that the New York Central had held the contract for a "good many years."

The postoffice authorities were of the opinion that ship to land airplane postal service would never put the mail tugs out of business. The mail sacks weigh about 40 pounds each, it was pointed out, and in 1930 more than 1,250,000 sacks from 2,065 ships were brought up the bay by the tug President alone.

Oil Fire Is Extinguished After Burning 3 Weeks

ECONOMICAL AND EASY TO MAKE JAMS AND JELLIES

Don't let summer go by without putting up some preserves, jellies and jams. Your family will thank you and with every glass and jar you open next winter, you'll save real money. Sugar is being sold everywhere at a price that is unusually low, and bargains in fruit may be expected throughout the season.

There is a place in every meal for canned fruit of some sort. You can make economical desserts and salads with them that are wholesome and delicious. Jellies also make a tasty-pleasing dessert when served with cream cheese and crackers. And when you have rice pudding, top each serving with a spoonful of jam.

Remember, too, that sweet relishes made of vegetables are delicious with meat and fish. Watch your fruit and vegetable market so you can take advantage of the bargain-day prices. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

PARIS, July 29.—From Aug. 17, it was announced today at the close of the meeting of the north Atlantic shipping conference, the cost of first class transportation on all ships between European and North American ports will be reduced from 10 to 30 per cent. Third class rates will be reduced 13 per cent. All supplementary charges, such as those for position of cabin, will be heavily cut. Tourists will no longer be required to label baggage third class.

For technical reasons, it is stated, publication of the exact details of the reductions will be withheld until Aug. 17, the day on which they will come into effect.

Eighteen steamship companies have taken part in these decisions, and the delay in making the new rates effective is due only to the necessity of ironing out fractional differences, which work is being done by a subcommittee of the conference.

Decision Explained.

The announcement of the result of the conference was made this evening by Dr. L. Kiep of the Hamburg-America line, who is chairman of the conference.

"Our decision to cut rates at this time," he said, "is an extremely grave one for us. The position of the shipping companies is far from satisfactory and the responsibility of directors towards shareholders is serious. We have had to weigh and decide whether in this time of business depression our course should be directed towards protecting their interests, even if in so doing we seemed to be putting restriction on travel, or towards increasing the opportunity to travel so that we might in that way increase the volume of business and, we hope, help the world at large. We have taken the latter course."

Hail Hoover Plan.

An official communique issued by the conference hailed the recent war debt moratorium plan of President Hoover and declared that the new low rates were established to meet demands of the "new world" which would eventually result from a settlement of economic problems. The conference expressed a hope that greater travel would be one result of President Hoover's action.

The "practical suspension of emigration to the United States and Canada" was given as one of the reasons for the "aggravated" condition brought upon steamship companies.

Joyriders Use Ambulance and Carry a Bar Along

Canton, Ill., July 29.—[Special.]—Stanley Foote, Canton mortician, stopped in Kewanee today by police told them that two women in his ambulance were sick and he was taking them home. The girls were sick all right, but according to police, a well stocked bar in the rear of the ambulance contained liquor bottles from which they had imbibed too freely. Foote was fined $100 and costs and Walter Woods, also from Canton, paid $15. The girls, Pauline Beasely and Catherine Casson, each 18, were leased.

INFIDELITY IN 2 HOMES BARED BY THIS BANDIT

Anderson, Ind., July 29.—[Special.]—A highway bandit, who for several weeks has been preying on persons in automobiles parked along roads near Anderson, has disrupted two homes.

Two young women reported holdups to police before learning they were riding with married men. Two men, who were unable to explain to their wives why they were accompanied by the young women today were sued for divorce.

Brilliant Workout Cuts Odds.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Morfair, the 2 year old son of Morvich, owned by Victor Emanuel of New York, became the favorite last night to win the $50,000 Post and Paddock stakes which may determine the 2 year old champion when it is run at Arlington Park Saturday.

He mustered an enormous following after he turned in the most sensational workout of the year over the Arlington course. About twenty of the best juveniles in the country will face the barrier with him.

Under stiff restraint and only galloping part of the way, Morfair stepped a quarter in :22 2-5, a half in :45 2-5, six furlongs in :57 2-5, and three-quarters in 1:11 flat. Those who lay the odds took no chances and the best any Morfair backer could get was 2 to 1, although he may pay more in the actual betting Saturday.

Indigo Wins Steeplechase.

Tullco, General Advance, Frederick, Modern Queen, Pair by Pair, and many other candidates for the race were galloping, but none of them showed the amazing ability that Morfair did, and they were almost forgotten in the advance wagering.

While the 2 year olds were preparing for their championship skirmish yesterday Indigo, the big jumper from New York, won the Lake Forest steeplechase. As he carried his 152 pounds over the two and a half mile route to win by three lengths, the family of Joseph E. Widener made a clean sweep of Arlington's steeplechase stakes.

Earlier in the season Luckite, owned by Mrs. Fiil Widener Holden of Philadelphia, a daughter of Mr. Widener, had captured the North Shore steeplechase. In the Lake Forest, worth $5,375, Indigo carried the familiar Widener scarlet and-white jacket.

Parke's Ride Exceptional.

Only three started in the Lake Forest and Indigo had as a running companion Fairmount, one of the most famous jumpers in the country, but a 9 year old which had not started for nearly two seasons. The other contestant was Gracie, an 8 year old mare from the stable of Dr. J. Fred Adams of Baltimore.

The Widener pair ran Gracie dizzy, although Ivan Parke on the Maryland mare turned in one of the most finished steeplechase rides Arlington crowds ever witnessed. Old Fairmount went out to make the early pace. He galloped and jumped along in the lead for nearly a mile and a half. Meanwhile, Indigo and Gracie were staging a spirited duel for second place, with Parke on Gracie outriding Bauman on Indigo. If Parke hadn't been saving ground at every turn and lifting Gracie over the difficult jumps, the Maryland mare might have been disgracefully beaten.

Fairmount Falls.

Finally at the fourteenth jump, Fairmount, not quite ready for such a stamina testing struggle and weakly ridden by Harry Little, went down with a thud which echoed over into the stands. As he fell, one of the very few falls he has ever taken in his long steeplechase career, Gracie raced to the front, while Jockey Bauman on Indigo was looking around to see what had happened to Fairmount and Jockey Little.

But by the time they reached the last turn, Indigo had romped forward into the lead. He was under restraint from there home and well in hand at the finish. Gracie wasn't nearly good enough to overtake him.

Pays 22 Cents to Dollar.

Indigo officially is called a gray horse, but he is the bluest looking piece of horse flesh one ever looked at. The Widener entry was backed exclusive of all the others and was the shortest priced favorite of the meeting. He ran his two miles and a half in four minutes and 59 seconds. In the mutuels he paid $2.44 for a two dollar ticket, or 22 cents to a dollar.

The Lake Geneva handicap and the Toledo purse shared the spotlight with the steeplechase. In the Lake Geneva, the odds on choice, Morsel, was whipped when Battle Ship, at 5 to 1 in the betting, took his measure in the stretch. He caused Morsel to quit so suddenly that Satin Spar came up in the final strides to grab second place.

Indian Runner Wins.

The Toledo purse brought forth half a dozen Post and Paddock stake candidates and resulted in a brilliant victory for Hal Price Headley's Indian Runner. Jockey Renick squeezed him through on the rail in time to get the verdict by a neck from At Sunrise with Westy Junior, the favorite, third. Westy Junior led until the last few strides, but Jockey Schaefer brought him out from the rail a bit going down the stretch and he left an opening just wide enough for Indian Runner to skim through.

Champ's Nemesis

Mrs. Jones Is Defeated, 2-1, by June Beebe

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

June Beebe of Olympia Fields upset the old régime in the women's Chicago district golf tournament yesterday, defeating Mrs. Melvin Jones of Lincolnshire, five times champion, 2 and 1, in a quarter final match at the Calumet Golf club.

Miss Beebe turned in an 80, one over par. She shot the majority of the holes in or under par, only four holes causing her difficulty. On the 7th her ball was in the creek, and she took a five, one over par. On the ninth a spoon shot dropped in the rough, and a bad lie in a trap caused her to lose an opportunity of halving the hole for a five.

Putting Decides Match.

On the 11th she drove into the rough, again her approach was short, and she missed a putt, taking a six, while Mrs. Jones holed out in four. The 16th was lost to Mrs. Jones, when her second shot was trapped and she took a five, one over par.

Mrs. Jones, who had a card of 81, lost the match on the greens. Her putting was erratic, while Miss Beebe enjoyed splendid putting form, playing the 16th, 17th, and 18th holes in one stroke under par.

Ruth Hits Homer No. 28 in Third Inning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 29.—Mr. Charles A. Comiskey's rigid economy program relative to the employment of able bodied pitchers this afternoon proved too much for old Red Faber, who came back in the final with the Yankees after inadequate rest. The New Yorkers took advantage of the depression in the White Sox counting room and evened the six game series by a score of 10 to 4.

The jovial old man did all he could for six innings to make the afternoon a success, but the day was hot and the task a thankless one. The Yanks broke a 2 to 2 tie in the third with an onslaught which included homers by Ruth and Lary, and after that the issue caused no great degree of speculation upon the part of the paying observers.

After the game the Sox moved over to Newark, where the home office has booked an exhibition game for tomorrow to give the pitching staff some work to keep their arms in shape.

The team then will move on to Detroit for a four game series starting Saturday.

Yanks Take Two Run Lead.

The Yanks jumped off to a two run lead in the first inning as a result of a single by Byrd, a pass to Sewell, a single by Ruth and a long fly by Gehrig.

The Sox tied it up in the first of the third. Tate beat out an infield single and, after Faber had fouled to Dickey, Blue walked. Sullivan dumped a Texas leaguer back of third, Tate scoring and Blue stopping at second. Blue stole third and he scored and Sullivan went to second when Dickey threw the ball into left field. Reynolds went down with his bat on his shoulder and Fonseca fouled to Dickey.

The tie did not survive the inning, however, for it was in the latter half of the third that the Yankees made five hits for four runs, including Mr. Ruth's No. 28 home run, a triple by Gehrig, and an in the park homer by Lary.

Faber Calls It a Day.

The Yanks scored their seventh run, the last off Faber, in the fifth on a single by Gehrig, a walk to Chapman, and an infield hit by Lary, and a force out.

In the sixth the Sox completed their day's manufacture on a walk to Fonseca followed by a homer by Kerr.

The Yanks made two runs in the seventh on a spurious homer by Lazeri, which followed a single by Chapman and Chapman's 42d steal of the year. Watwood assayed a diving catch for a potential third out and landed on his nose while the ball bounced merrily on to the flag pole.

Win 7, Lose 11 on Trip.

The Sox closed their second eastern invasion with a much better showing than had been forecast, with seven victories and eleven defeats. Six of the wins were accomplished at the last two stops, Boston and New York. Furthermore, it isn't going too far into the realm of second guessing to say that the Sox probably would have won four more games but for the lack of pitchers.

WEBB IS ONLY BIG 6 BATTER TO MAKE GAIN

Babe Ruth connected with his 28th home run, Earl Webb pounded out four hits in ten times at bat, and Al Simmons and Virgil Davis got one hit each, but the batting averages of baseball's big six showed little gain today as the result of yesterday's games. Webb's efforts boosted his average to .371, an increase of one point, while Ruth and Simmons remained stationary.

Detroit, Mich., July 29.—[Special.]—Strengthened by the addition of Harry Talbot to its lineup, the Roslyn four rode to a 10 to 9 victory over the Santa Paula polo team of Argentina here today in the second of a three game series. The deciding game will be played Sunday.

Juan Reynal, Santa Paula No. 3, scored seven of his team's nine goals and dominated the Argentines' play throughout. What turned out to be the deciding goal was scored by Andrada, Santa Paula's No. 4, in the sixth chukker, when he rode into a close play near his own goal and misdirected a back hand shot, driving it through his own uprights for a Roslyn goal.

Montreal Maroon Hockey Club President Resigns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., July 29.—James Strachan, president of the Montreal Maroon Hockey club in the National Hockey league, today announced his resignation from the club. "The policy of the club is not my policy, so I am getting out," he said. It is understood a matter of future policy dictated his resignation. He had ideas leading to a reorganization of the club and these apparently developed a variance of opinion.

Mrs. Jessup in Comeback, Is Tennis Victor

Seabright, N. J., July 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., assumed the rôle of outstanding star today as the third day of play in the 44th annual Seabright invitation tennis tournaments carried the action up to the final round of the men's singles and the semi-finals of the other events.

Eleven years after gaining a leg on the Seabright bowl, Mrs. Jessup returned today to score an unexpected victory over Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., America's second ranking player, in the quarter finals. The scores were 9-7, 4-6, 6-1. The upset victory earned the Delaware player the right to oppose Mrs. Helen Willis Moody in one singles semi-final tomorrow.

Helen Jacobs Wins.

The day was filled with stirring tennis. Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. L. A. Harper, national champion, won their matches and the right to meet each other in the semi-final round. John Hope Doeg, former Californian now living in Newark, N. J., who holds the national men's title, and Ellsworth Vines Jr., of Pasadena, Cal., qualified to fight it out Friday for the men's singles championship.

Miss Jacobs was too good for Mae Ceurvorst of Wichita, Kas., who lost 6-0, 6-2; but Mrs. Harper was thoroughly extended by another Californian, Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Anna, before winning, 9-7, 6-3.

Doeg Pushed to Limit.

Mrs. Moody, in winning from Baroness Giacomo Levi of New York, 6-1, 6-0, kept up her remarkable pace of yesterday when she also triumphed with the loss of only one game. In all, the former American and Wimbledon champion had played only 54 minutes of tennis in gaining the semi-final round.

In the men's semi-final matches, both Doeg and Vines, who is eighth in the national ranking, were pushed to the limit, the former by 19 year old Jack Tidball of Los Angeles, and Vines by the fifth player on the national ranking list, Cliff Sutter of New Orleans.

Doeg was forced to play three sets before getting the verdict over Tidball by scores of 4-6, 6-3, 8-6, while Vines overcame Sutter, 6-2, 11-9.

Sanstol, Montreal's World Champion, Outpoints Huat

DAVIS CUP RESULT.

FRANCE successfully defended the Davis cup against Britain's challengers by the narrow margin of 3 matches to 2. Such result generally was anticipated, although the French were not at full strength owing to the indisposition of Cochet, absence of Lacoste, and lack of usual form on the part of Borotra.

JEAN BOROTRA.

Perhaps the tragedy of the event was the double defeat of Jean Borotra, the "bounding Basque," who has been an internationalist since 1925. He clearly was "off" form — whether permanently or temporarily cannot be determined at this distance in absence of details.

Borotra, with his dark beret and impetuous exclamations during a rally of "Oui, oui," was one of the most spectacular players of the French squad from a spectator's viewpoint. Lacking the brilliance, perhaps, of Cochet, and the deadly, almost spontaneous, steadiness of Lacoste, he always was colorful with his impetuous attack.

France now has held the international tennis trophy for five years. British and Americans are creeping up on the veteran Gauls, who were tennis youngsters when their title tenure began.

Sonnet on Golf.

Except upon the miniature design
That sends a funny feeling down my spine
Like one derives from marbles or a set
Of pingpong in the parlor—but I'll bet
That I could make the best of them resign,
From Bobby Jones right down the line,
Without a sign of struggle or of fret.
This game of golf is not so hard to play—
Why, all you have to do is take a stick
And hit a little ball—there is no trick
To doing that! I cannot understand
Why so much fuss and bother crowds the day

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cub attack, which once was the most feared in the National league, was down to the whispering stage again yesterday. Against Ray Benge, a man with 15 defeats for the season, they reeled off only five hits. On top of this they displayed a fondness for blundering, especially on bunts. So, between the two, the Phillies were able to win a decision which made it necessary for the Cubs to move back into third place. The score was 4 to 0, giving the Quakers an even break in the series and the Cubs a mark of nine victories in sixteen starts during the invasion by the eastern half of the circuit.

Contrary to earlier plans Manager Hornsby elected to get by without the use of one of his few star pitchers, and in view of the effectiveness of Benge the idea probably was timely. Lon Warneke drew the assignment and his pitching was acceptable, but his own fielding of bunts and errors by his mates were something different. It was errors that started the Phils on their way with a run in the second and it was blundering of a more grievous nature which let them clinch the game with three runs in the third.

Wilson Gets to Third.

In addition to holding the Cubs to five hits, Benge fanned five of them and gave only one pass. With such goings on the Hornsby contingent naturally didn't wear out much shoe leather on the base lines. Of the six who reached base one went to third and one to second. Both of these events occurred in the fifth, and the man who traveled as far as third was Hack Wilson. Hack is now at the stage where any kind of distinction is acceptable. It also might be mentioned that two of the Cub hits were by Blair, but he offset them with two errors on one play and the messing up of one bunt.

The Cubs departed for St. Louis early last evening so as to enjoy a night of rest in stationary beds before starting a two game series with the Cardinals today. Bob Smith will work in the opener and the Cubs are fearing that they will have to look at Burleigh Grimes' dreaded spit ball.

Errors Give Phils a Run.

Blair's failure to remember that to retire a man it is necessary to keep a foot on the bag presented the Phils with their first run in the second inning. With Arlett retired Hurst singled over short and Whitney walked, Davis flied to right and Mallon bounced to Hornsby for what should have been the third out, but Blair didn't have his foot on the sack when he received the throw from Hornsby. Meanwhile Hurst was running toward the plate and he arrived there safely when Blair pegged wild to Hemsley.

The Cubs' complex on bunts began to reveal itself in the third when Brickell beat out a roller which Warneke couldn't pick up. Bartell

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 29.—[Special.]—Michigan will play both a major and a B football schedule this year, but for the first time since 1928, when the B team plan was put into practice, the teams will be picked from a single squad.

Coach Harry Kipke today announced the abandonment of the double squad plan, saying that he believed the choice of teams from a single group will prove more effective.

The change is partly a result of an experiment tried in basketball last season when George Veenker kept the squad intact and picked teams from it for all games on both schedules. The major team tied for second honors in the Big Ten, while the minor team won 8 of its 10 games. On the other hand, the double squad plan has worked with only a fair success, the B football team last year having won 3, tied 1, and lost 4 games.

Only 60 will be invited back for practice this fall, Kipke said today, whereas the practice has been to keep from 70 to 75 in uniform. Cuts will reduce this squad to 45 or 50, to be retained throughout the season.

Coaches R. G. Courtright and Clifford Keen, who have had the teams in tow for the three years of their separate existence, will work with the full squad.

H. Rice Sold to Baltimore by Senators

Washington, D. C., July 29.—(AP)—Harry Rice, Washington outfielder, will report immediately at Newark to the Baltimore Orioles, to whom he has been sold by the Senators. Rice, Owner Clark Griffith of the Senators said, did not go to Baltimore as part of the trade whereby Monte Weaver, Oriole pitcher, was acquired by Washington.

HARRY RICE.

The sale of Rice, however, Griffith added, influenced the deal involving Weaver, for whom Washington will give two players and an unannounced cash sum.

Weaver will report to the Senators at the end of the season, when Washington's two players will be designated by Griffith. Rice, formerly with the St. Louis Browns, Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees, was obtained by Washington from the Yankees for the waiver price of $7,500, last winter.

THREE STARS OF NORTHWEST OUT OF TITLE GOLF

Seattle, Wash., July 29.—(AP)—Three of the Pacific northwest's outstanding golfers will not be in its delegation to compete in the national amateur golf tournament.

Don Moe, western amateur champion and hero of last year's Walker cup invasion of England, fell by the wayside in qualifying play yesterday. The other two stellar amateurs—Phillips Findlay and Malcolm McNaughton, did not play. Findlay withdrew and McNaughton failed to enter.

Moe was four strokes behind the 145 of Frank Dolp, Portland, Ore., who led qualifiers here, and one stroke behind Eddie Hogan, Portland, and Johnny Shields, Seattle, who finished in a tie for third with 148. Shields won the playoff and, with Dr. O. F. Willing, former Walker cup player from Portland, will accompany Dolp. Moe came through the morning round with a par 72, but two sixes on the second round spoiled his chances.

HELEN HICKS IS JERSEY SHORE GOLF WINNER

Long Branch, N. J., July 29.—(AP)—Helen [Billie] Hicks, Long Island golfer, today added the North Jersey Shore golf title to her string, playing the final 18 holes over the Norwood course in 86 for a 54 hole three day total of 250.

Starting out the last 18 with a lead of 17 strokes over the field, Miss Hicks finished with 14 of that margin remaining; Martha Parker, New Jersey champion, who had 83 today, whittled three from Miss Hicks' lead.

Miss Parker's "Garrison" finish gave her second place with an aggregate of 264, composed of rounds of 93—88—83. Miss Hicks' scores were 80—84—86.

TRAMBLIE BOXES LAURIE PEPPIN HERE TONIGHT

Laurie [Pep] Peppin, Winnipeg middleweight, makes his Chicago debut tonight against Ray Tramblie of Rockford in a ten round bout at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets. Four other bouts, with the unbeaten Dick Sisk as a principal in the semi-windup, are on the card.

Sisk is matched with Hamburg Wiskany, hard hitting German youngster. Wiskany will substitute for Otto Anderson of Terre Haute, Ind. Jackie Davis, lightweight, will appear in a six round bout with Johnny Paneck of South Chicago.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 29.—[Special.]—The champion Athletics downed the St. Louis Browns for the third time today, 4 to 2. It was also the Macks' sixteenth consecutive triumph on their home field. A home run by Jimmy Foxx, his 20th of the year, with a mate on in the fourth inning, was the deciding hit.

Roy Mahaffey was credited with his eleventh win of the season, against two defeats, although he was overcome by the heat in the ninth and was forced to give way to Walberg. Mahaffey held the Browns to two hits in the first eight innings. Score:

Amos Alonzo Stagg, athletic director at the University of Chicago, and his son, Paul, weathered a two hour battle with Herbert and Junior Mertz yesterday in the midwest father and son tennis tournament on the University of Chicago varsity courts to enter the semi-finals.

The Stagg combination was forced to the limit to eke out an 8-6, 5-7, 6-2 victory over the Mertz team.

In the veterans' championships, held in conjunction with the father and son tourney, Dr. S. H. Thwaites of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Walter Hayes of Chicago, triumphed easily. They meet in the final round today.

William and Earl Irwin of Grand Rapids, Mich., seeded No. 1 team, breezed through an easy victory over Tweller and Donald Kimball, 6-2, 6-0. Robert and John Doerr triumphed, 6-1, 3-6, 8-6, over J. O. McKiernan and son. F. T. O'Brien and his son, E. T. Jr., won the remaining place in the semi-final bracket when John and Jack Angus defaulted.

Plans of the Hawthorne Kennel club to build a half mile horse racing track on its property in Cicero were balked yesterday. A surveyor discovered that a small strip of land owned by a railroad company was needed to complete the half mile oval, and the railroad refused to sell. CUBS STOPPED WITH FIVE HITS; PHILS WIN, 4-0 bunted to Blair and beat it for a hit. Klein bunted to Warneke, but this was a raw fumble and was recorded as an error. Nothing happened on Arlett's popup to Jurges, but when Hurst sailed a fly to Barton in right Brickell ran home. Then Whitney doubled to right to score Bartell and Klein and put the Cubs four runs in arrears.

Bruins Drop to 3d Place; At St. Louis Today.

You could put a thimble over all the business the Cubs were able to transact against Benge in the first four innings. Exactly two of Hornsby's employés reached first base during these quiet sessions. In the first Cuyler scratched a hit to short with two out, whereupon Barton fanned. Starting the third Hemsley lost a hit through a dazzling running pickup by Bartell and right after this Warneke singled to right. He was doubled up when Jurges bounced gently to the pitcher.

Cubs Pass Up Only Chance.

Opportunity made a big disturbance on the Cubs' doorstep in the fifth, but they weren't expecting it; so they paid no attention. Wilson, for whom base hits are becoming a rarity, singled to center with one out. Blair looped a low fly back of third and it rolled to the stand for a two bagger. Wilson stopped at third. Hemsley could offer nothing more exciting than a pop to Hurst. Then Hartnett was ordered to go up and hit one in Warneke's place. What Gabby hit was an easy fly which the center fielder gobbled up to end the Cubs' only big chance of the afternoon.

After the fifth the Cubs wouldn't have known the difference if the ground keeper had picked up the bases and locked them away for the night. In the four concluding innings only two of them escaped being retired. Cuyler walked with two out in the sixth, after which Barton filed to the third baseman. In the seventh, with two gone, Blair singled to center and Hemsley forced him.

If You Want to Battle for Fish, Try a Lake Trout

BY BOB BECKER.

Any fisherman who feels that chasting in a boat or wading a stream is a "soft" method of fishing can get a stiffer workout under a hot sun by turning to Lake Michigan for a whack at the mackinaw, or lake trout.

This exercise consists of letting out and reeling in 900 to 1,200 feet of wire line, a continuous operation that may put blisters on your hands before the day is over.

We tried this type of "deep sea" trolling a few days ago, when we set sail on a cruiser from Northport, Mich.

About seven miles from the harbor both the professional trout fishermen and sportsmen troll over banks where the lakers are found. Then up and 'round they go all day long—with a big spoon lure plumbing the depths.

We had expected to use a fairly short line, say 250 to 500 feet, with a heavy sinker, because the lake trout during the hot summer months is deep. But our skipper, Tony Elsner, told us that hardly any one goes in heavy sinkers up there. On the contrary, they use lots of line to get down to the bottom, 110 to 125 feet. The idea is to draw the revolving spoon along about two feet above the bottom.

We have had some hot jobs working on salt water fish, with both light and heavy tackle, but we never saw a kind of fishing that takes so much reeling and pumping as this lake trout fishing around Northpoint.

We hooked a couple of fish, one weighing around 8 pounds and the other tipping the scales at about 15 pounds. From the time they were hooked until they were safely in seemed as if we had been on the job for thirty minutes, and not one minute can you rest during this period. The mackinaw trout is a scrapper and he comes up out of the depths fighting, wrestling, and struggling to free himself. Therefore you have to keep a tight line or he will get rid of your spoon lure.

The professional fishermen have devised an unusual rig to handle their fish. They use large steel drums on the sterns of their boats. When a fish is hooked they take hold of a wooden handle and reel him in on the wire line attached to the drum. But even this method is no easy task. Under a hot sun you know you are working before you get the 1,800 to 1,200 feet of line reeled in.

JABBERWALK AT RIDGEMOOR CLUB WON BY MARTIN

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Russel Martin, young Flossmoor expert, appears to have a weakness for invitational tournaments bearing strange names. Earlier in the season he stole the show at the Kildeer Karnival and yesterday he came out to Ridgemoor's ninth annual Jabberwalk to shoot a 149 for the best 36 hole gross score of the day.

The Jabberwalk, one of the best invitational affairs in the Chicago district, sustained its poularity in a year when fields of less than 100 are the rule by attracting nearly 150 to yesterday's doings, many of them visitors from other clubs.

Horton Smith Shoots 68.

The distinguished visitor of the program was Horton Smith, who proved that his victory in the recent $10,000 St. Paul open was no fluke by shooting a 68, four under par, in a morning threesome with Herbert Graffis and Robert Harlow.

The tall boy from Missouri conquered the Ridgemoor topography with an outgoing 34, two under par, which included birdies on the 2d, 3d, and 8th holes, and one over par 4 on the 5th, where his drive found the rough at the right and his second shot lingered on the green's edge. He three putted the 10th, but redeemed this with birdies on the 11th, 14th, and 15th to come home in 34 for a total of 68. His card follows:

Out	4 5 4 4 3 4 4 4 4	34
In	4 4 4 3 4 4 5 3 4	34	68

Martin Starts Well.

Martin equalled par in the morning, but encountered difficulty in the afternoon, and concluded with a 77 for his 149.

Johnny Lehman of Olympia Fields, last year's western amateur champion, and Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, who won the medal in the Chicago district elimination round for the national amateur at Onwentsia Tuesday, tied for second place among the 36 hole gross scorers, each shooting a 151. Johnny was awarded the prize for second, and first low gross for the morning round went to Jack, because it was next best to Martin's 73. Gus Novotny of Edgewood Valley won second gross honors for the morning with a 79.

Glen Clarke dropped in from Crystal Lake to capture the afternoon gross with a 77, two strokes better than Chick Evans of Edgewater. Low net prizes for the morning were divided betwen W. J. Spillane of North Shore and H. A. Fletner, Edgewood Valley, each of whom had 72. Dick Hanley, looking fit to coach Northwestern to another conference football championship, duplicated this to share the afternoon net honors with A. F. Ritzewitz, unattached.

Simpson's Net Is Best.

R. H. Simpson of the home club had the best 36 hole net score of the proceedings, coming in with 170—26—144. C. H. Atwood was next with a 192—48—144. Earl Jager of Ridgemoor won the contest for low on the par 3 holes, his count for the 4th, 8th, 11th and 15th greens being 27 for the two rounds.

The winning low gross foursome was composed of Art Sweet, the home club's scribe; Frank Justin of Edgewood Valley, Dr. G. E. Meyer of Ridgemoor, and Jack Westland. Their total was 649. Sweet and Justin won the guest and member gross prize with 311. The low net foursome for the day comprised W. Irons, unattached; C. H. Atwood, Battle Creek, Mich.; A. L. Martin, Kildeer, and C. Hayes, Winged Foot, Mamaroneck, N. Y. Their net score was 594. The guest and member net went to F. C. Le Row of Ridgemoor and Russell Martin.

MOWRIS WINS AT EMPIRE AFTER FIVE FAILURES

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Harry F. Sinclair's Mowris, best known for his disappointing races this season, at last sustained the confidence of Trainer Frank Taylor when he got up in a driving finish to win the Tarrytown stakes by a nose at Empire City today. In five races since a sprint victory at Belmont Park, Mowris has been up close and knocking on the door, but he failed to land in the winner's circle.

Tommy Malley's rousing finish enabled the son of Lucullite to carry his top impost of 120 pounds to triumph and save the day for the form players. Mowris ran coupled with his stablemate Caplin and was made the 2 to 5 choice on a day that saw two more odds-on choices, and sundry other favorites, beaten badly.

Caplin got third in the Tarrytown, several lengths back of E. R. Bradley's Bathorse, which very nearly gained the $2,395 which was the winner's share of the purse. Bathorse led at one time in the stretch but he was run down and passed by Mowris in the last stride or two. Mowris' time was 1:46 for the mile and 70 yards.

Riel Advances in Mississippi Net Tourney

Iowa City, Ia., July 29.—[Special.]—Three Northwestern university athletes advanced into the third round of the Mississippi Valley tennis tourney which opened here today with 51 entrants.

Bert Riel, Watseka, Ill., basketball star and captain elect of the 1932 Northwestern tennis team, won two easy matches, defeating Gordon Delay, Cedar Rapids, Ia., and I. Mirkland, former interscholastic champion of Hawaii. Riel is seeded No. 3 in the tourney with Merle Robbins of Ames, Ia., 1930 Iowa champion, No. 1 and Ted Swensen, Cedar Rapids, recently appointed Hawkeye tennis coach, No. 2.

Meredith Olsen, former Northwestern netman, drew a bye in the first round and went into the third by default while Clifford Nelsen, his teammate and doubles partner, defeated John Coons, Iowa City, in the three sets.

Seeded players came through in the first day's play and advanced with little difficulty. Swensen won by a default after drawing a bye and Robbins took an easy match from R. M. Parks of Des Moines, Ia. Bob Chafee, Chicago, seeded No. 5 player, drew a bye in the first round and defeated James Shiley, Chicago, in the second.

Doubles play will begin tomorrow with finals in both men's and women's singles Saturday.

SCHAAF-CAMPOLO BATTLE STILL ON, JOHNSTON SAYS

New York, July 29.—[Special.]—Jimmy Johnston and the Dodger A. C. of Brooklyn, which he represents, intend to go through with the Ernie Schaaf-Vittorio Campolo fight at Ebbets field on Aug. 24, despite objections raised by Madison Square Garden.

"The Garden has one of those 99 year leases on Campolo," said Johnston today. "But if Bill Carey thinks he can make it stand up in court, I'm ready to go to the mat with him. The Garden put a temporary restrainer on my Sharkey-Carnera fight, but I'm not going to permit it to stop the Schaaf-Campolo bout."

Johnston stated that contracts for the bout have been submitted to the boxing commission and he expects to have them approved by Friday.

Jimmy, incidentally, has found Maxie Rosenbloom, the elusive former light heavyweight champion, whom he has booked to fight 15 rounds with Jimmy Slattery next Wednesday night at the Brooklyn ball park. He caught Maxie grabbing a few bows Tuesday night in the ring of the Queensboro stadium.

Parkhill Is Defeated in Kentucky Tennis Meet

Louisville, Ky., July 29.—[Special.]—William Parkhill of Chicago was defeated, 6-4, 5-7, 6-0, by Bob Bryan of Chattanooga, Tenn., in the feature match of the second round singles of the Kentucky State tennis tournament today.

George Jennings of Chicago, seeded No. 2, advanced to the third round today, along with other seeded entrants. George O'Connell, also of Chicago, seeded No. 4, reached the third round Tuesday. Jennings and O'Connell, seeded No. 1, in the doubles, played a second round match in advance and won easily from local opposition. Parkhill and Ed Lejeck of Chicago defeated Julius Sagalowsky and Richard Crane of Indianapolis, 7-5, 6-3, in a first round doubles match.

HAWTHORNE NOW WONDERS HOW TO STABLE ENTRIES

Owners Asked to Move Unconditioned Mounts.

The influx of horses for the Hawthorne race meeting that opens on Monday began in earnest yesterday with the arrival of several carloads of thoroughbreds, and the problem of housing all of these animals is even greater than the officials anticipated.

Among the latest to unload are horses belonging to Ald. Coughlin, J. C. Shea, Mrs. Emil Denemark, J. N. McFadden, C. R. Anderson, the Arsonia stable, A. A. Haroni, J. Dyer, Chappel Brothers of Rockford, Charles Cherry, F. Harris, and C. A. Hartwell. Several other big stables have been on the ground for several days, among them the Peabody horses and those belonging to the LeBrea stables of California.

Some Go to Lincoln Field.

With all available stall room spoken for, Joseph Murphy, general manager, has appealed to several of the larger stables to divide their barns and leave only those horses that are in good condition at Hawthorne. Room for the others has been found at Lincoln Fields and Washington Park.

Entries for the $5,000 added Inaugural handicap to be run on opening day closed last night. It is for 3 year olds and up and is a dash of six furlongs. The task of compiling the nominations will be completed today. Weights will be assigned tomorrow.

Martin Nathanson, who with Judge Murphy and Herman P. Conklin will serve in the stewards' stand, arrived yesterday. He was particularly interested in the new timing device.

Transportation Is Improved.

Plans for improved transportation have been completed, and a test run made over the elevated lines, connecting with the track buses, was made in 24½ minutes from the loop. A new L platform is being built at 52d street, where the patrons need step only 6 feet from the train to the bus. Special L trains will make all stops and Franklin street, with the last stop before 52d street at Marshfield avenue.

PRINCIPALS END WORK TODAY FOR DENEMARK SHOW

Frankie Battaglia and Pete La Crosse, and Jerry Crano and Clyde Chastain, who face each other in the double ten round windup at Denemark stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, tomorrow night will finish training this afternoon at the Arcade and Mullen gymnasiums.

OBSERVE CULLEN DAY.

James J. Cullen day will be celebrated at National grove, forest preserve, 26th and Des Plaines avenue, near Riverside, on Sunday. Baseball, running races, and other athletic contests are on the day's program.

11,000 TROOPS OF CHICAGOLAND GOING INTO CAMP

Guard, C. M. T. C. Units to Start Training.

An army of 11,000 men was assembling in Chicago and the metropolitan area yesterday, ready to take up life under tents at three camps. Seven thousand national guard infantry officers and men will start a two weeks' training period at Camp Grant, near Rockford; two thousand artillerymen of the national guard will gather at Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wis., and 2,000 members of the C. M. T. C. will go to Fort Sheridan for a month's training.

They will pitch tents, scrub mess halls, draw supplies and perform all the work necessary to get everything in readiness for the 6,500 guardsmen who move in on Saturday. Routine field training, including rifle practice, will occupy the guardsmen during most of their two weeks in camp. Gov. Emmerson will inspect the troops on Aug. 13.

Artillerymen to Camp McCoy.

Because there are no facilities for firing field guns and howitzers at Camp Grant, the 55th artillery brigade of the Illinois National Guard will join other artillerymen from the Chicago area at Camp McCoy on Saturday. They will be commanded by Brig. Gen. Frank Schwengel.

The eleventh annual citizens military training camp opens at Fort Sheridan today. Approximately 2,000 young men from northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin have enrolled for the camp this year. Their period of training lasts until Aug. 28.

Reserve Officers to Aid.

Drill in infantry, cavalry, and field artillery tactics will be under the direction of Maj. David Falk, executive officer in command of the camp. Regular army officers will be assisted by reserve officers in cavalry, artillery and infantry training.

The camp will again be known as Camp McKinlock in honor of Second Lieut. George A. McKinlock Jr., who was killed in action during the war.

Two hundred and seventy members of the R. O. T. C. in eleven middle western colleges and universities closed camp at Fort Sheridan yesterday after a six week's training period. Maj. C. A. Chapman of the University of Illinois, executive officer in command, reviewed the troops and presented commissions to 31 second lieutenants. Sabres were presented as prizes to students picked as leaders in each of the universities.

The field artillery unit of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Chicago attained the rating of "excellent" for the third successive year, Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commanding the sixth corps area, notified the university yesterday.

FACTOR PASSES UP CHANCE FOR LIBERTY ON BAIL

John [Jake the Barber] Factor, who is wanted by the British authorities as a $7,000,000 stock swindler, decided yesterday not to put up a $50,000 bond for his liberty. United States Commissioner Walker had ruled Factor admissable to bail in that amount, but Defense Attorney David Stansbury said he would petition the federal district court for a writ of habeas corpus.

The defense contention that Factor's alleged offense—receiving money known to have been fraudulently obtained—is not extraditable, on which ground a motion to quash the extradition proceedings was based, has been overruled by the commissioner. The rejection of bail was regarded as a strategical move on the part of counsel, there being a better chance on a writ of habeas corpus if the respondent is in custody. Under such proceedings, the district court would be asked to rule on the motion to quash the extradition warrant.

Federal Judge Evan A. Evans yesterday refused to entertain a motion of Attorney Franklin R. Overmyer, representing the British crown, to pass on the commissioner's bail ruling.

SO THIN SO SICKLY
But 4 packages of this new tonic added 15 pounds
HANDICAPPED for five years by a skinny figure—by weakness and constipation. And then to be told he could gain weight easily—quickly recover his pep. He couldn't believe it—laughed at the very idea!
But the joke was on him after all. For today he's in the pink of condition—but read about Mr. Swiontek's amazing "comeback" in his own words: "I have long been sickly, weighing only 118 pounds. Three months ago a friend told me of Ironized Yeast. I only laughed but promised to try 1 package.
"Well the first package helped me so much that I tried 3 more. You should see me now! I am full of pep and weigh 133 pounds. It surely amazes my friends and myself as I have been thin and constipated for close to 5 years. I never imagined Ironized Yeast would give results in such a short time."—Stanley T. Swiontek, 3554 No. Neenah Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO STOCK TRADING RISES ON LIQUIDATION

Selling Pressure Eases Toward Close.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading on the Chicago exchange yesterday was the liveliest in several days as selling increased sharply on the heels of the unexpectedly drastic reduction in the U. S. Steel dividend.

As the first wave of liquidation swept over the market at the opening prices went down from a fraction to 2 points, but steadied later as the selling subsided. Final prices in the main were below Tuesday's last quotations, but no severe recessions were recorded.

There was no denying that sentiment was adversely affected by the Steel corporation's action, but the mid-week reports on steel operations were somewhat more cheerful. The reports on ingot production for the industry as a whole had a more bullish tinge than had been the case in some weeks.

North American Light Sags.

The first two hours of trading saw the worst of the selling and from that time on shares steadied and in some instances retrieved part of the early losses. North American Light and Power encountered rather severe pressure and the stock broke 3¼ points to 45 before it developed resistance. Recovering partially, the stock closed at 46, a net loss of 2¼ points.

The action of U. S. Radio provided a notable exception to the general trend. This issue, which on the previous day ran up over three points, again received excellent market support and pushed ahead over two points after a temporary weak spell in the early trading. Operations in the stock, which are regarded as largely professional have been based on the favorable results anticipated in the firm's annual report to be released shortly.

Another anomaly of the day's trade was the three point spurt in Crane company preferred. Putting in one of its infrequent appearances on the tape this issue brought 103½ on an odd lot transaction. Its previous sale was at 105.

Earnings Reports.

Companies reporting earnings yesterday included the Dexter company and the Storkline Furniture company. Six months net profit of the Dexter company amounted to $70,744, equivalent to 70 cents a share on the outstanding capital stock as compared with $134,987 or $1.36 a share in the first half of 1930. Net for the second quarter was $39,374 or 29 cents a share against $41,460 or 41 cents a share in the previous three months and $79,084 and 79 cents a share in the comparable period last year.

Storkline six months' net was $85,816, equivalent after preferred dividends to 1 cent a share on the common stock. Comparable 1930 earnings are not available. The company's cumulative preference stock is currently quoted at 6¼ to 8¼.

New Company Acquires Chicago Oil Burner Firm

Winslow Boiler and Engineering company of Chicago has been acquired by Kleen Heet, Inc., a new corporation, according to an announcement made yesterday by J. H. Hirsch, president of the Automotic Burner corporation, Chicago, who assumes the presidency of Kleen Heet, Inc. Mr. Hirsch states that the entire personnel, factory, distribution and services facilities of the Winslow organization will be kept intact.

OUT OF SEASON INGOT OUTPUT GAINS REPORTED

Midsummer Steel Upturn Appears.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 29.—"An out of season gain in ingot production, continued buoyancy in scrap and the decision of Steel corporation directors to maintain wage rates are regarded as constructive factors in an exceedingly quiet iron and steel market," the Iron Age will say tomorrow.

"Steel plant operations have risen at Cleveland, Buffalo, Youngstown and in the Wheeling district, and ingot production for the country at large now averages 32 per cent, as against 31 per cent a week ago. The upturn has come at an unusual time—midsummer—and follows an unbroken decline since March. It is difficult to assign a reason for the change unless it be that steel output dipped below the rock bottom requirements of the country. And it is too early to foresee whether the gain will be followed by further increases or by relapses to lower rates.

Automobile Outlook Dims.

"The closing of the Ford plants from July 17 through August and the sharply reduced schedules of other motor car makers next month certainly do not augur well for automotive consumption of steel in the immediate future. Tin plate output, which has been the brightest spot in the iron and steel situation, likewise is an unfavorable factor, having declined to 42 per cent from 60 per cent rate, with additional curtailment in sight. Blast furnace operations also will point downward, with three stacks reported out during the week—two at Birmingham and one at Chicago.

"The conviction that business is slowly, if almost imperceptibly, on the mend is read into the action of the steel corporation directors in maintaining wage rates, after a reduction had been almost universally forecast.

U. S. Steel Operations Rise.

"Possibly the fact that the U. S. Steel corporation's operating rate has risen from a recent low of 30 per cent to approximately 34 per cent of capacity turned the scales against a step that would probably have been taken in an indefinite continuance of unfavorable operations seemed to be in prospect. At any rate, the corporation's report is widely interpreted as an indication of faith in the future and should operate to restore the recently shaken confidence of industry in general.

"Construction continues to account for a substantial portion of the existing steel plant operations. The steel awards of the larger projects placed during the year—for example, the Empire State building in New York, taking 125,000 tons—is now being rolled and fabricated."

Describes Lewis Plan for Relief of Unemployment

BY SCRUTATOR.

SEN. JAS. COUZENS.

Eugene W. Lewis, president of the Industrial Morris Plan bank of Detroit, has proposed a national unemployment relief and consumer credit plan which has attracted wide attention by industrial leaders.

Following its presentation to a group of prominent Detroit manufacturers and business men Senator James Couzens of Michigan announced that he would incorporate the proposed plan in a bill to be introduced at the next session of congress.

The Lewis plan proposes to smooth out the hills and valleys of industrial activity with their resultant radical fluctuations in employment and purchasing power by providing money for the unemployed in periods of depression of credit facilities for wage earners during periods when there is no need of payment of relief.

Where Fund Is Derived.

A fund to finance these operations is to be collected as follows, based on 1¾ per cent of the annual industrial pay roll of each state: 30 per cent from the federal government, 30 per cent from the state government; 25 per cent from the employers; 15 per cent from the employés.

The working of the plan may be summarized as follows: Whenever employment would fall below 85 per cent of the previous two year average employment in any state an emergency would be automatically declared and unemployment relief payments would start.

Every man on an industrial pay roll out of a job could collect 70 per cent of his previous income, these payments to continue until six months after employment should have returned to 90 per cent of the previous three year average, when relief payments would stop.

During periods of normal business, when funds were not needed for unemployment relief, half of the funds collected annually would be made available to wage earners for borrowing to cover "individual purchase of necessary articles for which there is an economic reason for ownership, that have originated on purchases under a predetermined standard basis of credit, and which cannot be consumed, destroyed or greatly impaired before maturity of the obligation."

Administration of Fund.

Each state's payment to the fund would come out of funds derived from general taxation. The federal government's 30 per cent would be gathered from the higher brackets of income tax.

When employment would have dropped below 90 per cent of the preceding three year average collections would be cut from 1¾ per cent of the industrial pay rolls to 1 per cent. Should employment fall below 85 per cent collections would cease. The maximum required fund would be reached when the amount in any state fund reached 35 per cent of the highest pay rolls total of any one of the preceding ten years.

The large disbursements to unemployed [70 per cent of salary] are intended to enable the recipient to continue in the market as an average buyer instead of merely affording him enough to keep from starving. Herein is evidenced the double purpose of the plan—to prevent curtailment of consumer buying as well as prevent individual suffering.

Stabilized Consuming Power.

"Industry," says Mr. Lewis, "has educated our people to mass production. Mass consumption must necessarily follow. Our population and our industries are growing rapidly and we should consume at least 30 per cent of all we produce. Stabilized consuming power becomes essential."

He contends that the present banking structure serves not more than 25 per cent of the people and is designed largely to finance the producer. Lack of a recognized financial plan or basis for properly revolving funds that should be available to the wage earning consumers, he says, leads to removal of or interference with their purchasing power and results in the fluctuations between "good" and "bad" times.

HOWARD C. HOLBROOK NAMED RECEIVER FOR ITALIAN TRUST BANK

State Auditor Oscar Nelson yesterday appointed Howard C. Holbrook, an investment banker, receiver for the Italian Trust and Savings bank, 495 Milwaukee avenue, which closed June 10 with resources of $1,318,127 and deposits of $1,023,123. Mr. Holbrook, who is connected with Ralph Chapman & Co., 208 South La Salle street, will be paid on a salary basis. George A. Curran was named as attorney.

There are four banks for which receivers are yet to be named: Cragin State bank, State Bank of Beverly Hills, Garfield State bank and the Northwestern Trust and Savings bank. Unless these banks find the necessary capital for reorganization within a few days receivers will be appointed, Mr. Nelson stated.

Auditor Nelson yesterday filed a bill in the Superior court to end the corporate existence of the Diversey Trust and Savings bank, which closed June 12. The bill asks the appointment of a receiver to administer the assets of the bank for the safeguarding of the depositors' accounts which amounted to $704,531. The total liabilities of the bank were listed at $1,237,138.

A group of depositors of the Bryn Mawr State bank will hold a mass-meeting at the O'Keefe school, 6940 Merrill avenue, at 8 p. m. Monday, to protest against the appointment of a general receiver for their bank. Irwin Gilruth is receiver for all the twelve banks in the Bain group, of which the Bryn Mawr bank was a unit, and the depositors are seeking an individual receiver.

"The depositors feel their interest is jeopardized by being put in a chain receivership," Morgan L. Fitch, a member of the depositors' committee, stated yesterday. "We shall try to get 67 per cent of the depositors in number and amount in order to change to a local receiver."

Shorts Are Squeezed as July Corn Soars Nearly 10 Cents

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Shorts in July corn furnished the best thrill yesterday that the grain trade has had in a long time. The price moved up from 58¾c to 63½c and in the last five minutes of trading soared to 68¾c, a jump of practically 10 cents from Tuesday's close.

An easing in the buying, with a little more corn offered, carried the price back to 67½@68c, with net gains of 8¾@9¼c for the day.

The shorts were badly squeezed and the trade has had the impression for several days that the Farmers' National corporation, a government subsidiary, was short 3,000,000 bu. This report, however, was denied by those in a position to know. The best information was that the Farmers' National has been short the July corn as a hedge against its holding of cash corn. This is said to have been largely delivered and so far 5,000,000 bu of cash corn have been tendered on July sales by cash interests, there being deliveries of 540,000 bu during the day.

Corn Receipts Increase.

It is said that a leading cash house was a large buyer of July corn early in the day, helping to boost the price. Receipts of corn have been heavy of late, coming from the country and from terminal markets. Yesterday's arrivals were 299 cars. There are only two more trading days for the shorts to get in. Those having hedges say they will either make deliveries or buy in their July.

The principal long interest in corn, it was stated, was held by Thomas M. Howell, prominent Board of Trade operator. The extent of his interest is unknown, but was reported to be extensive.

News from the spring wheat sections of the American and Canadian northwest is the worst the trade has known in years and in some sections border on the sensational. These advices, combined with the advance in corn, unnerved shorts in wheat and inspired buying that lifted prices over 1c and made a fairly strong close, with net gains of ¼@¾c, after being down to within a fraction of the season's low.

July wheat finished at 51⅝c, September 51⅞@51¼c, December 55⅝@55½c. Liverpool was stronger, reflecting part of the late rally in American markets on Tuesday.

Flour Trade Improves.

Reports from the flour trade in the southwest were the best in months, millers taking hard winters, while spring wheat flours are said to be draggy. Receipts in the southwest are larger, 2,253 cars, and primary receipts of 4,577,000 bu, although larger than a week ago, were smaller than those of last year. Shipments were 1,000,000 bu in excess of a year ago. With the trade showing a little more disposition to consider the news of a bullish character there was a reduction of the selling pressure. Hedging pressure was of liberal volume and well absorbed.

The trade is much interested in decreased acreage of winter wheat. The Argentine government's acreage report suggests a reduction of 15 per cent from last year, as compared with 30 per cent by private estimates within the week.

Other Corn Futures Firm.

Deferred futures of corn were more active and strong, closing with net gains of 1⅛@1⅛c, September being 50⅞@50¾c, and December 44½@44¾c. Crop news, combined with the strength in July was responsible for the advance.

Reports on the oats crop were less favorable and shorts more uneasy toward the last, because of the advance in other grains. In the early trading, however, there was weakness, and the close was at net gains of ¾@⅞c. July being 23¼c, September 24¼c, and December 26⅝@26¾c. Rye was ¾@1⅛c higher, in sympathy with other grains and lighter offerings.

ARBITRATE I. C. TELEGRAPHERS' WAGE DEMAND

An increase of 16 2-3 per cent in the hourly rates of pay of 1,919 telegraphers employed by the Illinois Central railroad is being sought by the Order of Railroad Telegraphers in an arbitration proceeding in which final evidence was submitted yesterday. The closing arguments will be heard Saturday in room 757 of the federal building.

The arbitration is the outgrowth of negotiations which were begun by the telegraphers in June, 1929, for the establishment of a six-day work week, vacations with pay, certain changes in working rules and a wage increase. Withdrawal of proposals for vacations with pay and further changes in working rules and an agreement to submit the application for a wage increase to arbitration was reached early last year.

The plea for increased rates of pay is based upon maintaining for the telegraphers who are placed on a six-day week the same aggregate pay which they formerly received for working seven days.

In opposing the increases the Illinois Central points out that it is not now realizing sufficient net earnings to cover fixed charges and therefore cannot bear the annual increase in operating expenses of $572,000 which would result from the wage increase.

The arbitrators are: E. J. Manion, president, and F. F. Cowley, vice president, Order of Railroad Telegraphers; E. C. Craig, general solicitor, and T. J. Quigley, general superintendent, Illinois Central system; Dr. Davis R. Dewey, professor of economics, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Judge Hugo O. Hanft of the District court, Minneapolis.

HUDSON'S BAY CO. REPORTS TRADING LOSS OF $3,731,670

LONDON, July 29.—(AP)—The Hudson's Bay company's annual report submitted today to a stockholders' meeting showed a trading loss of $3,731,670 in the fiscal year ended May 31, and a net loss of $2,224,325 which was covered by a transfer of funds from the share premium account. The company passed preferred and common dividends last December.

There were two policemen in the meeting place today, for some of these sessions in the past have been stormy. This one, however, was peaceable even when Maj. Ashley Cooper, the new governor, told the stockholders the company was in a very difficult position in these "extraordinarily difficult times."

There is not only no prospect of a dividend next year, he said, but a heavy loss is inevitable.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 29.—Speculative Wall street was upset over the $2 "surprise" cut in the dividend of the United States Steel corporation. The stock market broke wide open from the shock, leading shares selling off anywhere from 2 to 9 points.

Trading during the first half of the session was the heaviest in more than two weeks, with blocks of from 2,000 to 10,000 shares of assorted issues being dumped into the hopper at sharply lower prices, but a short covering movement alowed up the pace around noon and the market turned once more extremely dull. Volume totaled around 1,500,000 shares, or a little more than double that of yesterday.

Some of the day's selling was no doubt by way of renewed operations by bear operators who have been in hibernation for the last few weeks, but the vast majority of it obviously represented real liquidation by holders grown genuinely anxious over the industrial outlook in view of the new turn of affairs with the country's largest industrial corporation.

Fear for Other Dividends.

If the U. S. Steel dividend had to be cut so drastically, they reasoned, other so-called impregnable dividend walls are in serious danger in the near future. The Bethlehem Steel directors meet tomorrow and although the rate of this company was reduced only last April from $6 to $4 the street had no difficulty in convincing itself that another cut is in store for holders of the corporation's common shares.

There was some conjecture over the fate of the American Telephone rate at the corporation's next directory meeting and doubts were raised over the International Nickel dividend when the board meets on Aug. 6. Talk was also heard that such railroads as the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the Baltimore and Ohio might not be able to maintain their current rates if the U. S. Steel corporation is having such a time making ends meet

EXPECT BETHLEHEM, TOO, WILL MAKE CUT IN DIVIDEND RATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 29.—Now that the meeting of directors of United States Steel is out of the way and its dividend reduction has become a matter of record, Wall street will be called upon to absorb another piece of important news after the close of the market tomorrow in the form of dividend action on the common shares of Bethlehem Steel corporation, the second largest steel company in this country. At the same time the company will release its statement of earnings for the second quarter and first half of 1931.

It is generally believed that the board of Bethlehem Steel will order a reduction in the common rate. Opinion varies as to the size of the cut and in some quarters it is thought that a quarterly rate of 37½ cents a share might be authorized. This would be equal to $1.50 a year against the present rate of $1 quarterly, or $4 a year. The latter rate was established at the last meeting when the board ordered a cut from $6 to $4 a year.

In the first three months of the current year Bethlehem showed net income after all charges of $1,941,942. Preferred dividends called for an outlay of $1,750,000, leaving a balance of $191,942, or 6 cents a share for the common stock. It is now believed that net for the June period fell considerably below the preferred dividend requirements. In the June quarter last year the company earned $7,691,495, or $1.86 a share, on the common.

CONSUMPTION OF ELECTRICITY IS SEEN IMPROVING

Consumption of electricity, regarded as one of the most accurate barometers of industrial activity, continues to show some improvement both in the Chicago district and in the country as a whole, according to figures released last night by the Commonwealth Edison company.

Electrical output of the Chicago district for the week ended July 25 was 96,952,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 97,744,000 kilowatt hours in the corresponding week last year. This was a decrease of only 0.8 per cent, as compared with a decline of 1 per cent in the preceding week and a decrease of 3 per cent in the week ended July 11 from the comparable weeks last year. In the week ended July 4 a gain of 5.5 per cent was made over the corresponding week of 1930.

New York, July 29.—(AP)—While there was some pickup in foreign demand earlier in the week, export sales of copper today were again negligible. Domestic buying also was small, with no interest being shown by consumers. Electrolytic copper for domestic shipment is quoted nominally at 7⅝ to 8 cents a pound delivered to the end of 1931, and the foreign trade continues at 8.25 cents, c. i. f. European base ports. Transactions in the metal, however, have been reported at 7⅝ cents and offers as low as 7⅛ cents.

International Business Machine Earnings Gain

The International Business Machines corporation earned net profit of $3,788,492, after all charges and estimated federal taxes in the first half of 1931. Earnings were equivalent to $5.64 a share on 669,852 shares of no par capital stock. This compares with net income of $3,654,310 or $5.45 a share in the comparable period of 1930. These figures include the earnings of the company's foreign subsidiaries.

Spencer Kellogg Sons Note Business Pickup

Howard Kellogg, president of Spencer Kellogg Sons, Inc., vegetable oil refiners, said that although orders for current delivery remain about the same, orders for future delivery are showing a slight increase. He added that this year's dividend requirements of the company will be covered by a substantial margin.

Argentine Gov't Taxes Articles on Free List

MONTEVIDEO, July 29.—The provisional government of Argentina has issued a decree placing a customs duty from five to fifty per cent on a long list of articles formerly on the free list including many articles in which American exporters have built a large trade. The new duties are effective thirty days after decree is published.

Threads and yarns for sewing and weaving containing a mixture of silk will pay ten per cent of the arbitrary value fixed by decrees. All rubber goods including tires thirty per cent. Pedestals for typewriters, calculating machines and also furniture including office furniture forty per cent. Wrapping paper that has been printed and Deodorant tooth pastes fifty per cent. Foodstuffs will pay twenty-five per cent of the value specified in the decree.

Standard Brands Reports Gain for June Quarter

Standard Brands, Inc., and subsidiaries reported for the June quarter net income of $4,406,379, after expenses, minority interest and federal taxes, but before profit and loss items, and after preferred dividends to 33 cents a share on 12,644,002 common shares. This compares with $4,054,588, or 31 cents a share, in the preceding quarter, and with $4,211,202, or 33 cents a share on 12,543,293 shares, in the second quarter of last year.

Southern Indiana Gas and Electric Calls Bonds

ARMOUR & CO. TO CUT SALARIES 5 TO 10 PER CENT

Armour & Co., Chicago meat packer, will soon put into effect a general reduction in salaries ranging from 5 to 10 per cent, an official disclosed last night.

"Every one from the president to the office boys will be affected," Philip L. Reed, treasurer, said. "Employés on a wage basis, however, will not be reduced."

Reed said the reduction would go into effect in about two weeks. He refused to estimate how many employés would be affected. The cut is the first to be announced by a major company following announcement of limited salary reductions by United States Steel corporation on Tuesday.

PLAN NEW UNIT IN BIG U. OF I. MEDICAL GROUP

Will House Medical and Dental College.

BY AL CHASE.

Tentative plans have been completed by Granger & Bollenbacher for the third unit in the great $5,000,000 Chicago west side medical group of the University of Illinois. This will be a new medical and dental college building, to replace the present old structure at 1338 West Harrison street. It will be erected at the northeast corner of Polk and Wood streets, and will be approximately the same size as the $1,500,000 Medical and Dental college laboratories now under construction at the southeast corner of Polk and Lincoln streets.

The tentative plans of Granger & Bollenbacher have been submitted to J. M. White, head of the school of architecture at the University of Illinois, for approval. Work probably will be started later this year. It is planned to have the entire medical group of the University of Illinois completed prior to the World's Fair. Two units are now in use, the building containing the research laboratories and the research hospital and the structure used as a nurses' home.

Chicagoan Is Honored.

Frank Lloyd Wright, Chicago architect, will represent North America on the international architectural jury in the $4,000,000 Columbus memorial competition being conducted by the republic of San Domingo, according to Charles Morgan, who is associated with Mr. Wright.

The contest is to secure plans for a lighthouse, memorial park, and aviation field on the island visited by Columbus on his first voyage. Twelve drawings have been selected from the hundreds submitted from all parts of the world. The dozen architects of these sketches are to submit plans for the final competition. The judging will take place in Rio de Janeiro in the fall. Mr. Wright will leave for South America in September. There will be three judges in the finals. One from Europe, one from South America, and Mr. Wright from this continent.

Forest Preserve Buys.

The forest preserve district has purchased a ten acre strip, 600 feet wide, a quarter of a mile west of East River road and half a mile south of Rand road, from John A. Boldt, for an indicated $26,000. The land is to be used in connection with the development of the great forest way, a 600 foot wide drive which is to link the various forest preserve areas about Chicago.

The regular monthly index figure computed from realty deeds in sixty-three cities by the National Association of Real Estate Boards for June is 86.4. The figure for May was 61.3. Although the drop is 2.9 between these months, the decline between May and June of 1930 was 6.7, so that this year's figure did not decline as sharply during the same period.

HEAR SALE OF CALUMET RYS. MAY BE MADE

Sale of the Calumet Railways company, Inc., which furnishes street car service to Hammond, East Chicago, and Whiting, Ind., is near consummation, it was announced last night.

A group of Chicago capitalists is negotiating for the company, and it is expected the necessary formalities completing the deal will be accomplished soon. Charles W. Chase, president of the Gary Railways company, who represents the Calumet company, declined to divulge the names of the Chicagoans interested in the utility.

The Calumet Railways company was organized as an independent group eighteen months ago, but with the backing of Insull interests. Because of franchise difficulties the company subsequently was granted permission by the Indiana public service commission to discontinue service on July 1. This order was rescinded late last month on representations that prospective purchasers had been found.

No mention was made of the Shore Line Bus company, which parallels the car lines and which handles the bulk of passenger traffic. This company is said also to have Insull backing.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 15,000; sheep, 9,000.

There was a scramble for light and light butcher hogs on yesterday's market, resulting in another advance. Top 200 lb averages reached $8.40, highest since middle of March. This price is only 10c under the highest paid for hogs so far this year and shows an advance of $1.20 since late in May, which was the lowest spot for top hogs in recent years. Gains of 10@ 25c were general in all classes of hogs, the general average moving up 15c at $6.55.

The range of prices is still wide, which is due to the seasonal curtailment of demand for big cuts and also due to the acute scarcity of hogs weighing under 225 lbs at all leading markets in the country. Heavy pork loins are selling at the same prices as a month ago, while light loins show advances of 25 and 30 per cent. Compared with two months ago, light loins show advances of 35 and 37 per cent, while heavy loins have declined 15 and 16 per cent in the last two months.

Today's Hogs Bid $8.50.

Light weight hogs for today's delivery were bid $8.50 on the "to arrive" market yesterday. Mediums for delivery during the last half of September sold at $7.75. August light carried bids of $8.40, but no offers were quoted below $8.00 for that month. September light were offered at $8.75, mediums at $7.75 and heavy at $7.65. The latter were bid $7.25. December light were offered at $7.50, mediums at $6.50 and heavy at $6.90.

The cattle market was a two-way affair today, stock showing too much "grass" going at weaker prices, while strength and in some instances slight gains were recorded in sales of well finished cattle. It was distinctly a "quality" market. Even medium and weighty beeves shared in some of the price gains, so long as they showed high finish and lacked that "grassy" appearance that many cattle have at this time of the year. Corn fed cows and heifers ruled stronger, while plain quality butcher stock was hard to dispose of. Calves opened about steady, but closed weak to lower.

Cattle Bring Higher Prices.

Although eastern houses are getting a bigger share of Chicago cattle receipts than at this time in 1930, their representatives here are encountering plenty of competition. Large local houses are among the aggressive buyers of top kinds. Fancy 823 lb yearlings went to Wilson at $9.25, the highest price paid for cattle in more than two months. Steers averaging 1,263 lbs reached $8.75. Bulk of good steers sold at $8.00@ $8.75, but common stock ranged downwards to $5.75 in smaller numbers.

Sheep receipts increased at most of the leading market centers today and the aggregate total proved too much for the trade despite the shortage in supplies during the first two days of this week. Losses of 15@25c were general and sorting was harder on the break.

Packers obtained the rank and file of good grades of natives and westerns at $8.00, probably about 75 per cent of the total supply selling at the one price. City butchers and yard traders in search of choice fat lambs paid $8.25@8.50 for several decks of natives.

BUTTER AND EGGS EASY

Butter and egg futures ruled easier on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, potatoes firming up slightly. The session lasted only one hour because of the annual field day of the exchange. November butter dropped off ¾c and November eggs eased ⅛c, recovering a fraction from an opening break. Idaho potatoes gained 2c. Green Mountains 1c and round whites were unchanged. Pressure in butter and eggs resulted from the cooler weather, and in the case of butter, from less favorable storage news, the inward movement being heavier than a year ago. The egg news was bullish as far as storage reports were concerned, the outward movement continuing. Buying support in potatoes was slightly improved on bullish crop news. Sales: Butter, 25 cars; eggs, 20 cars; potatoes, 15 cars and 2 trucks. Receipts: Butter, 9,362 tubs; eggs, 5,439 cases; potatoes, 87 cars.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was easier today under increased offerings and a rather indifferent demand. Prices declined a sixteenth of a cent to the basis of 3.50c for spots duty paid, with sales of 80,000 bags of Cuban at this level for August shipment to refiners.

Reflecting the decline in spots, futures were easier under liquidation and selling by houses with trade and Wall Street connections, closing at from 4 to 5 points below the previous close. Approximate sales, 15,730 tons. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP)—Softer prices prevailed on print cloths and narrow sheetings today. Finished cottons were selling in moderate lots at irregular prices. Rayon producers reported a steady call for good grades of acetate yarns that cannot be fully met, due to scarcity. Dress goods were selling in fair quantities. Silk showed little change in the merchandise and raw material divisions. Strikes in silk centers are tending to weaken raw silk.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Traders are giving more attention to corn and until July is out of the way, it is expected to be the leading feature. Crop news is attracting more attention and is expected to from now on. Those who are bearish look at the good spots east of the Mississippi river while the bulls find comfort in the bad reports from northwestern Iowa and South Dakota, where the crop is said to be curling and firing. Wheat traders are giving corn more attention and are expected to for several days. The crop news in wheat is making traders less bearish, but most of the rank and file have not yet made up their minds about taking the long side and there are old traders who express the belief that wheat may sell down to around 45c.

Open interest in July corn at the close of Tuesday was 6,397,000 bu, a decrease of almost 6,000,000 bu for that day. A week ago it was 7,862,000 bu. July corn at the close yesterday was 17c over the price of September. It is said that the country stocks of corn have been cut down to a minimum and that next month will see a very light movement to cash corn handlers.

Southwest railroad officials are looking for an enlarged movement of wheat after Aug. 1, unless the emergency rates, calling for a good reduction effective Aug. 1, are withdrawn, or the time changed. Only the excess crop in the southwest has been marketed so far, although the movement has exceeded all previous years.

COTTON DECLINES TO NEW LOW LEVELS

Influence of bearish outside factors both here and abroad yesterday was felt in declining cotton prices, but this commodity was heavy enough to fall of its own weight and selling orders from the east and south were plentiful, forcing prices to a finish 4@ 10 points net lower, a few points rally from the low point of the day and the season. The trade looks for large carryover figures in private reports next week and estimates of a good crop. The official weekly crop report issued yesterday was favorable and reports of boll weevil damage from various sections are ignored. Liverpool was off 18 points at the close. New York spots were off 10 points, at 8.45c, New Orleans 8.35c, 5 points down, Houston 8.30c, and Galveston 8.40c. Prices follow:
